

Consumptive People. CAN SECURE RENEWED HEALTH AND STRENGTH. The Rich, Red Blood Made by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Gives New Strength to Every Nerve, Fibre and Organ of the Body.

Maida's Secret.....

By the Author of... "A Oopsy's Daughter," "Another Man's Wife," "A Heart's Bitterness," etc., etc.

Suzonodent Good for Bad Teeth Not Bad for Good Teeth

Suzonodent Tooth Powder 25c. Large Liquid and Powder 25c. All stores or by mail for the price. Sample for the postage, 3c.

GIRL'S JACKET. 4 to 12 Years.

No wise mother permits her children to be without a general utility jacket that can warm over any gown. The attractive little garment shown is entirely practical, at the same time that it is essentially smart, yet it is not difficult to make.

To cut this jacket for a girl of 8 years of age 1 1/2 yards of material 44 inches wide, or 1 1/2 yards 50 inches wide will be required.

"Don't you see that the hand-writing in the book is entirely different from that in the letters?"

"Yes, but what of it?"

"This, my dear Mr. Hartleigh, will never marry that young woman, and you will have the field to yourself. Don't ask any more questions. It will be a great deal for you to get to the good old time comes. Only mind! You don't need to do anything but wait—wait two weeks from to-day—and you will have your reward."

"The day was a perfect one, and she wandered on until she came to a pretty patch of wood where she threw herself down to brood on her sorrows until such time as she could command herself sufficiently to prevent the dance discovering her whereabouts."

"She could not return and listen to the good old dame's talk of the commonplace things which interested her."

"The day was a perfect one, and she wandered on until she came to a pretty patch of wood where she threw herself down to brood on her sorrows until such time as she could command herself sufficiently to prevent the dance discovering her whereabouts."

"She was sure now that she was not in a room for her there. She could not even think, now that Guy loved her. And if he did not then it would be greatly matter what became of her."

CHAPTER XXVIII. In the meantime the picknicker had reached the Titan's Shield, and most of them had begun to make the descent. As there was no way of avoiding doing so without exciting comment, Guy had taken Maida's arm under his.

"She was more apathetic than he now. She had expected to meet her hands by a pair of lawyers, and would have given the last link that she had to the old self she had gone out of her life. Hers was a heavy burden, and she had not sent him away because she loved him too well to run the risk of having him some day discover her shame, and go to her father."

"The path, narrow and winding, allowed of but two abreast, and many of the party went in Indian file. It was a wild and beautiful scene, every fresh beauty of cliff scenery, and a more extensive view of the great gray rocks lying beneath them."

"How he spelled CAT." An old army surgeon who was fond of a joke, if not perpetrated at his expense, was somewhat severe in his remarks on the literary delinquencies of some of the officers appointed from civil life. At mess recently a retired officer used Dodd's Kidney Pills, and had been cured by them. He was acquainted with "Captain Dash."

"Yes, I know him well," replied the doctor. "But what of him?"

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

"No, that's not the way; try once more," said the doctor.

FRENCH ARMY MOBILITY. THEIR TACTICS ARE SAID TO BE ANCIENT.

Talent For Handling Large Bodies of Troops.

The correspondent of the London Daily Chronicle who attended the French military manoeuvres at Rethel says that the French leaders have shown a decided talent for handling large masses of troops when out of sight of the enemy—and on the energy of these troops they have made claims which, however, willingly responded to by them, would have caused considerable grumbling in the ranks of British battalions in time of peace, at least, if not in war.

The French manoeuvres are conducted in a manner entirely different from those of Aldershot or Salisbury Plain. There the men have their barracks or their camp, where they have almost every comfort, and return to their quarters after a few hours' easy fighting. French soldiers, on the other hand, after a hard day's marching and fighting, which often begins as early as 3 a. m., and generally ends about noon, or even later, have to march long and TIRISOME DISTANCES before reaching the respective villages where they are to be billeted for the night. The billeting arrangements appear to be perfect. The mayor of the village or canton gets notice that so many men will want sleeping accommodation on a particular night, and he must be ready with it to the minute. There is no doubt about it, the French army possesses a mobility and adaptability, and it is very difficult to put one's finger anywhere on the weak point of its organization and equipment.

The French organization could scarcely be better, but here ecology from the English point of view cannot well go further. For the tactics of the French army are still little more than the tactics of thirty years ago, to go no further back. The French continue to fight their mimic battle as there had been a battle as they do it at Aldershot, and they frankly admit that they have never given it their serious attention from the point of view of comparative military science. In fact, they deny that its lessons have any practical value for them whatever. The French army is still as vigorous in color as it was in the days of a target, and the last time it went under the fire of Europe.

