TEMPERANCE COLUMN.

Contributed by the I. O. G. T. All lodges, and others interested in temperance work, are earnestly solicited to contribute for this column.

"Let all who love our Order and desire its progress—who love our Order and desire its maintenance—who would extend a knowledge of our beautiful organization, and perpetuate its principles, which aim to promote fraternity, to unite men and women in acts of benevolence and incite them to a generous emulation for the good of all mankind, that our Charity may be co-extensive with the universe, winning by gentle influence and example the erring and unfortunate victims of the tyrant alcohol to a place in our inner sanctuary, where sweet Peace sits enthroned, and Purity has an abiding place, and Love is the guiding star, unite in a determination to sustain and support this Temperance Column."

INTEMPERANCE.

Noah did the best and the worst thing for the world. He built an ark for the deluge of water, but introduced a deluge against which the human race has ever since been trying to build an ark—the deluge of drunkenness.

Inebriation having entered the world has not retreated. Abigail, the fair and heroic wife who saved the flocks of Nabal her husband, from confiscation by invaders, goes home at night and finds him so intoxicated she cannot tell him the story of his narrow escape.

While we must confess that some of the ancient arts have been lost, the Christian era is superior to all others in the bad eminence of whiskey, rum and gin. The modern drink is a hundred-fold worse than the ancient drink.

Drunkness is the greatest evil of this nation, and it takes no logical process to prove that a drunken nation cannot long be a free nation. I call your attention to the fact that drunkenness is not subsiding, but that it is on an onward march and it is a double quick.

There are thousands of people born with a thirst for strong drink—a fact too often ignored. Along some ancestral lines there runs the rivers of temptation.

From the multitude of those who have the evil habit born with them, the army is being augmented. And I am sorry to say that a great many of the drug stores are abetting this evil, and alcohol is sold under the name of bitters.

Why is a horse the most curious feeder in the world? Because he eats best when he has not a bit in his mouth.

PULEX IRRITANS, M.D.

"A surgeon I am known to be, With fame commensurate; My talent is phlebotomy, My skill is simply great."

"My name is Pulex Irritans; I treat the skin and hide; I live and thrive in many lands, And, as a rule, I ride."

"With noble ladies I have danced— The dance is not the fair. The maids, but are of birth enhanced Are dainty everywhere."

"A horse possesses not my strength, As I can prove with ease. I leap a hundred times my length; Just woe be it, if you please."

"If you have as vivid a remembrance of that unhappy occasion as I have you will recall that we were out riding, that you challenged me for a race, that I said that hearts would be the stake, that you accepted and that I won. That I won in a gallop is literally true."

"Then he's not a friend to either of us, for he clearly meant me to understand that you had spoken too lightly."

"Don't you know, dear, that Flashy has long wanted to place a hold on you? You don't mean it! Poor fellow! Perhaps he didn't mean to mislead me after all."

"Oh, yes, he did. But just please keep in mind that I won in a gallop and if you attempt to repudiate I'll post you as a welsker."

A little whippersnapper of an ass happened to meet with a bore, had a mind to bearch with him, and so said: "Aw, chapple, how'dy do, how'dy do?"

"The bore, somewhat nettled by this familiarity, but perceiving a chance to tell his favorite story over again, took the ass by the lapel of his coat and related a series of personal adventures which lasted full an hour."

"Moral—Only an ass would say 'How'dy do' to a bore.—Baltimore News."

"They tell a good story of a local golfing enthusiast, who never so happily as when wandering over the links, had gone down town to supper at the Hollenden after an exciting afternoon's sport, and attracted much attention by his decidedly striking golf garb."

"Tennis!" "No, golf!" indignantly cried the sporting youth on the rear seat. He thought the conductor was alluding to his new suit.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Couldn't Effect a Sale The Baker—I have here the most excellent silver polish. The Lady of the House—Don't need it. I haven't any silver."

"Well, then, it will take grease spots out of wall paper." "Haven't any wall paper." "Well, it will make oil paintings look like new."

"Haven't got any oil paintings." "Then it will renew the curl in feathers." "Haven't got any feathers." "Well, then, a little taken internally will make you feel as if you had some of these things. Good day!"—Texas Siftings.

"There is one thing," said the heavy man of the theatrical company, "that I have to be attended to." "What is it?" asked the stage manager. "You remember the scene in which I pledged the princess' health in this crystal goblet of foaming wine?"

"Yes." "Well, you can do one of three things. You can make that cold weaker, put some sugar in it, or else get some man who isn't in danger of making a wry face to play the part."—Washington Star.

Confidential Friend (to young wife)—Your husband must have the best of tempers; you have been more than an hour dressing to go out with him, and he has not called out once to ask if you are ready.

Young Wife—Oh, I always hide his gloves, cigar case, and spectacles before I commence dressing, then, when I am dressed, I find them for him, and he apologizes for having kept me waiting. It's a very effective plan, my dear, and I recommend it as a peace-maker.—New York Tribune.

Little Horatio—Pa, what is a critic? Walker—Farr (the eminent tragedian)—A man who doesn't know a good thing when he sees it, my son.—Punch
