Married Control of the Statement of the State

In the course of calling over the panel the name of John Dever was called, but he was not in Court, and the Jury was made up without him, the last person called and sworn being Mr. Henry Fotherby. The twelve Jurymen (not one of whom had been objected to) were sworn, and had taken their seats, when Mr. Dever came in Court. Mr. Ritchie, counsel for the defence, then objected to the jury, saying that Mr. Dever ought to have been on it. The Attorney General objected at first to any change, but at only. length consented to substitute Mr. Dever for Mr. Fotherby, which was accordingly done, not. however, without considerable demur on the part of the jurors.

THE HON. SOLICITOR GENERAL opened the case. The prisoners were indicted under an Act passed at the last session of the Legislature, one count being for "attempting to do Robert Duncan Wilmot some serious bodily harm ;" and the other count being " for striking the said Robert Duncan Wilmot with a stone, or brick-bat, thereby manifesting a design to kill." Both of these acts under the law are felony, the first being hable to the punishment of imprisonment for a term not exceeding four years ; and the second liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding seven years. His Honor's address was calm and dignified. He explained the law to the jurors minutely ; he then quoted from authorities to show that the arch, or festoon, thrown across the street at York Point was a nuisance, which any one of Her Majesty's subjects had a right to remove, or even to out away,-that the mayor very properly attempted to remove it, in doing which he was violently assaulted, and his life endangered. He then proceeded to the examination of the witnesses.

