

tion relating to the road to the man's house I think I have clearly proved to be true; but I also in my first communication said an individual close by where the above grant was received had applied for a sum of money to improve a road from his house through his own field to the public highway; this was part of my information which "A Lover of Truth" pronounced false and libellous. This is another proof of his ignorance, for it certainly cannot be libellous to say a man solicited help for any lawful purpose—it might be false, but it could not be libellous. But, sir, it is not false. Let any man look in the Sentinel of the 13th inst., and in the Bye-Road grants he will see £5 from James Savage's south-west boundary to William Forest's. This, sir, is the money which I spoke of having been applied for, and you see it has been granted, and I have lying before me, not only the name of the person who petitioned for it, but also the names of the persons who signed the petition, these when necessary I can produce, so that it cannot be said the money was given without being requested. With respect to a Bye-Road from James Savage's south-west boundary to William Forest's, there never was such a thing, (I have a rough sketch of the place at present). There is a lane in that place through William Forest's field, which has been travelled on for almost twenty years. Now, sir, this grant was made under a false impression, for our Members could not suppose that any man would be so mean as to beg a grant of the public money to improve any part of his farm, and as the grant was made for a bye-road and no bye-road being there, the grant must be cancelled; and if the people of Richmond let this affair pass them in silence, they are not made of the metal of which I think they are. But what must those people think of this person who calls himself "a Lover of Truth," and yet denies truth, and tells falsehoods? He may chuckle in his sleeve and say, "they do not know me as I used a fictitious signature;" but this consolation is not left him, poor fellow, for he had so much vanity as to boast that he was going to take the matter up, and do some great thing—yes, and a pretty hand he has made of it. But if he had never made those boasts they would find him out, for they are shrewd chaps these Richmonders. They know him well, and and I am told they call him Ourang Outang, an animal which some philosophers say is the link between the human and brute creation.

I think, Mr. Editor, I will now let my antagonist go for the present, reserving some hits for a future occasion; some may think I have given him too much, but it must be remembered he took it out of me; he may thank his ignorance and want of good manners for what he has got, for it must be remembered he talked of placing the lie to my communication, which he has not done, and I defy him to do it. But if he thinks he can stand another bout, he will find I am ready for him, and I have the conceit, though it may be vanity in me to say so, that I am more than a match for Baboon, Ourang, or any animal of the Forest race that may encounter me in this cause, and if he thinks otherwise, I have only to say to him,

"Come on Macduff,
And curst be he cries first enough."

I am, Sir,
Yours most respectfully,
AN ELECTOR.

Woodstock, 26th April, 1852.

[FOR THE CARLETON SENTINEL.]

Mr. Editor,—The controversy at present being carried on respecting a certain establishment, by way of courtesy called "The College," might be very properly termed "much ado about nothing." Certainly the only important feature in the discussion is the criminal waste of so much public money, when the salaries of public officers whose duties are onerous are shaved down to the lowest figure; and many of the servants of the public are laboring without any remuneration save a patriots approving conscience, in order to economize the public funds. In this view of the subject it undoubtedly becomes a question of a very grave character, whether nearly £3000 ought to be expended upon a notoriously useless and an equally notorious sectarian Institution. If this question does not very soon receive the marked attention of the Legislature of the Province a very substantial reason will have to be assigned. A writer in the last issue of the Sentinel very charitably throws upon a previous correspondent the courteous charges of being "illogical and ignorant," and all who wish to cast overboard this Pseudo Literary incubus are "designing demagogues interested in deception," and engaged in "insane and suicidal attempts"; hard names and abusive epithets are plenty with this writer and many others who think themselves very wise, and they almost invariably attend a cause that cannot be supported by arguments and reason. This very logical writer however says, "If any persons have been excluded from the College it has been those who from ignorance or misconception of its character have been led not to apply for admission to this Institution." This is quite logical!

Now, sir, to be serious, I would like to ask, has not this College from the beginning been a failure? Where are the talented or even educated men who have graduated within its walls? Of what benefit to the thousands of youths in our Province has it ever been? Has it not been from its very commencement an exclusive Institution? and is it not so now? Who are the five out of the fifteen in the Council who do not belong to the Episcopal Church? Are they not members of that council ex-officio? And is not the fact of their not belonging to the above church a mere circumstance? Are they not in the council in consequence of their civil position, not because they are dissenters? Who is the President of this liberal College Council? Is it a dissenting Minister? No, but the Bishop who warns the clergy more against honest Protestant dissent than against Roman Catholicism. For whom are the Divinity Scholarships? For dissenters? What is the tone of the College? Dissent, of course. Is it not positive dishonesty to talk about its not being Sectarian? If there be an honest desire to make it liberal and effective, remould it, select its Professors impartially,—proclaim it to the world that it has no possible connection with any church whatever. I believe, Mr. Editor, the time is coming when this will be the case, when things will be called by their proper names, and every class of people will understand their rights and will be prepared to maintain them, and when the blessing of a sound and liberal education will not have to be sought for by our youth beyond the bounds of their native Province.

Yours, &c.,
S. T.—G.
