

TOO LITTLE BLOOD.

Is the Cause of Most of the Misery in Everyday Life—Improve the Blood and Disease Will Not Exist.

Among the many thousands who testify to the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a blood and nerve tonic is Miss Mary Jackson, Normal, Ont., who says: "I have used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and have derived such great benefit from them that I consider it my duty to let others know their worth. For upwards of three years I suffered from anaemia, and grew so weak that I could scarcely walk about the house. I had no color in my face, my lips and gums were bloodless, and all my energy was gone from my head, and fell away in weight until I weighed only ninety-four pounds. I doctored a great deal, but it did not seem to do me any good. I was then advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and before I had taken them ten days I felt better and my people could see a change in me. I continued using the pills for some weeks and am now in the very best of health. Every depressing symptom has passed away and I have gained fourteen pounds in weight. I think there is no medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I strongly recommend them to all weak and ailing girls."

Miss Jackson's experience should bring hope to all the weak, ailing girls and women. What those pills have done for her they will do for others. Every dose adds tone and vigor to the blood and nerves, brings a glow of health to sallow cheeks, a sparkle to the eyes and a ruby redness to pallid lips. No other medicine has done so much to bring comfort and health to weak girls and women. If you are ailing give the pills a fair trial and new health and strength will be yours. Do not accept any pink colored substitute for the genuine pills always have the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" printed on the wrapper around every box. Sold by medicine dealers everywhere, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CONDENSED EGGS!

In Germany they make condensed eggs! The superfluous water is removed and sugar is added. The condensed eggs are put up in a market in hermetically sealed boxes, one pound being contained in about fifteen eggs. This article finds a good market in South Africa, but during the present egg famine might be imported into this country with more or less profit.

THE BLOOM OF HEALTH.

Little children always need careful attention—but they do not need strong drugs when they are ailing. It comes they should not be subjected to insensibility to the so-called "soothing" medicines, nor should they be given strong nauseous, griping purgatives. The best medicine in the world for such troubles as colic, sour stomach, indigestion, constipation, diarrhoea, worms, colds, simple fevers and teething troubles is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. If your little ones suffer from any of these troubles give them the Tablets and see how quickly they will bring back the bloom of health. Give the little ones an occasional dose of the Tablets and you will keep them well. Mrs. Robt. Hanna, Elgin, Ont., has proved the truth of these indications and says: "I fed my baby with the Tablets the best remedy for teething and teething troubles." The Tablets cost 25 cents a box, and may be had from druggists or by mail from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

In Japan archers test their arrows by balancing them on the nails of the second and third fingers of the left hand and rapidly twisting them by the feathered end with the fingers of the right. If the arrow makes a whirling sound it is crooked and must be straightened.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one cure for that terrible disease known as Catarrh. Catarrh is the medical name for that chronic inflammation of the bladder which is so common. Catarrh is a constitutional disease, requiring constitutional treatment. The Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous membranes of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing that which she often fails to do. So much faith in its curative powers that they offer a reward of $100 for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SLIGHTLY PARADOXICAL.

"Will you please insert this obituary notice?" writes a correspondent to the editor of a leading daily paper. "I make bold to ask it, because I know the deceased had many friends who'd be glad to hear of his death."

There was no reply. "Woman," remarked Mr. Goseling, "is Heaven's best gift to man, but whether it means a married woman or not, I am not so certain. Now that I'm really a bachelor, there is a limit that any reasonable woman ought to observe. Not that my wife is not as reasonable as any other married woman, mind you, for she is. But there are times when accuracy makes men doubt the strict accuracy of the time-honored maxim I have quoted."

"Now, for instance, the other day I was doing something or other in the house, like a man has a right to do on his own premises, and just as men sometimes do, I put my finger where I had no business to put it, and hit it with the hammer."

"Well," said he, "to my knowledge my wife was sewing by the window as the other side of the room. 'I'll bet I'm the biggest idiot in creation.'"

"All of which I had a perfect right to say, but my wife looks up from her work, and says she—"

"William," says she, "don't you know enough about the ethics of gambling to know that you have no right to bet on a certainty?"

"That's what she said, under the circumstances, what on earth could I say but nothing, and that's what I said."

OR, THE MISSING WILL

"Nothing," replied Philip, loftily, "I had thrashed a fellow this morning, that's all."

"Had you? I dare say. What other poor child have you been bullying?"

"He was a little bigger than you, said Philip, with a scornful glance over his shoulder."

"I like that. As if any fellow of my size wouldn't scorn to touch a kid like you. Go indoors, my dear, and ask your mamma for vinegar and brown paper."

With such amiable and polite observations the lady made a life-long acquaintance. They walk round each other with contemptuous glances and growls, and utter one or two trials snarls and a display of teeth, come either to a pitched battle or gracious tail-wagging."

In this case, luckily for Philip, the wagging was the result. He was introduced to the brown cob and allowed to mount it, the stranger taking Philip's boat and sculling about round. Knives were produced and compared, and when the victor deemed it time to say, "Who are you, and what's your father?"

"I'm Claude Medway, and my father's Sir Arthur Medway," replied the lad. "Are you the miller's son? What's your name?"

Philip colored before replying. Only that morning in school at catechism he had given his name as Philip Randall, and been dumb when pointed and repeatedly told to give only the Christian name. Until that moment, that name had never been strange to him, and he was his, his, his, and his name in one.

After school there was a fight in the playground in consequence of a frequent repetition of the usher's name. "But Randall is your surname."

It was considered a good fight, and traditions of it still linger in Cleave Grammar School. "Blood was spilt on both sides, and how it would have fared with Philip against his older and stronger adversary, but for the untimely appearance of the headmaster, who, with a consequent hasty flight of both contending parties, it is impossible to say."

Perhaps Philip was not very sorry for the interruption, when he walked home with the comfortable consciousness of having given "that good brute Brown" a good thrashing, before he was himself pounced upon by the headmaster, who, with a consequent hasty flight of both contending parties, it is impossible to say."

"How much?" asked Claude, thinking that all three names belonged to the same family. "You a queer little beggar, name and all. You a queer little boy in Latin? Do they give you Latin at your school? I suppose they are all ends at this."

"My name's Philip Randall, and Mr. Meade's the miller, is my father," he replied defiantly to Claude's question.

"Oh! Why, a day-boy that lives in the town."

"Then we are all ends," returned Philip, cheerfully, "and I ain't out of Deleah yet. I say, lend us that knife, Medway."

"I'm going to Eton next term," said Claude handing him the knife. "Where's that?" asked Philip, indifferently going up to the window frame of the best parlor to try the knife upon it.

"Well! you are a duffer!" muttered Claude, revolted at Philip's indifference, and turning away to re-examine the mill.

Philip, in the meantime, was absorbed in cutting his initials on the name, and the windows being open, the wind blew the paper into the air, and the miller's eyes fell upon the name of Philip Randall, and he started.

"The boy is mine, Sir Arthur," said Mr. Meade's voice. "He was left by his own flesh and blood, and already started for the works when I took him and bred him for my own."

"No doubt you are attached to the child, Meade, and of course it would be a hard pull to give him up—"

"I can't give him up, the miller broke in, with an agitated voice; "he's mine, he's all I've got. I've bred him up so far, and he's more to me than I can't give him up, Sir Arthur."

"If you are indeed attached to the child—"

"I am, I am," Meade interposed. "You surely would not stand in his light," continued Sir Arthur gravely, "consider the advantages you refuse for him."

"I have considered them, Sir Arthur," replied the miller, wiping his hot brow. "But money isn't everything, sir. The boy looks to me as a father, I've taught him so, and somehow I've done that much for him. I've cared for him from his eyes, and I mean to save and scrape for him, and I'll bring him up to be a gentleman, please God—" he could say no more in the fullness of his heart.

Sir Arthur smiled, and looked silently at the rough man in his floury miller's clothes, whose chest was heaving with strong feeling, while the words brole gaspily from him.

"What, then, is the matter?" asked Philip, who had been leaning against the door.

"I'm going to Eton next term," said Claude, handing him the knife. "Where's that?" asked Philip, indifferently going up to the window frame of the best parlor to try the knife upon it.

the stocking she was mending and looking reproachfully across at her husband. "There, Meade, I will say this for all the men-folk I ever came across, you're the very worst for putting any understanding into. Not but you've your good points, and have been a middling success in business."

"Well, there, Martha, can't say what sort of a wife you've been, for I haven't had a many wives to try you, you see," the miller replied, "but I'll do the best I can for you with your jam, I do. Anybody else think the world depended upon your jam."

"The whole world may depend upon my jam," retorted Mrs. Meade. "Any lady in the land might walk into my kitchen to-morrow morning and throw all the jam I've got and the butter on her, and it'd be jolly well sold for a good price."

Matthew Meade did not stop to doubt the probability of high-born ladies wishing to throw jam across and the discussion of it has brought out the fact that Mrs. Adams' case is not an isolated one, that right in Toronto there are people who, suffering from the most dreaded and fatal of Kidney Diseases, have found a positive and permanent cure in DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

One of the most striking cases that has been brought to light is that of Mrs. Fred. Philip of Eglinton, who writes: "I have been suffering from Bright's Disease and was in a most dangerous state. She was in two city hospitals, Grace and the General Hospital, but both places without a hope for the future."

In an interview Mrs. Philip spoke of her terrible trouble and gave unstinted praise to DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

"I was sick for six months," she said, "before taking DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS. During that time I was six weeks in Grace Hospital and two months in the General Hospital. I was told in both places that nothing more could be done for me. I started taking DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS in April and am still using them. They have done me a world of good. The doctors all say I am well and I am now doing all my own work just the same as I was before I was sick."

The talk these cases has caused has also served to show how general the use of DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS has become, and how many of the cases of Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, Dropsy, and all the other results of diseased Kidneys. In fact, cases by DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS can be cured by the hundred, but a case in which they have failed to cure has yet to be reported.

NEW SENSATION IN MEDICAL WORLD. Collingwood Bright's Disease Cure Brings to Light Others Equally Wonderful.

Mrs. Fred. Philip of Eglinton Tells of Her Remarkable Experience.

Discharged From Two Toronto Hospitals—Dodd's Kidney Pills Brought Back Her Health.

Toronto, Feb. 8.—(Special.)—The report from Collingwood of the wonderful cure of Mrs. Thomas Adams of Bright's Disease by Dodd's Kidney Pills has aroused great interest here and the discussion of it has brought out the fact that Mrs. Adams' case is not an isolated one, that right in Toronto there are people who, suffering from the most dreaded and fatal of Kidney Diseases, have found a positive and permanent cure in DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

In fact, cases by DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS can be cured by the hundred, but a case in which they have failed to cure has yet to be reported.

"I was sick for six months," she said, "before taking DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS. During that time I was six weeks in Grace Hospital and two months in the General Hospital. I was told in both places that nothing more could be done for me. I started taking DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS in April and am still using them. They have done me a world of good. The doctors all say I am well and I am now doing all my own work just the same as I was before I was sick."

The talk these cases has caused has also served to show how general the use of DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS has become, and how many of the cases of Bright's Disease, Rheumatism, Dropsy, and all the other results of diseased Kidneys.