DO NOT TAKE COVER. On Sunday and Monday, at the battles around Rethel, had there been bullets in the guns of the enemy, the Boers would have been left up to the necks. The men are not taught to take cover, except in accidental dips of the ground, and they advance across the open in the most leisurely and even dignified fashion, exposed to infantry and artillery fire. I have not seen a single rifle forward and I do not know why they do it at Aldershot. It was no unusual sight to see companies blazing away at each other separated sometimes by less than 200 yards. The whole field was marked by ineptitudes of this kind, which astonished men who had been in South Africa. How the Boers would like to have the French for their enemies!

As for the infantry fire, delivered mostly as independent, not volley firing, there was scarcely one man in ten who troubled himself to take aim, but each one simply blazed away as if he wanted to get the show over as soon as possible, and none of the officers seemed to care a bit about the result. It is a pity that this might become a fatal habit in real war. There was also seen the curious spectacle of one company taking another prisoner. On the whole, the French army is intensely surprising. It may be doubted whether the French army is not still weaker where it ought to be strongest.

KNEW HER MAN. He was desperately in love with her but lacked the courage to propose.

"This line," she said, as she bent over a long "indicates that you have a hand before you; this one indicates a good heart; this one an artistic temperament and this one that you lack courage."

Being a dull and stubborn brute, he always ready to prove other people liars, he popped.

THE MOST NUTRITIOUS. EPRESS GRATEFUL-COMFORTING. COCOA BREAKFAST-SUPPER.

In North Italy the ratio of children attending school is 11 per cent of the population, in Central Italy it is only 6 per cent, while in more than 40 of the provinces in Sicily.

The value of furniture in the British Isles is a little over 1,100 million sterling.

The steepest railway in the world is up Vesuvius. One gradient rises 63 feet in 100.

Minard's Liniment Cures Gout in 60 Days. Just Turn Up the Corners of Your Mouth.

A well known doctor of Minneapolis, who has made a specialty of nervous diseases, has found a new remedy for "the blues." As no drugs are administered, he has felt safe in experimenting with at least a half hundred melancholy patients, and now declares himself thoroughly satisfied with the good results of his treatment. His prescription reads something like this: "If you keep the corners of your mouth turned up you can't feel blue." The directions for turning up the smile, keep on smiling, don't stop smiling." It sounds ridiculous, doesn't it? Well, just try turning up the corners of your mouth, regardless of your mood, and see how it makes you feel. You can draw the corners of your mouth down and note the effect, and you will be willing to declare "there's something in it."

The doctor treats his nervous patients to medicine when necessary, but when the case is one of purely melancholy without bodily ill, he simply recommends the smile cure. He has the patient remain in his office and smile; if it isn't the genuine article, it must at least be an up-

A SMART ANSWER. At a dinner party a certain officer in the Dragoon Guards had been placed with and back to the fire, which happened to be big and hot. Having stood the heat for a good time the officer could at last bear it no longer, and asked for a fire screen. His host, a pompous old squire, who thought everything belonging to him absolutely perfect, got exceedingly angry at the fire being found fault with, and immediately said, "A British soldier should always be able to stand any fire."

"Not in the back, sir," was the officer's witty rejoinder.

Papa Crumley—"I judge a man by the company he keeps." Mr. Sutor—"Yes, sir; I hope you will bear in mind that I've been keeping company with your daughter for over two years."

Violent deaths amount to 33 per 1,000 in the United Kingdom, 38 in Switzerland, but only 10 in Spain. Deaths by violence include all accidental deaths as well as murders and suicides.

Each of the people of the British Isles averages 300 days work a year allowing rest on Sundays, and 13 days of illness and holidays.

LUDELLA CEYLON. You will find it a delightful change. In Lead Packages, 25, 40, 50 and 60c. APPLES, POULTRY, Potatoes, Chestnuts, BUTTER, EGGS, and other Produce. THE DAWSON COMMISSION CO., Limited, TORONTO.

HIGH GRADE SEWING MACHINE or BEAUTIFUL GOUGH and 100 PIECE DINNER SET. DON'T SEND ANY MONEY. The doctor declares that if persons will do down the corners of their mouths and use sufficient will power they can actually shed tears. On the other hand, if they will persistently keep the corners of their mouth turned up pleasant thoughts will chase away the gloomy forebodings. His discovery grew out of an experience in his own home. His wife was of a nervous and rather morbid temperament, and when in a despondent mood he would ask her to "smile a little," until the saying came to be a household joke. But it brought about good results, and then came the inspiration to try the same cure on others.