R. D. WILMOT, Esq.-Is Mayor of St. John ; was so on the 12th day of July last. him out of that ;" while others said " no ; he's a watchman, don't injure him." Reand acted in that capacity. Was on South Market Wharf on the morning of that day, treated towards the Mayor, whom he met, and told the Mayor in a low voice it was about 10 o'clock, or nearly, heard shots in the direction of York Point; immediately foolish to attempt to take down the arch; Mr. Gilbert then said "the authorities shall went and told H. Gilbert, Esq., a Magistrate, and asked him to go with him to the spot. be obeyed." The Mayor then went towards the pole; the crowd were becoming vio-Went to the Police office expecting to find several policemen, as he had, on the previent, and making use of very violent language, The Mayer spoke to them calmly, ous day, given orders for them to be assembled there : found only one man, whom he but they cried "drive him off." Hagarty was then in front of the crowd. They then took with him. Walked faster than Mr. Gilbert; met Josiah Wetmore, Esq., one of the Aldermen; got him to accompany him; also met Nixon and another policeman began to push the Mayor towards the cellar; Hagarty had hold of him by his clothes, in Dock Street, and took them along. On arriving at York Point saw an arch ex- or was pressing his hands on his breast, which, he (witness) could not tell. Just as the Mayor was on the point of falling into the cellar, witness caught him and swung tending across the South end of Mill Street ; passed under it, went to a house and enhim round into the street; thinks that saved him; the words the crowd were then maquired of the people standing there who put it up, but got no definite answer. It was an inverted arch, supported on either side of the street by a pole : these poles were king use of were "give it to him," "drive him out of there," and "he'd better be sellprobably 16 or 17 feet high ; judged the centre of the arch to be about ten feet high. ing flour." Thought the cellar was six or seven feet deep ; did not see the other prisoners there. Had hard work to save himself. Saw men with bricks in their hands, Had heard of this arch having been erected before he heard the shots fired .-and saw one thrown. Got separated from the Mayor by the crowd, and did not see There was a crowd in the street, mostly on the sides of the street, many standing him again till all was over. At the time he seized the Mayor, he (witness) put out near the poles, and people scattered all along the street. Told the people the arch was his hands expecting to fall into the cellar, as he lost his balance saving the Mayor ; contrary to law, and must come down. One man said it was a shame he would allow but some one held him. The crowd then rushed past him, and afterwards seeing the the Orangemen to walk. Then told the crowd that he'd have the arch down, and Mayor's hat on the ground he took it up. and carried it to him; found him in Market then go and endeavour to prevent the Orangemen from walking. Then told Nixon, Square, and then saw that he had been beat, and that his head was bloody. The mob the policeman, to take down the arch ; he went to do so, but a crowd gathered around was very large and violent. him, and Nixon returned towards him (the Mayor) and said he had been resisted. Cross-examined by Mr. Ritchie .-- Was off duty on the morning of the 12th. Went Went himself to the pole on the west side of the street, and said it must come down. to see the procession, but was not with it. Saw it pass Market Square, and supposed The crowd made a rush towards him, saying it should not come down. The prisoner it to contain some hundreds of men. Saw three or four flags ; some of them very Hagarty was one of the foremost, and most violent of the crowd. They came on and large. One of them had a man on horseback (supposed it represented King William) pushed him. Hagarty was one of them, talking loud, and saving "it shant come down." on one side, and the Queen on the other. There was one Umon Jack. It was the As they pressed upon him very violent language was used, such as swearing, and first Orange procession he ever saw. Did not belong to the society himself, although " down with him," and " drive him out of that." He faced the mob, and they pushed he once was a member; it is several years since he left them. Saw a man on horsehim backward towards an open cellar; they appeared determined to push him off the platback in Market Square, but did not see him at the head of the procession, until after form into the cellar. They pressed him to the very brink, when Nixon caught him and they returned from Portland. Thinks that when the last of the procession left Coopflung him round past himself, where the crowd was not so dense. There was brick, er's Alley, the first were in Dock Street. Thought the shots were fired from stone, and rubbish in the bottom of the cellar; judged it to be eight or nine feet deep. pistols, and that they were fired in Mill Street. Did not hear more than two shots, Could not say positively whether the crowd pushed him merely by advancing in a and does not know by whom they were fired. Heard Mr. Wetmore first say the arch body, or whether the foremost laid hands on him. After he escaped the cellar, and got should be taken down. When Mr Gilbert came up saw him making way with his into the street, they commenced throwing missiles at hun. Did not see Hagarty hands. All the persons there appeared to be more or less excited, except the Mayor. then. Cannot identify the other prisoners. The faces of the people in the crowd Dees not think Mr. Gilbert was so much excited as the persons who composed were not familiar to him. Was struck in the side of the head by a stone, which mus the mob. Did not see Corchray or Hegan in the mob, although they might have have come from the crowd he had just emerged from. Others had stones in their hands been there and he (witness) not see them, there was so much confusion. Does not with which they struck him on the top and back parts of his head ; his hat was cut, he think any persons who were in the procession, or the spectators who accompanied was stunned, and nearly knocked down. Mesors. Wetmore and Gilbert were there them, were in the mob; thinks the spectators either went on with the procession or turned back when the shots were fired; met many of them coming down Dock they were the only Magistrates besides himself. Mr. James Gilbert and Mr. James N. Thain were also there. He was much hurt, when Mr. Frederic Coster came to Street. HARRY GILBERT, Esq.,-Is a Magistrate. Was called upon about 10 o'clock on his assistance, and got him away : came off down Dock Street, leaving the arch standing. as he had not force enough to take it down. Got his wounds dressed, and then went the morning of the 12th of July, by the Mayor, to accompany him to York Point . went there with the intent to see the leaders of the Orange procession, and endeato the barracks for the military. Cross examined by Mr. Ritchie,-Knew the prisoner Corchray previous to the vor to prevent the parties from coming into collision. The Mayor out-walked him, riot; did not see him in the crowd. Did not see Hegan in the crowd so as to identify and went ahead. Found a crowd at York Point ; supposed them to be about 200 him. Had heard of the arch about fifteen or twenty minutes before he heard the nersons. Passed under the wreath and did not observe it at first; then looked around shots fired. Had been told on the 11th of July, by Mr. Gallagher, a Magistrate, that the and saw it, and remarked to the Mayor that it had better be taken down. The Mayor Orangemen were going to walk, and that if they did walk there would be bloodshed. agreed with him, and issued his orders to the constables. Went forward to assist Saw the Orangemen walking on the morning of the 12th, in Prince William Street ; they the constables, as the crowd showed a disposition to resist; was struck, and a rush wore their scarfs, &c., and had a band of music with them, and banners flying. Judged was made to carry him towards an open cellar. Witness's son James was there, and remarked "we have been here long enough ;" replied " I think so too." Crossed over their number then to be from eighty to an hundred. There was not a great crowd following at that time, nor was the street occupied so as to prevent any one from passing to to the eastern side of the street; saw a boy strike a man, thinks it was the Mayor about his ordinary business. There was at that time twenty-one policemen in the city who was struck ; seized the boy, but the crowd rescued him. Saw the Mayor again with his face bloody, and upon his return to Market Square found his own face bloody, and he had given orders to the Captain to have as many of them as possible in Market his jaw hurt, and his hat cut. Saw a man in the crowd with a cartman's whip in his Square. Some time afterwards saw the Orange procession come out from Cooper's Alley ; their numbers had much increased, and they must then have numbered several hand, and thinks his head was ont with a blow from that whip. Had since ascertained that man was Hagerty. The mob said "this is our district and we'll defend it." hundreds. They had their bands, flags, &c., with them. Did not think at that time there were people in the country bad enough to shoot each other for wearing either Cannot identify the other two prisoers. Cross-examined by Mr Ritchie .- Had heard of the procession, and thought it possigreen or orange. Thought it possible there might be a breach of the peace, and had in consequence given orders to the police to be prepared. The procession and the crowd ble there might be a collision. When he arrived at York Point understood that the procession had just passed through. The people were very much excited. When of spectators were so numerous that they might possibly obstruct people from pasthe constable went to take down the wreath, saw Hagerty as one of the most active in sing to and from their ordinary occupations. Consulted with his legal advisers as resisting him. Saw no stones in the bands of the mob, nor any weapon among them to whether, as Chief Magistrate he had the power to prevent the procession, and the told him he had no right to interfere until there should be a breach of the peace. Did but the cartman's whip. endeavor to prevent the procession by pursuading some of the leaders. Saw no arms in the procession but a sword in the hands of the person who led on horseback. Did not THE CUBA EXPEDITION .- The Philadelphia North American says, in its comsee the procession pass through York Point-it had passed before he got there. Went ments on the Proclamation :-there immediately after hearing the shots. Thought it probable the crowd he found "Intelligence has reached us, from a reliable source, that a force numbering bethere had assembled in consequence of the procession. If all had passed off quietly tween five hundred and eight hundred men, has recently been assembled at Round he should not have gone there to pull down the arch. The crowd at York Point appear- Island, opposite Pascougala, under the command of a Colonel White, who figured ed composed chiefly of laboring men, and there were some women and children in the not long ago at Yucatan. It is said that the sum of $250,000 has been deposited in street. Before he got there he heard that a breach of the peace had been committed, Mobile, to promote this nefarious movement, the particular direction of which is not but did not know it by personal observation. Thought the centre of the arch so low yet distinctly ascertained, though its destination is supposed to be Cuba. Rendezthat high vehicles could not pass without lifting it. Could not say that it obstructed vous, with the view of enlisting men have been opened at Baltimore, Naw York, and Boston, as well as at Mobile and New Orleans." the street as much as the procession did.

