PRINCE NAPOLEON.

THE TROUBLE IN THE WAY OF
MARRYING HIM OFF.

The idea of the marriage of the Princess Thyra of Denmark, to the young Napoleon, according to a correspondent, was first broached at Windsor, where it found a warm advocate in the Princess of Wales, who was charmed at the prospect of the future companionship of her charming sister. Albert Edward, too, was in favor, and the united influence of the royal pair overcame any opposition ever existing at the Russian court where the Bonapartes have always found sympathizers. All, then, that seemed wanting was the agreement of the Spanish king and of the lady.
The personal appearance of the suitor settled the latter question at the first interview. It is true that he is two years her junior, but what are two years in the balance against first love and a possible throne some time hence? As to the papa, he too, gave in to political considerations, and was all ready to make another marriage investment—a kind of speculation into which he has gone deeply and been uncommonly successful, when we reflect that out of his six children one will reign over his faithful Danes, George has been more or less permanently settled among the Hellenes, the Princess Dagmar will be empress of all the Russias, and the Princess Alexandria queen of England. The connection, for the heir of the Bonapartes, was, then, the most desirable, and the eventuality of his return to France did not seem an immense risk, so that an invitation was extended to the young gentleman, who was on his way to visit some of his Swedish relatives. He came quite naturally, for Copenhagen is on the direct line to Stockholm, was most cordially received by the population as well as by the court, pleased fair Thyra, and after a short stay went north, promising to stop on his return, when the whole party would go to England, continue the acquaintance and sign the marriage contract. So far everything had gone on merrily, but suddenly there was a hitch in the proceedings.
The prince did not renew his visit, and although the family, according to agreement, crossed the channel, he still remains at Arenburg, all of which is asserted to be the work of M. Rouher, the great medicine man of the Bonapartist party, who, like Victor Hugo among the radicals, will not tolerate any interference with his functions of spiritual director of French imperialism. The empress and Fleury knew that he would give them trouble, and would play the part of a wicked enchanter who had been omitted from the list of guests at the Christening; but they hoped to keep their project secret until it was too late to do mischief. Alas! they forgot that newspaper reporters are indiscreet.
Rouher found out all about it, said never a word for weeks, and then came down upon the contracting parties with the simple phrase:
"How is the young couple to live?"
They must keep up an establishment in harmony with their position. Six horses at least are necessary in the stables. The prince must have an equerry, a secretary and a valet de chambre.
The princess a lady of honor. There must be a town house and a villa.
Civilized man cannot do without a cook, and his imperial highness cannot black his own boots any more than milady can lace her own stays.

The following shocking story comes from Weldon, N. C.:

"A few days ago an Italian, calling himself Felix Bernichi, came to this town with a big black bear, which he exhibited on the streets. The animal was trained, and afforded entertainment for men and boys. It danced, turned summersaults, stood on its head, and performed all the usual tricks.
As it was inclined to be ferocious at times, its master kept a heavy muzzle on it as a safeguard, and never upon any occasion took it