AGENTS WANTED. AGENTS WANTED FOR OUR NEW... THE SUN SAVINGS AND IOAN COMPANY. WANTED-RELIABLE MEN TO ACT as local or travelling agents, either on commission or liberal terms on salary.

WANTED-22 PER DAY SURVIVOR. WANTED-GOOD MEN ONLY TO SELL. THE ROYAL VICTORIA LIFE INSURANCE CO.

EDUCATIONAL. CENTRAL BUSINESS COLLEGE, TORONTO. HELP WANTED.

AT THE HOSPITAL. "To be sure," said the kindly minister to the man who had lost both his legs in a railway accident.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED. DR. R. S. WILSON, of the American Journal of Health, New York, writes:—"Japanese Catarrh Cure is a household name."

HER GLAD SURPRISE. "I have found out one thing about my husband," said the bride who had been married before.

THOUGHTFUL. "Say, boss," he began, "I don't want no money, I only ask yer for a couple of dollars for a joint and buy me a square meal."

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES COLDS, ETC. Your wife is very forgetful, isn't she? "Yes, but not nearly so forgetful as I'd like her to be."

CALVERT'S CARBOLIC OINTMENT. For all skin ailments. Gents' Suits Cleaned.

BRITISH AMERICAN DYING CO. ROOFING AND SHOOT METAL WORKS.

WHOLEY BOSTON & CO., Limited. ROOFING AND SHOOT METAL WORKS.

WOOD PHOTO ENGRAVING. J. JONES & CO. 26-8 J. O. ADELAIDE ST. TORONTO.

DOMINION LINE Steamships. Montreal to Liverpool, Boston to Liverpool, Toronto to Liverpool.

WOOD PHOTO ENGRAVING. J. JONES & CO. 26-8 J. O. ADELAIDE ST. TORONTO.

From the Budget, Shelburne, N. S.

Among the young ladies of Shelburne, there is none to-day who more fully bears the impress of perfect health than Miss Lily Durfee.

Fortunately this was not always the case, as a few years ago Miss Durfee became ill, and her friends feared that she was going to die.

Her strength gradually improved, but her appetite failed, she had frequent headaches, was very pale, and finally grew so weak that a walk of a few rods would completely fatigue her.

The young lady's family sorrowfully observed that she was rapidly sinking, and feared that consumption would claim her as a victim.

One day a friend urged that she should give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, but the idea at first was not favorably entertained; it seemed hopeless to expect that any medicine would help her after the doctor's treatment had failed.

However, this good friend still urged, and finally prevailed. By the time the third box was used, there was an unmistakable improvement in Miss Durfee's condition.

Checked by this, the pills continued, and in the course of a few weeks the former invalid, whose strength was taxed by the slightest exertion, was enabled to resume her health.

The use of the pills was still continued and a few weeks more found Miss Durfee again enjoying perfect health.

To a reporter who interviewed her, she said:—"I believe that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life, and I earnestly recommend them to all who fear that consumption has laid its grasp upon them."

That the facts related above are not in any way exaggerated, is born out by the following statement from Robert G. Fry, of the well known stonemason's magazine:—"I distinctly remember the pale face of Miss Lily Durfee and the regrets of her friends as they expressed their conviction that she would soon be compelled to say farewell to earth."

Miss Durfee, however, carries the unmistakable credentials of good health, and frequently expresses her indebtedness to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Pale and anaemic girls, or young people with consumptive tendencies, will find renewed health and vigor through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills are an unfailing cure for all diseases due to a watery condition of the blood, and frequently expressed their indebtedness to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

Then she walked up the aisle and sought the Hartleigh pew, where she sat down and wondered at herself and at the mystery which she had placed in her hand.

She had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand, and she had placed it in her hand.

CHAPTER XXVII. When Mildred set out for her walk, she was met by Sir Richard Hartleigh, who met her half-sister Constance on a stage-coach in America.

The stage is attacked and Constance is wounded. Maida leaves her for dead and goes to impersonate her in England. Caryl Wilton, who knew Maida as a famous actress, meets her in some amateur theatricals in her new name at Hartleigh Hall.

He is passionately fond of her and to be often seen in her presence asks her to paint her portrait. She is a nephew of Sir Richard, to avoid seeing Wilton's admiration for the girl he thinks he loves, rides off and calls on his old nurse. He meets Mildred Thorpe. Lady Gladys a rival for Guy's affections takes steps to uncover Maida's past. Maida dismisses Wilton and becomes engaged to Guy at her enfeebled father's request.

CHAPTER XXVIII. When Mildred set out for her walk, she was met by Sir Richard Hartleigh, who met her half-sister Constance on a stage-coach in America.

The stage is attacked and Constance is wounded. Maida leaves her for dead and goes to impersonate her in England. Caryl Wilton, who knew Maida as a famous actress, meets her in some amateur theatricals in her new name at Hartleigh Hall.

He is passionately fond of her and to be often seen in her presence asks her to paint her portrait. She is a nephew of Sir Richard, to avoid seeing Wilton's admiration for the girl he thinks he loves, rides off and calls on his old nurse. He meets Mildred Thorpe. Lady Gladys a rival for Guy's affections takes steps to uncover Maida's past. Maida dismisses Wilton and becomes engaged to Guy at her enfeebled father's request.

CHAPTER XXVII. When Mildred set out for her walk, she was met by Sir Richard Hartleigh, who met her half-sister Constance on a stage-coach in America.

The stage is attacked and Constance is wounded. Maida leaves her for dead and goes to impersonate her in England. Caryl Wilton, who knew Maida as a famous actress, meets her in some amateur theatricals in her new name at Hartleigh Hall.

He is passionately fond of her and to be often seen in her presence asks her to paint her portrait. She is a nephew of Sir Richard, to avoid seeing Wilton's admiration for the girl he thinks he loves, rides off and calls on his old nurse. He meets Mildred Thorpe. Lady Gladys a rival for Guy's affections takes steps to uncover Maida's past. Maida dismisses Wilton and becomes engaged to Guy at her enfeebled father's request.

CHAPTER XXVIII. When Mildred set out for her walk, she was met by Sir Richard Hartleigh, who met her half-sister Constance on a stage-coach in America.

The stage is attacked and Constance is wounded. Maida leaves her for dead and goes to impersonate her in England. Caryl Wilton, who knew Maida as a famous actress, meets her in some amateur theatricals in her new name at Hartleigh Hall.

He is passionately fond of her and to be often seen in her presence asks her to paint her portrait. She is a nephew of Sir Richard, to avoid seeing Wilton's admiration for the girl he thinks he loves, rides off and calls on his old nurse. He meets Mildred Thorpe. Lady Gladys a rival for Guy's affections takes steps to uncover Maida's past. Maida dismisses Wilton and becomes engaged to Guy at her enfeebled father's request.

CHAPTER XXVII. When Mildred set out for her walk, she was met by Sir Richard Hartleigh, who met her half-sister Constance on a stage-coach in America.

The stage is attacked and Constance is wounded. Maida leaves her for dead and goes to impersonate her in England. Caryl Wilton, who knew Maida as a famous actress, meets her in some amateur theatricals in her new name at Hartleigh Hall.

He is passionately fond of her and to be often seen in her presence asks her to paint her portrait. She is a nephew of Sir Richard, to avoid seeing Wilton's admiration for the girl he thinks he loves, rides off and calls on his old nurse. He meets Mildred Thorpe. Lady Gladys a rival for Guy's affections takes steps to uncover Maida's past. Maida dismisses Wilton and becomes engaged to Guy at her enfeebled father's request.

CHAPTER XXVIII. When Mildred set out for her walk, she was met by Sir Richard Hartleigh, who met her half-sister Constance on a stage-coach in America.

The stage is attacked and Constance is wounded. Maida leaves her for dead and goes to impersonate her in England. Caryl Wilton, who knew Maida as a famous actress, meets her in some amateur theatricals in her new name at Hartleigh Hall.

He is passionately fond of her and to be often seen in her presence asks her to paint her portrait. She is a nephew of Sir Richard, to avoid seeing Wilton's admiration for the girl he thinks he loves, rides off and calls on his old nurse. He meets Mildred Thorpe. Lady Gladys a rival for Guy's affections takes steps to uncover Maida's past. Maida dismisses Wilton and becomes engaged to Guy at her enfeebled father's request.

CHAPTER XXVII. When Mildred set out for her walk, she was met by Sir Richard Hartleigh, who met her half-sister Constance on a stage-coach in America.

The stage is attacked and Constance is wounded. Maida leaves her for dead and goes to impersonate her in England. Caryl Wilton, who knew Maida as a famous actress, meets her in some amateur theatricals in her new name at Hartleigh Hall.

He is passionately fond of her and to be often seen in her presence asks her to paint her portrait. She is a nephew of Sir Richard, to avoid seeing Wilton's admiration for the girl he thinks he loves, rides off and calls on his old nurse. He meets Mildred Thorpe. Lady Gladys a rival for Guy's affections takes steps to uncover Maida's past. Maida dismisses Wilton and becomes engaged to Guy at her enfeebled father's request.

CHAPTER XXVIII. When Mildred set out for her walk, she was met by Sir Richard Hartleigh, who met her half-sister Constance on a stage-coach in America.

The stage is attacked and Constance is wounded. Maida leaves her for dead and goes to impersonate her in England. Caryl Wilton, who knew Maida as a famous actress, meets her in some amateur theatricals in her new name at Hartleigh Hall.

He is passionately fond of her and to be often seen in her presence asks her to paint her portrait. She is a nephew of Sir Richard, to avoid seeing Wilton's admiration for the girl he thinks he loves, rides off and calls on his old nurse. He meets Mildred Thorpe. Lady Gladys a rival for Guy's affections takes steps to uncover Maida's past. Maida dismisses Wilton and becomes engaged to Guy at her enfeebled father's request.

CHAPTER XXVII. When Mildred set out for her walk, she was met by Sir Richard Hartleigh, who met her half-sister Constance on a stage-coach in America.

The stage is attacked and Constance is wounded. Maida leaves her for dead and goes to impersonate her in England. Caryl Wilton, who knew Maida as a famous actress, meets her in some amateur theatricals in her new name at Hartleigh Hall.

He is passionately fond of her and to be often seen in her presence asks her to paint her portrait. She is a nephew of Sir Richard, to avoid seeing Wilton's admiration for the girl he thinks he loves, rides off and calls on his old nurse. He meets Mildred Thorpe. Lady Gladys a rival for Guy's affections takes steps to uncover Maida's past. Maida dismisses Wilton and becomes engaged to Guy at her enfeebled father's request.

CHAPTER XXVIII. When Mildred set out for her walk, she was met by Sir Richard Hartleigh, who met her half-sister Constance on a stage-coach in America.

The stage is attacked and Constance is wounded. Maida leaves her for dead and goes to impersonate her in England. Caryl Wilton, who knew Maida as a famous actress, meets her in some amateur theatricals in her new name at Hartleigh Hall.

He is passionately fond of her and to be often seen in her presence asks her to paint her portrait. She is a nephew of Sir Richard, to avoid seeing Wilton's admiration for the girl he thinks he loves, rides off and calls on his old nurse. He meets Mildred Thorpe. Lady Gladys a rival for Guy's affections takes steps to uncover Maida's past. Maida dismisses Wilton and becomes engaged to Guy at her enfeebled father's request.

CHAPTER XXVII. When Mildred set out for her walk, she was met by Sir Richard Hartleigh, who met her half-sister Constance on a stage-coach in America.

The stage is attacked and Constance is wounded. Maida leaves her for dead and goes to impersonate her in England. Caryl Wilton, who knew Maida as a famous actress, meets her in some amateur theatricals in her new name at Hartleigh Hall.

He is passionately fond of her and to be often seen in her presence asks her to paint her portrait. She is a nephew of Sir Richard, to avoid seeing Wilton's admiration for the girl he thinks he loves, rides off and calls on his old nurse. He meets Mildred Thorpe. Lady Gladys a rival for Guy's affections takes steps to uncover Maida's past. Maida dismisses Wilton and becomes engaged to Guy at her enfeebled father's request.

CHAPTER XXVIII. When Mildred set out for her walk, she was met by Sir Richard Hartleigh, who met her half-sister Constance on a stage-coach in America.

The stage is attacked and Constance is wounded. Maida leaves her for dead and goes to impersonate her in England. Caryl Wilton, who knew Maida as a famous actress, meets her in some amateur theatricals in her new name at Hartleigh Hall.

He is passionately fond of her and to be often seen in her presence asks her to paint her portrait. She is a nephew of Sir Richard, to avoid seeing Wilton's admiration for the girl he thinks he loves, rides off and calls on his old nurse. He meets Mildred Thorpe. Lady Gladys a rival for Guy's affections takes steps to uncover Maida's past. Maida dismisses Wilton and becomes engaged to Guy at her enfeebled father's request.