MR. RITCHIE,-" Did it never occur to you that it was a strange law which empowered you to remove the lesser obstruction and not the larger?"

WITNESS,-"When I went to pull down the arch, I had determined to prevent the procession from coming back." Mr. Gilbert was considerably excited; heard him say "the authorities must be obeyed." Did not see any other person so much excited at the time. Can't say that was the cause of producing corresponding excitement in others. Did not think it made any difference, as the mob were determined to resist the destruction of the arch, and would have done so though all had kept perfectly cool. Was quite cool himself. Cannot say positively if hands were laid on him at first, or whether he was pushed by the onward pressure of the crowd ; but thinks that hands were laid on him. Mr. Gilbert's manner was excited, and his voice loud. The crowd* increased after the discussion began. Did not think there would have been any riot then, if the arch had not been interfered with. The whole affair was over in about six or seven minutes. The only precaution he took on account of the procession was to order out all the police. There were five or six policemen stationed in Dock Street. ATT. GENERAL .- I ask you, Mr. Collins, if you ever expressed an opinion on this Saw the cellar spoken of the evening after the riot, and again the next morning ; judged it to be eight or nine feet deep. Saw Hagarty in the riot, and he was very violent. Can't swear positively that it was he who made use of the expressions he (witness) had repeated. Saw the Orange procession on their return from Portland; some of them were then carrying guns. Saw that if he persisted in the attempt to take down the arch he would lose his life. There had been no contention between the police and the people previous to the attempt to pull down the arch. To the Solicitor General,-Mr. Gilbert was not excited until after the policeman had been resisted in the attempt to take down the rrch. Mr. Gallagher the Magistrate was not present during the riot,-he (the Mayor) was accompanied by two Magistrates

JOHN NIXON,-Is a policeman. On the morning of the 12th of July received orders to go on duty-it being his turn to be off duty-and to remain about Market Square. Heard a great noise up Dock Street, and there was a rush of people down the street. Went to Sharp's corner and from thence saw the arch ; the procession was passing under it; they were obliged to lower their flags as they passed. Saw a shower of stones fired on the procession from each side of the street, and then followed up Dock Street. Did not think a coach could pass under the arch. Saw that the crowd were not very well disposed, and seeing no other policemen there, turned back. Met the Mayor and Mr. Wetmore, was ordered to go with them, and did so; passed under the arch: there was a large crowd of people there; received orders from the Mayor to pull down the arch, and proceeded to do so. Went up to the pole on the west side of the street; it stood in a celiar, and was tied there. Took hold of it to take it down; there was a crowd in front of the pole, the prisoner Hagarty among them, who told witness to be off. Replied that it was the Mayor's orders the arch should come down ; Hagarty said "I don't care a damn for the Mayor ; we put it here, and we'll keep it here." The crowd then moved up saying "give it to him; clear
