Poetry.

OPEN THE DOOR.

Open the door, let in the air;
The winds are sweet and the flowers are fair,
Joy is abroad in the world to-day;
If our door is wide open it may come this way—

Open the door.

Open the door, let in the sun;
He hath a smile for every one;
He hath made of the raindrops gold and gems,
He may change our tears to diadems—

Open the door.

Open the door of the soul, let in Strong pure thoughts which shall banish sin;
They will grow and bloom with a grace divine,
And their fruit shall be sweeter than that of the vine.

Open the door.

Open the door of the heart, let in Sympathy sweet for stranger and kin;
It will make the halls of the heart so fair
That angels may enter unaware—

Open the door.

"WHORT FUR?"

We can't do withart the sodjers, though they drops art nar an' then;
We must 'ave 'ar fightin' men,
Though they stands up and is shot in some Gord-fursiken spot,
Sime is 'appens nar and then.

When chaps aswts yer, whort's the yoose?

Whort's the sense?

Whort fur?

Yer can tell 'em it's their country, and

them sodjers dies fur 'er

And agen,

Glory be ter all the dead as ever died fer

'er!

Theer's the doctors; tikes their chawnces

when the fever's spreadin' far;

Risk o' life it ain't no bar.

And theer ain't no banners flyin' when they cops it and lies dyin',

Nor no medal nor no star.

When chaps aswts yer whort's the sense?

Whort's the yoose?

Fur why?

Sye the work they did were noble, though it meant they 'ad ter die,

Sort they are

Knows the work they does is wuth it, though it means they 'as ter die.

Them lead-workers, them wort's finished in the 'oly cause of lead

And a little daily bread,

When they tike the wige you're givin' an'

they dies ter make a livin',

Who's the better fur those dead?

Yer mye awsk it—whort's the yoose?

Whort's the sence!

Whort fur?

Sye the died ter soot the fancy of a man-nyfector—

When all's said,

Died ter put a glize on chiner for a man-nyfector.

THE SAXONS.

We sing the fame of the Saxon name,
And the spell of its world-wide power,
Of its triumphs vast in the glorious past
And the might of the rising hour;

And our bosoms glow for we proudly know,
With the flag of Right unfurled,
That the strength and skill of the Saxon will

Is bound to rule the world:

And we glory not in the empty thought
That the Saxon arm is strong,
Not alone to know tho' 'tis surely so,
That the seas to her belong.

But this our pride, with Wrong defied,
And the sin-cloud backward hurled,
That the word of God, our triumph rod,
Is bound to rule the world.

In days of yore from the Saxons shore
Our sea-born fathers came,
They conquered then by the might of men,
And sword and spear and name;

But to us 'tis given by the voice of Heaven,
With the peace flag far unfurled,
In our union's might, by the power of Right,

To rule, 'neath god, the world.

In the olden time there were deeds sublime,

And dear-bought victories won;

For the hearts were true on the heaving blue

Or behind the fortress gun;

And they championed Right in their rising might

With their war-flags old unfurled;

Yea, Wrong went down 'neath the Saxon frown,

But its smiles shall rule the world.

And perchance of old if the truth be told,

There were brother hearts estranged;

But the wound is healed and the friendship sealed

As the years have upwards ranged,
Let the tale of wrong, now dead so long,
With the old war-flags be furled;

For a peace sublime in the coming time,
Is bound to rule the world.

Tis a mighty dower, this carth-wide power,

And a mighty task involves;
With our heart steel-true, let us hold in view
The might of our high resolves;
Let us stand for Right in our race's might,
With our fearless flag unfurled;
For the might of Love from God above
Is bound to rule the world.

PROHIBITION.

There's an evil, wide extending,
Broader, deeper than the sea,
Onward surging, ne'er diverging,
Heaping up iniquity;
'Tis the liquor blighting traffic,
Meriting our Christain ban,
Homes destroying, soul decoying,
Enemy of God and man.

Must we see our country deluged,
Inundating our fair land,
Amid weeping, thousands sweeping,
Dealing death on every hand.
By the vampire host who trample,
Every human right to duet,
Woe distilling, anguish filling,
Countless homes for greedy lust,

By the curse that boldly stalketh,
With effrontery obtrudes,
Homes assailing, grief entailing
Vile precursor of death feuds,
Serpent-like, insinuating,
Hiding out of sight its fangs,
While preparing, head uprearing,
Deals its victims deadly pangs.

Rum saloons, the dens that foster,
Blackest crime of every grade,
Vile consorting, there resorting,
Primed for deeds by drink betrayed;
Oh, the woe, the moral mildew,
Hidden there from public sight,
Darkly seething sin bequeathing,
Pestilential breasts to blight.

Yet they are protected, nourished,
By our Legislation Acts
License granting, thousands planting
Nurseries of crime and tax,
Wasting millions in the traffic,
That should go the world to bless.
Men uplifting, who are drifting
On the tide of recklessness.

Such the enemy we cherish,
Foe to all that's good and true,
Gospel hating, enervating,
Every effort good to do,
While our Christain churches slumber,
Shut their eyes and close their ears,
Unavailing, orphan's wailing,
Ruined homes and widow's tears.

Unto them the world is looking,
Wondering at their apathy,
Fervent preaching, earnest teaching,
Would do much our lands to free;
This their first incumbent duty,
To arouse the Christain world,
Loudly crying, "Souls are dying,"
Let the curse from earth be hurled.

Is there no redress, and must we
Wait in vain, from year to year,
Hope deferring, men demurring,
While poor victims disappear
Into drunkards' graves, by millions,
Unprepared to meet their God,
While law minions, air opinions,
Men are sinking 'neath the sod.

Were the trade in flesh habiliments,
Clothed in sinews as are men,
Penetrating, devastating,
As the liquor traffic can;
What a hue and cry would issue,
From the nation's potent mouth,
Men upraising, plans devising,
Lynching rife, from north to south.

In the people's hands is vested,
Power to break the galling chains,
That are binding, crushing, grinding,
Where the curse its power maintains,
Up, and nobly do your duty,
'Gainst the mighty strongholds hurl,
Evil routing by your voting,
Prohibition's flag unfurl.

Nothing short will save the nation,
To the winds all petty laws,
For each measure, wasting treasure,
Failure stamping every clause.
At the polls then show your colors,
Be consistent, do and dare,
Prohibition, the condition,
For such men your vote declare.

Let the pull be all together,
Long and strong, with efforts brave,
Earnest striving, strength deriving
From our God who rules to save;
Even now we see the dawning,
Of a bright and glorious day,
Hope infusing, joy diffusing,
Prohibition then will sway.

COOK'S SURE COUGH CURE.

A GOOD INDUCEMENT.—The Farm Journal is chock full of gumption and it has the largest circulation of any farm paper in the world. It is good everywhere. We offer it for a short time as a prize to advance-paying subscribers to the QUEENS COUNTY GAZETTE a year ahead and the Farm Journal five years, all for the price of our paper alone.

Husband—How do you like the view?
Wife (with ecstasy)—Oh, I am speechless!
Husband—I shall stay and build a house.

A Frightful Death.

HALIFAX, Aug. 8.—Joseph Inman of Charlottetown, met an awful death to-day. He was whipping his horses when he stumbled and fell, his head getting caught in the wagon wheels. The team moved and Inman was frightfully mangled.

1899 Moneton Woolen Mills 1899.

I wish to inform my customers and the public generally that I will have the pleasure of again calling on them with a full assortment of goods from the above Mills, consisting of:

YARNS, FLANNELS,
SHIRTINGS, BLANKETINGS,
