RULES FOR THE GUIDANCE OF MEMBERS.

No person shall be allowed to offer as his own, the property of another.

All Stock exhibited for premiums (Entires excepted, and which must have been owned at least one year by the competitor) must have been raised in the County; and all Stock exhibited that has not been raised by the competitor, must have been owned by him exclusively for not less than three months prior to the day of exhibition; and all Grain, Root Crops, or other article whatever exhibited, must have been grown or manufactured by the competitor, or directly under his superintendence, within the year in which such articles are exhibited; and all Manufactures shall be perfectly new.

No person shall be allowed to exhibit any animal in a two-fold capacity, nor receive more than one premium on animals or articles of the same kind or class.

Arrangements will be made on the ground for the safe keeping of all animals exhibited, and halsters must be furnished by the owners.

Animals and articles for exhibition must be entered with the Secretary not later than the Saturday previous to the day of the Show, who will present each competitor with a numbered card corresponding to the entry in his book, which must be attached to the articles when exhibited.

All animals and articles for exhibition must be on the ground by 10 o'clock, A. M., when a Committee will be in attendance to assign to each its proper place, where it must remain till the close of the Exhibition.

The Committee are requested to be on the ground on the morning of the Show, by nine o'clock for making the necessary arrangements. The exhibition will open at ten o'clock.

Competent Judges will be appointed on morning of the Show, who will be at liberty to withhold any premium, if the animal or article be deficient in merit.

Should any member violate the rules of the Society, he will exclude himself from receiving any premium.

No person shall be allowed to interfere with the Judges in the discharge of their duties, nor meddle with any animal or article exhibited, nor remain in the place where the Exhibition is held, unless at the request of the Judges.

By Order,
RUFUS SHAW, Secretary.
Wakefield, June 21, 1855.

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE.

THE Subscriber, while she gratefully acknowledges that a number of individuals have kindly and promptly responded to her request in paying their arrears for the "Carleton Sentinel" up to August, 1854, has to regret that many have paid no attention to the justice of her claims. She is not disposed to censure harshly—she can hardly think that her late husband had a single subscriber who would wish to wrong his widow or her fatherless children. She knows by experience that times are hard, and that it is difficult to realize money. But surely now that returns from a final settlement of all such arrears. They are small, it is true, but they would be of very great assistance in supporting her little family during the present trying season. She therefore most respectfully urges that all such arrears may be arranged on or before the 1st of August next, ensuing.

MR. PINGEON, at the "Sentinel Office," will give such information as may be necessary relative to the amounts which I claim.

English and Foreign.

The following extracts from private letters, recently received from the seat of war in the Crimea, may prove interesting to some of our readers. The first letter was written shortly after the commencement of the bombardment of Sebastopol, and gives a graphic notice of that event; the last contains the latest intelligence from the Black Sea:—Church Witness.

Agamemnon, before Sebastopol, April 11th.

 I am now writing very quietly in my cabin, while the air outside is reverberating to the thunder of the whole mass of artillery in and out of Sebastopol. The fleet is at anchor just out of shot range in a long line stretching across the bay; we can consequently almost trace the passage of the shot, and watch the effect with much interest. It is very difficult at this stage of the proceedings for mere lookers on to judge how it is really progressing; but to me it would certainly appear that the whole allied fire is fast obtaining the advantage, as while ours is brisk as ever, theirs appears to be sensibly diminishing. Their batteries too are evidently much knocked about; indeed, the boasted Malakoff and that on the Mamelon have scarcely returned a shot for some time, while we can distinctly see their mud sides every moment ploughed by the iron hail. As you may fancy, nothing can exceed the magnificence of the spectacle by night. Then it is that they take peculiar pleasure in discharging the enormously large 13-inch shell from mortars which never fail to excite astonishment, as if no possible form of defence could withstand them. Their appearance while on the passage is singular enough, from the little jet of fire projected from the fuze; but the bursting charge is more like a heavy clap of thunder than anything else I can readily think of. Set your imagination then to work and fancy several dozen shell in the air at the same instant, agreeably diversified by the rush and discharge of flights of great war rockets, while constantly goes on the by-play of musketry; imagine all this, and you will have some idea of the scene now nightly represented before Sebastopol. It unfortunately happened that Monday last, the first day of the bombardment, was obscured by heavy fog with rain, the first we have had for many weeks; it was consequently found impossible to make a move with the ships; but the next morning proving a little finer, I was roused at a very early hour by the thundering of the heavy chain cable as it descended into the locker close to my cabin. Arrived in the ward-room to breakfast, I found the whole English fleet performing a sort of war dance before the forts at the harbour's mouth, led off by Sir E. Lyons in the gigantic Royal Albert. This we continued the whole day, and I am sure that if the good people manning the batteries were not entirely blinded by prejudice, they must have heartily admired the spectacle of these great ships under steam alone moving about with the facility of the smallest river boat. The ships were anchored at night in their present position, and they have since been idly swinging to the constantly shifting wind, waiting patiently with everything prepared until the course of events may bring their services into requisition. Who can doubt that it is the unanimous wish of this great force to play their part in the reduction of our stubborn opponent. There is a terrible array of guns to receive us, but they would have to be in far greater numbers to daunt the gallant hearts who so earnestly desire to try their strength with them. It is more than probable that the final assault will be the signal to commence our part of the play.

The writer then proceeds to give in considerable
