There is much favorable comment on the permanent improvement made in some of the Chatham sidewalks during the summer, and also in the driveway portions of many High Mass (with a sermon appropriate to of the streets. The abandonment of the eldtime practice of laying down deal sidewalks and crossings is to be commended. It was a very wasteful practice, for renewals had to be made every four or five years, nvolving the cost of new deals and also of the labor of putting them down. The eidewalks now being made are permanent. The alleged gutters-sometimes from a foot to two or more feet deep, and which were spanned by plank bridges in front of every resident's doorway and yard-bave been graded up by filling in er, where necessary, the street has been graded down. The removal of the unsightly bridges, which served to collect all the loose and light debris that was blowing about, has greatly improved the appearance of the streets that have been cleared of them and, to that extent, rid the town of one of its well earned reproaches. The new sidewalks | Perl Edison, have not in all cases received their finishing touches, and require to have their surfaces evened up here and there, but they are so much better than the old deal ones that they give great satisfaction, especially when the ratepayer, at all events, realises that they are permanent and, therefore, far more economical that those they have replaced.
