[FOR THE CARLETON SENTINEL.]

MR. EDITOR,—At several public meetings which it has been my duty to attend as a School Trustee for this Parish, there has been much discussion as to the liability to Assessment for School purposes of non-resident landholders in School Districts. The general belief on this point I have found to be erroneous. It is right that it should be publicly known that non-resident Landholders are exempt from such assessment. That they should so be, was, I am informed, not the intention or expectation of many Members of the Legislature, who gave their assent to the new School Act; and I think it just and politic that such persons should be assessed. After a careful perusal of the School Act, I have however, reluctantly come to the conclusion, that by no right legal construction of the Act can non-resident proprietors of land in School districts be held liable to assessment; and in accordance with this view, the Trustees of Schools in this Parish have felt themselves bound at public meetings for School purposes, to decline receiving the votes of persons not residing in the districts in which such meetings have been held. Some dissatisfaction has resulted, the cause of which misconception has attributed to the Trustees. It is really to be found in the law, arduous and in obedience to which the Trustees are bound to act.

I may here observe, that the construction put by the Trustees on the Act in reference to the point now adverted to, has been confirmed by a gentleman, whose position ought to give the highest sanction to any opinion relative to Provincial laws in which he acquiesces. The rich man may unwisely satisfy himself at he can promote his interest by perpetuating the defect now pointed out in our School Law. Even if this defect were removed, errors and indications of the selfishness of some of our legislators might still remain in the Act, sufficient to justify an amendment almost tantamount to a repeal. Our Province much wanted a new School Law, but ought not to be misled by a law introduced by clumsy plagiarists, from enactments which adorn the Statute books of New England. Let us have the New England law in its purity,—not marred and blemished as we have it now. That law has been tried, and its efficacy proved: it has made New England men intelligent of truths obedient to teaching, which has given them noble freedom of mind and capacity for successful enterprise. It has done more. It has deterred them not second to any citizens of the world,—as lovers of their neighbors and lovers of God.

I am, Mr. Editor,
Your obedient servant,
EDWIN J. JACOB.
Woodstock, Nov. 3, 1852.

[FOR THE CARLETON SENTINEL.]

MR. EDITOR,—From your post as Sentinel, deem it your duty to watch over and guard the interest of the public generally, but more especially in this locality where your usefulness has hitherto been well supported. I would bring under your notice the shameful dangerous state which the rotten old Bridge over the Maduxnakik, in this village, now is; a bridge on the great road of communication leading from Head Quarters to Canada, which Her Majesty's Mails pass, and on which there is almost incessant passing of heavily-loaded teams and pedestrians, should be allowed to remain in such a dangerous state after year, is certainly disgraceful to this city and highly discredit to the Government. Some two or three years ago, the Supervisor of Great Roads from Woodstock to Aroostook—a man who had given universal satisfaction in bridge building and road-making, and whose especial duty and privilege it was to expend the grants of money upon the highway—prepared plans and specifications to have erected a good substantial wooden bridge over the Maduxnakik, to be built with the substantial manner—the woodwork to be of cedar, hackmatack and pine timber. Tenders were thereupon made to erect such a bridge for £500, and had he been allowed to do his duty, we would now have had a substantial and creditable structure that would have lasted twenty-five or thirty years; but unfortunately this supervisor on a recent occasion, in the exercise of his elective franchise, rendered himself totally unfit for the performance of this important duty; and two other gentlemen who had been more fortunate on that occasion, were some two years since, appointed Supervisors and Commissioners of the great road leading across Maduxnakik River, to build said bridge. Now, Sir, I do not mean to question the qualifications of these gentlemen as to bridge building—the one is a worker of iron and has crossed the bridge many a time, the other is an honest good farmer living some six or eight miles in the country. These gentlemen, the winter before the last, entered into contracts with a gentleman well skilled in mining, to furnish stones by the cord to build a stone bridge, towards which a grant of £250 was made by the Legislature in 1851, and another grant of £250 was made for the same purpose in 1852, also £50 in the hands of the supervisor was handed over by him to said sub-supervisors or Commissioners, making a total of £550, exceeding by £50 the amount required to have provided us with a substantial wooden bridge. Under the contract has been furnished two small piles of slate stone, probably enough to build up the backs of half a dozen chimneys—that is all that is apparent for the £550.

The above, Mr. Editor, is a simple statement of facts, and I call upon you to investigate this matter and have the public righted therein, which if you neglect or refuse to do, you will disoblige more than

ONE SUBSCRIBER.
