The War.

The war news of the past week has been of a sensational kind in some respects, but unreliable in its most interesting features. The desire of correspondents who are representing the press near points where active hostilities are expected seem to entertain the idea that it is their duty to give their respective papers something in the way of news in return for the large expense involved in maintaining them "at anese precarious.

Serious fighting was reported from the north last Friday morning by General Kuropatkin. The Russians apparently thought too little of the advance of the Japanese up the valley of the Ai, the tributary forded by them on the day of the battle Yalu. Near the headwaters of the Ai a sharp action was fought on the preceding Tuesday. The Russians occupied Saimatsza, a town some 60 miles east of Liaoyang. The Japanese fell upon them in force-Kuropatkin speaks of the battle being between a Japanese brigade and a Russian detachment-and drove them out with a loss of over a hundred killed and wounded. This movement is probably a sort of notice served upon the Russian commander-in-chief that if he sends his army down toward Port Arthur he may be caught in a trap from the north.

In this action General Kuroki's army and Japanese recently landed at Takushan acted together. These movements may be, as the Russians profess to believe, mere feints to keep General Kuropatkin from making any effort to relieve the pressure on Port Arthur. They look more like preliminary operations, as in the case of the Yalu River and Kinchow, to clear the front and flanks preparatory to an assault in force upon Liaoyang-if Kuropatkin is not already withdrawn from that place. Up to last Saturday there was no authentic news regarding the situation at Port Arthur, although there were renewed but improbable rumors of fighting around the fortress. One despatch from St. Petersburg said that all preparations had been completed for a sortie of the fleet, simultaneously with a dash of the Vladivostok squadron. It is realized that some ships would be lost, butand then follows the usual declarations of a fight to the death so long as some damage could be inflicted upon the Japanese fleet.

A London Times despatch from St. Petersburg, via Paris, declares that the entrance to Vladivostok harbor has been mined by the Japanese, and that Admiral Skrydloff is devoting his time to preparing the fortress for possible attack.

The active work of Admiral Togo's vessels around the northern part of the Liaotung Peninsula, as reported by the Russians themselves, would indicate that Port Arthur harbor is still "corked" to large vessels Otherwise it is inconceivable that the Russian fleet would remain in ignominious inactivity at this critical moment in the history of the "Gibraltar of the East.

Monday's news shows that the Japanese are making free use of their naval forces along the shores of the Liaotung peninsula. The lets descriptive of S. John and advertis squadron in the Gulf of Pechili is blockading Newchwang and patrolling the tercentenary and old home week ing the coast to the southward. The Manchurian railway runs along have been sent to every newspaper office the shore there and Admiral Togo reports that the other day one of his ships bombarded a railway train near Kaichow and forced it to + turn

In the Corean Gulf the Japanese navy is still active, and it is from this region that the news comes of a disaster to the Yashima, a firstclass battleship, which is alleged to have gone ashore. For over two weeks the report has come in at intervals and we have had no official marked copies to the office of the tour at denial. There seems to be no sufficient reason for risking the big association. The Montreal Star has Japanese fighting vessels in anything less important than a battle with already had a special article on the sub the Port Arthur squadron.

A London Times cable of Monday says that ammunition is very scarce. There must also be a great many sick and wounded in the illustrated by cuts obtained from the hospitals. Stoessel's story that only 700 were killed and wounded in association. The New England papers the fighting at Kinchow is shown to be utterly untrue. The Japanese have also taken up the matter and it. officially report that they buried 704 Russians on the field. The prolikely that many patives of New Brunsportion of killed to wounded is seldom more than one to three, and it is wick who have made their homes there safe to estimate that among the troubles of the garrison of Port Arthur will take the opportunity presented by the not the least is the care of over two thousand wounded, many of them excursions to return to their native place terribly injured by bursting shells.
