mile, for a medal. In order to give competitors the falles opportunity to participate in the differen events, the time for m.king entries was left open until 2 p.m. on Monday. The com mittee provided a number of things for contestants which are usually furnished by competitors themselves and, with exception of the tug of war, all the entries were free. None of the four or five bands whose play ing can almost be heard at Bushville when they practice at their local headquarters, put in an entry. It is said that they took the ground that they ought to be engaged and paid to play, without doing so as competi

ors. The committee could not, of course, afford to pay the $100 or more which would have thus cost to hire them all, thought the $50 they offered as prizes would induce them to assist the public in having pleasant holiday, especially as all of them at times claim popular assistance as semi public organizations. It will be gratifying to the many who have heretofore admired the mus c of our several bacds, that they are all on so strong a financial footing that such a trifle as $50 is no inducement to them to

Only one raftsmen's boat put in an appearance, and that race did not fill. It has not transpired whether the other rafe boats on the river were engaged in their usual daily work, or whether the $30 offered in this competition, with free entry, was not worth their notice. The fact remains that the old time vim and enterprise and readiness to try conclusions with each other was lacking amongst those who were expected, as in other years, to fill this race, and it went The quarterly meeting of the Presbytery by default.
