As Mr. Peter Archer's mail stage was coming to Chatham from Tracadie on Satnrday, driven by Mr Wm Gay and having on board also two women and a man as passengers, the whole outfit had a narrow escape. Near Burnt Church, the fire was burning in the vicinity of the road and the smoke was thick. There were alarming reports on Saturday night of damage on the Canada Eastern Railway. The station building at Loggieville; that at Chatham Junction, togeth r with the houses there were said to have been burned, also a lot of cattle gu rd., and sleepers in large quantities. It was true that the fires burned to and across the track in several places, and that some cordwood as well as standing trees all along the line were destroyed, but no buildings of the railway, and no houses near it were destroyed, A few dollars worth of sleepers were burned, and trains were, at times, delayed by the fires burning near the track.

An excited person in the west end Chatham gave an alarm on Saturday night, stating that either Mrs. Ellis' house, or Mr. Allison's, or Mr. Craig's house was on The electric light syren was sounded and the town fire bell rang, one of the steam fire engines, a hose reel and the ladder truck were sent out only to be met with the assurance that there was no fire.

Webster, there was no immediate necessity for precautions on the extensive and expensive scale suggested by some who over-estimated the danger, put on half a dozen men to watch the progress of the fires near the town through Saturday night, with a view of giving a general alarm should necessity require,

> The people of Douglasfield made a good and successful fight against the fire. It came down upon them from the direction of Barnaby River on Saturday, destroying fences and hay crops in its progress, as well as intervening forest growth and running over the barren lands. The Douglastield peop'e went at it on Sunday morning in a very determined manner, and continued their efforts through Sunday and Sunday night and up to noon on Monday, when they had it under control, preventing it from crossing the Johnston road, which was the means of arresting its further progress.

Daul. Desmond's house and barn on Barnaby River road, together with some farm implements and machinery, fences and parts of crops were destroyed and it is vait that seven sheep were also burned in Desmond's barn.

The steamer St. Nicholas, with about five hundred feet of town hose, was sent to the wharf opposite to Mr. Fisher'e residence, but fortunately her services were not needed there, as the burning was very largely on the rear of the farm, where there was a barn. This was in danger, but it was saved by the exertions of Mr. Fisher and his farm help and others who went to his assistance. He lost, how ever, fencing, which he values at $200 to $300. He also had a fine row of large tree which bordered and gave shelter and an attractive sylvan appearance to the road leading to the rear of the farm, destroyed, This is a loss which cannot be repaired.
