To this the P. M. consented and the poor unfortunate window-breakers will have a short respite.

THE HOP.—It was opened in fine style with the exception of a slight casualty. One of the officers strayed away from his partner, and it was some time before a meeting took place again.

We do not know whether the law provides for the carrying only of special kinds of dangerous weapons. At a ball seems a curious place for people to go armed, no matter whether the weapon be a revolver or a half rusty spur.

Some of the gents were padded with rags, some puffed out with conceit, and some looked very well indeed. The females! We did think women looked in a man for a little brains, some common sense, a pretty good figure and a rather nice face. Well maybe so they do, but that was not the case Thursday night in every case. The swells carried most of the prizes.

The ladies costumes were lovely—others were good enough everything considered. "White knitted shawls" as the Globe reporter would say, seemed the novelty of the evening.

Every one tried to dance, and not very many succeeded. Some people ought first to learn how to stand and walk straight, learn how to read and write, to have an ordinary share of civility, then go and kick away as much as they please. We pitied some of the ladies, and inwardly laughed at some others. A few we admired. The most plucked thing in the connexion was, every ugly female on the floor occasionally took a squint at us in the gallery. This was not what we wanted at all, what we did want was a glance from "those eyes of blue" or a glance from the "black beaded eye" of which Tennyson speaks. They never looked at us. We vowed revenge and behold how we take it!

There were about 500 present—about 300 of these being ladies. Much credit is due the managing committee for they did their part well. They were not responsible if nature gave big feet, or awkward carriage, or the tailor beastly fits. Such eye sores will be everywhere. The Hall was no exception while it was as good of the kind as Fredericton has seen for some years. The proceeds must have reached $90. All enjoyed themselves and thought they acted and looked splendid. So some did.

AQUATIC.

Mike McDade and Clinch.

The News reporter is like an angling worm. Cut him to pieces and yet the bits will squirm. He may be an authority on "kisses" and bad English but when he gets into aquatics he is beyond his depth. In almost all general matters he has two ears—and rumour say these are not very small—but in disputed questions he has but one. This is remarkable for its size, of course, and also for its peculiarity in hearing but one side of the story.

There are, however, two things Mickey can never get rid of—that mousetache and the habit of lying. He now would have people to believe his sub Clinch was challenged to Fredericton twice before. This is not true. St. Anne's Club prepared regattas at their own expense and gave an invitation to all outsiders. The Neptune came and brought every thing in the shape of oarsmen with them. But, Dr. D. got up without his medicine chest, though he did bring a very unsettled pulse. Wallace Ross brought his "tongue" and his "cheek" with him; and Clinch brought all his awkwardness. Clinch was never till now challenged, and on the first challenge he refuses to row. The challenge was quite fair; it was honorable on Mr. Allen's part to give Clinch the chance of retrieving his loss and his reputation. Mr. Allen was not afraid to risk his Clinch who has not now nor ever had any boating reputation to lose should not have been afraid to accept the challenge.

St. Ann's have decided to accept no challenges from the Neptunes. They do not know what time the race might come off. The doctors' pulse, and Rosses, stop watch, Clinches (cold) hands, the state of the weather, and other matters might put the thing in a fizzle.

Mr. Allen considering all this will not row,—considering that instead of Mr. Clinch accepting his challenge, he issues on behalf of the Neptunes one himself. But Fredericton will furnish an opponent, one Thomas Coward an amateur, against whom Clinch can splash away as much as he likes. Coward is an enterprising amateur.

The interest on those stakes will be considerable before Clinch accepts Allen's Challenge.—REP.

WEST END ITEMS.

A terrible conflict. Last evening the nocturnal perambulators of West End were astonished at the spectacle presented to their view at the gas lamp head of King Street, at first—

"Night, sable goddess! from her ebon throne, In rayless majesty now stretches forth Her leaden sceptre o'er a slumbering world."

When suddenly a pointed sheet of fire shot upwards in the gloomy recesses of the lamp shedding an almost supernatural glow over all surrounding objects. Then came alternate brilliancy and gloom indicative of the fierce struggle going on within, lasting for about five minutes, after which it was plainly perceptible that the light was waning, until after spasmodic efforts for supremacy to all appearances, the conflict ceased, and the light went out probably to renew its strength for the next night.

Yesterday your correspondent had the honor of viewing the famous colt of which so much has been said, belonging to John Hanlon the (H)orseman on exhibition for the past few days. We found the herbivorous quadruped, apparently oblivious to all around him, engaged in the laudible attempt of trying to chew up his halter. This could not be tolerated for an instant, and bracing his ponderous pedal appendages firmly, John pulled the rope from his capacious throat. We rather expected to see the rest of him come up too, but were informed by the proprietor that such occurrences were very common. The colt it is believed, stands 13 hands high, though John has never dared to put a hand to him, and has possibly many good points which might be discoverable by a veterinary authority, but as John says, he "keeps them well to himself."

"the policy of prohibition in this city, we have to say that, the traffic has fallen off very largely. And again the Hon. S. L. Carleton says, "The sale of liquor has been banished to the lowest streets of the city. The law in prohibiting the sale of liquor has taken from it its only claim to respectability and has outlawed it." These men cannot surely be all wrong; and if we consider their position in relation to the subject of which they treat, we must conclude that their statements are likely to be more consistent with fact than those of a Fredericton liquor dealer.

I cannot conclude without some reference to "Liquor Dealer's" remarks upon two well-known temperance men. Both are, if they deem it necessary, well able to defend themselves. But that the champion of this legitimate and honorable traffic should, so soon in the campaign, be driven in defence of his position and business, to personalities, betrays at once his bankruptcy of manliness and candor, and his poverty of argument in defence of that business, which he is proud to acknowledge never brings to his conscience the sting of shame.

Reply to Liquor Dealer. To the Editor of the Star.

Sir,—In your issue of the 24th inst., appeared a letter referring to the coming vote on the Temperance Bill. The writer claims to be a "Liquor Dealer," and being such, we may consistently hold that he utters the sentiments of his fellow dealers. I shall not here refer to the manner in which he has presented his views, but content myself with saying, for the encouragement of his friends, that he has certainly not "made the best of a bad cause." The meekness with which he asserts his readiness to vote for "a fair bill against intemperance" is scarcely compatible with the boldness of his other statements. But the admission is important; first, that he considers the present bill unfair; and secondly, he implicitly admits that the business he seeks to defend is an evil, requiring to be condemned and punished by law. But if this evil is to continue until the men, who by its existence have so richly and so politically grown rich and powerful, support "a fair bill against intemperance," it will exist for ever. If not, will your correspondent inform the public at what future hour in the history of the liquor trade will its supporters and defenders, having through its tender and humanizing influences risen to a higher philanthropy, approve of or submit for the approval of the people "a fair bill against intemperance?" An unprejudiced public, as well as temperance men, know what in the opinion of liquor dealers would be a "fair bill"—a bill that would loosen every restraint, and level every barrier against their business, and place upon the unfortunate drinker that odium and disgrace which even now the law imputes to the trade.

He says, "this bill will be mischievous in its every operation." That sir, is a sweeping declaration, yet made without a shadow of proof being given to convince us of its truth.

The wish is father to the thought." And, "No man e'er felt the halter draw With good opinion of the law."

Such a statement coming from the source it does, without modification or proof, reveals its author as a man of unbounded presumption (or ignorance) and who estimates by the standard of self, the intelligence and judgment of his fellow citizens.

Perhaps he intends his reference to the Maine law as proof that the Canada Act will also fail. He declares that law a failure; but evidently desires to avoid discussion of that point by anticipating contradiction from the platform. He bases his statement upon personal knowledge. With all respect for his knowledge and opinion, let us compare them with those of men, whom all must admit, are as competent to form a correct judgment of the working of that law as a Fredericton liquor dealer. The late Horace Greeley after making the matter a special subject of investigation, says, "the pretence that as much liquor is sold in Maine now as in former years is impudently false." Let that suffice for the State,—now let us consider his particular reference to the City of Portland. In disproof of his statement that liquor is sold there "in almost every house," here is the testimony of all the prominent clergy of that city in 1872.

"We say without hesitation that the trade in intoxicating liquors has been greatly reduced by it. In this city the quantity now sold is but a fraction of what we remember the sales 'to have been.'" The Mayor and four ex-Mayors united in saying "that "As the result of the adoption of the policy of prohibition in this city, we have to say that, the traffic has fallen off very largely. And again the Hon. S. L. Carleton says, "The sale of liquor has been banished to the lowest streets of the city. The law in prohibiting the sale of liquor has taken from it its only claim to respectability and has outlawed it." These men cannot surely be all wrong; and if we consider their position in relation to the subject of which they treat, we must conclude that their statements are likely to be more consistent with fact than those of a Fredericton liquor dealer.

I cannot conclude without some reference to "Liquor Dealer's" remarks upon two well-known temperance men. Both are, if they deem it necessary, well able to defend themselves. But that the champion of this legitimate and honorable traffic should, so soon in the campaign, be driven in defence of his position and business, to personalities, betrays at once his bankruptcy of manliness and candor, and his poverty of argument in defence of that business, which he is proud to acknowledge never brings to his conscience the sting of shame.

Turkish Preparations for War.—The Afghans in the East.

LONDON, Oct. 25. A Vienna correspondent says if the latest news be true, affairs near Constantinople are more and more assuming the same semi-hostile phase as before the meeting of the Berlin Congress. The Turkish troops have been moved into the positions vacated by the Russians, and earthworks are being repaired and armed before Constantinople and Gallipoli. The Turks are arranging to increase their forces and are summoning half-pay officers to active duty. A special committee for defence of the capital has been formed at Seraskierate.

BOMBAY, Oct. 25. The organization of the Quetial column is approaching completion, and it will have six months' supplies by the 31st. The difficulties in regard to the forage and water continue.

Accounts differ as to the tone of the Amoor's reply,—some alleging it to be polite and others defiant. All agree however, that its substance is unsatisfactory.

BERLIN, Oct. 25. The return of the Russians towards Constantinople was only commenced after the Porte had rejected the draft of the new treaty demanded by Russia.

Cardinal Cullen was taken suddenly ill yesterday afternoon and died about 4 o'clock. He had been in delicate health ever since his return from the Conclave at Rome last February. On Wednesday he complained of pains in his chest; on Thursday morning his malady was pronounced serious, but not dangerous. Suddenly he began to sink, and passed away without pain. Dr. McCade, Coadjutor Bishop, is likely to succeed him. The Cardinal leaves a large fortune. The Catholic citizens of Dublin will wear mourning until the Month's Mind.

The Crown authorities have appointed a lawyer to investigate the affairs of the Glasgow Bank. The investigation will extend back to 1857.

A serious remonstrance has been sent to the Vatican against the attitude of the Ultramontanes in the Reichstag. It is reported that the Pope will induce the Deputies to modify their conduct.
