less. Carelessness is often a species of selfishness. Once it was a privilege to press a lover's kiss on the lips of a wife at the door when leaving in the morning: again as a warm greeting that always marked the home-coming at night.

And one morning the man forgot the caress, and lost himself in business. And a shadow fell on the romance, and the woman wept. She tried to be brave and sensible. She tried to laugh at the silly fear that he did not care for her. She assured herself a hundred times that it was such a little thing, and that it was natural for him to forget, and that it was unreasonable for her to expect the joy of the honeymoon through life. She wiped away her tears, and resolved to hide her grief and be kind, loving and patient.

And the man never knew. Domestic neglect is not always confined to lack of food and clothing. Cruelty does not always take the form of physical abuse. When men learn to think, when they remember that the little attentions often mark the difference between joy and sorrow in a woman's life, there will be more real happiness in the world.
