Having taken dinner, they resumed their ourney to Doakt wn, but as snow was still falling and travelling heavy, they made comparatively slow progress, and at nightfall were still several miles from their destination. Still, they pushed on until some time after five o'clock when Crocker, especially, was so much exhausted that he could go no further, Robinson being also very tired. Amongst the other hardships of their journey they had crossed both the Dungarvon and Bartholemew rivers by wading.

They lay down in the snow, and Robinson soon feel asleep. He awakened about midnight and found that Crocker was not beside him. Questioned by a representative of the Canadian Gazette, Mr. Miller replied that the enthusiasm all over the country was intense and that the loyal demonstrations could not have been exceeded. He was very much impressed with the magnificent milit ary display at Toronto when between 10,000 and 12,000 Ontario volunteers paraded before the Royal party. The review, too, Me Miller remarked, was very fine. In the matter of decoration, he thought Ottawn easily came first; anything to equal the electrical illuminations of the Parliamen and Departmental buildings he had neve seen. The disappointment in Montreal over the abandonment of the reception (in conse queuce of the death of President McKinley) was very keen. Mr. Miller was struck with the evidence of prosperity and progress which he noticed wherever he travelled (after an absence five years) in Canada. The cities afforded abundant evidence of substantial advance ment in every direction, and everyone with whom he conversed bore testimony to the generally presperous state of the Dominion He gave it as his opinion that direct and very solid benefits would accrue to Canada as the result of the Royal visit. As a home for thrifty and energetic settlers no portion of the empire, Mr. Miller thought, offered more attractive field than Canada. Person ally, he was particularly interested in New Brunswick, but every province of th Dominion, from the Atlantic to the Pacific possessed undoubted attractions. anticipated a largely increased emigration all parts of Canada next year.

After having it carefully analyzed, we can state that Asthmalene contains no opium. morphine, chloroform or ether. Very truly vours, REV. DR. MORRIS WECHSLER.

Avon Springs, N. Y., Feb. 1, 1901. R. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE Co. Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderul effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York, I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the first of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her Asthmalas disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms. I feel that I can consistently recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this distressing disease.

Yours respectfully, O. D. PHELPS, M. D. DR. TAFT BROS.' MEDICINE Co. Gentlemen: I was troubled with Asthma for 22 years. I have tried numerous trial bottle. I found relief at once. About the Beaver.

A Miramichi contributor to Rod and Gun rites very interestingly of the beaver. He Johnston at once responded. The beaver is really a sort of portable oulp mill, grinding up most any kind of wood that comes his way. I once measured white birch tree, 22 inches through, cut down by a beaver. A single beaver generally, if not always, amputates the tree, and when it comes down the whole family fall to and have a regular frolic with the bark and branches. A big beaver can bring down a fair sized saplin-say three inches through-in about two minutes, and a large tree in about an hour.

One of the queerest facts about the beaver is the rapidity with which his long, chisel shaped teeth recover from an injury. have known beavers to break their teeth in biting a trap, and when I caught them again 10 days afterward you couldn't see a sign of a break -the teeth had grown out to their former perfection in a short period. As compared with the otter or mink, the beaver is a very slow swimmer. His front legs hang by his sides, and he uses only his webbed hind feet for purposes of swimming. It is easy to capture one in a cance if you can find him in shoal water. He is a most determined fighter, but clumsy and easy handle. If he could get hold of you with his teeth, he would almost take a leg off, so you want to watch him sharply. The place to grab him is by the tail.

The ability of a beaver to remain under water for a long time is really not so tough problem as it looks. When the lake or pond is frozen over a beaver will come the under surface of the ice and expel breath, so that it will form a wide, flat bubble. The air, coming in contact with the ice and water, is purified, and the beaver breathes it again. This operation he can repeat several times. The otter and muskrat do the same thing.
