

ing on seed when they lay their land down to grass, and we fear that some of them will, this year, be still less liberal, seeing that the price of seed is so high in the market.

Would it not be better, if your means will not allow you to lay down so much as you would like, to take a less amount and apply a full share of seed to what you do seed down, rather than to spread it thinly over a large territory?

At the present time, the prospect for the grass crop this year is very good. Although the past winter was very severe, there has been but very little grass winter killed, and as the spring thus far has been rather wet, grass has set well, and looks extremely promising. What disasters may happen to it cannot of course now be foretold.—but if nothing uncommon in the routine of the season should take place, we shall have a very good crop indeed, and a good crop of grass and hay will make a light crop of many other varieties of farm produce less felt than the reverse. Cut off the grass crop and we have to draw upon others to make out food for the subsistence of our cattle, and thus we often find ourselves short from an extra consumption of them, which would not have taken place had there been a full supply of forage.—Maine Farmer.

Miscellaneous.

A LESSON FOR WIVES.—The following touching, simple sorrowful memorial of his wife, was written by one of the greatest statesmen in England—Sir J. Mackintosh—in a private letter to a friend:—"She was a woman," he writes, "who, by tender management of my weakness, gradually corrected the most pernicious of them. She became prudent from affection; and though of the most generous nature, she was taught frugality and economy by her love for me. During the most critical period of my life, she preserved order in my affairs, from the care of which she relieved me. She gently reclaimed me from dissipation, she propped my weak and irresolute nature, she urged my indolence to all the exertions that have been useful and creditable to me, and she was perpetually at hand to admonish my heedlessness and improvidence. To her I owe whatever I shall be. In her solicitude for my interest, she never for a moment forgot my character. Her feelings were warm and impetuous, but she was placable, tender, and constant. Such was she whom I have lost; and I have lost her when a knowledge of her worth had refined my youthful love into friendship, before age had deprived it of much of its original ardour. I seek relief, and I find it, in the consolatory opinion that a benevolent wisdom inflicts the chastisement, as well as bestows the enjoyment of human life; that this dreary and wretched life is not the whole of man; that a being capable of such proficiency in science and virtue, is not like the beasts, that there is a dwelling place prepared for the spirits of the just; that the ways of God will yet be vindicated to man."

GENTLEMANLY CONDUCT.—Self-respect is the safest preventative against quarreling. The man who is sure of his position is the slowest to suspect another of any design to question it; and hence the art of avoiding altercations has generally been deemed one of the peculiar characteristics of the gentleman.—Never to seem afraid of being put upon, as the phrase is—never to argue the question merely lest people should think you can't argue it—never to fight simply for fear that lookers-on might think he was a coward—these are some of the maxims on which all men of superior minds act, habitually and unconsciously; and it is the habit which gives to such men that air of repose and self-possession, before which fools stand abashed, and dandies wax wild with envy.

PRIDE.—St. Augustine says. "That which first overcame man, is the last thing he overcomes."—Some sins comparatively die before us; but this hath life in it as long as we live. It is as the heart of all, the first living and the last dying; and hath this advantage, that whereas other sins are fomented by one another this feeds on virtues and graces. This hydra, as one head of it is cut off another rises up; it will secretly cleave to the best actions and prey upon them; and therefore there is much need that we continually watch, and fight, and pray against it.

A CAT STORY.—One day the cook in a monastery, when he laid the dinner, found one brother's portion of meat missing. He supposed that he had miscalculated, made good the deficiency, and thought of it no more till the next day, when he had again too little at dinner time by one monk's commons. He suspected knavery, and resolved to watch for the thief. On the third day he was quite sure that he had his meat cut into right number of portions, about to dish up, when he was called off by a ring at the outer gate. When he came back there was again a monk's allowance gone. Next day he again paid special heed to his calculations, and, when he was on the point of dishing up, again there was a ring at the outside gate to draw him from the kitchen. He went no further than the outside of the kitchen door, when he saw that the cat jumped in at the window, and was out again in an instant with a piece of meat. Another day's watching showed that it was the cat also who, by leaping up at it, set the bell ringing with her paws, and thus having as she supposed, pulled the cook out of the kitchen made the coast clear for her own piratical proceedings. The monks then settled it in conclave that the cat should be left to earn for the remainder of her days double rations, while they spread abroad the story of her cunning. So they obtained many visitors, who paid money for good places from which to see the little comedy, and they grew the richer for the thief they had among them.—Dickens's Household Words.

DIRECTIONS FOR BECOMING UNHAPPY.—In the first place, if you want to be miserable, be selfish. Think all the time of yourself, and of your own things.—Don't care about anybody else. Have no feeling for any one but yourself. Never think of enjoying the satisfaction of seeing others happy; but the rather, if you see a smiling face, be jealous, least another should enjoy what you have not. Envy every one who is better off in any respect than yourself, think unkindly towards them, and speak slightly of them. Be constantly afraid lest some one should encroach upon your rights; be watchful against it, and if any one comes near your things snap at him like a mad dog. Contend earnestly for everything that is your own, though it may not be worth a pin; for your "rights" are just as much concerned as if it were a pound of gold.—Never yield a point. Be very sensitive, and take everything that is said to you in playfulness in the most serious manner. Be jealous of your friends, lest they should not think enough of you. And if at any time they should seem to neglect you, put the worst construction upon it you can.

FAÇETIE.

An English nobleman once sent his stupid son to Rowland Hill, in order that he might be educated, accompanied with a note, in which the father said of his hopeful son, "I am confident he has talents, but they are hidden in a napkin." The eccentric but shrewd divine kept the youth a few weeks under his care, and then sent him back to his father with the following laconic message. "I have shaken the napkin at all corners, and found nothing in it."

Mr. Smith sat reading the paper at home in the morning before leaving for his store, when the boy of a neighbour entered with the usual way:—"Mr. Smith, pappy wants to borrow your Sun a few minutes this morning."

"Tell your pappy," said Mr. Smith, "that I am using my Sun, but" (drawing a penny from his pocket, and handing it to the boy.) "here's a penny which I am not using just now, with which he can buy one. Tell him he needn't put himself out of the way to return it to-day. I will send for it when I want it, the same as I frequently have to do for my paper."

"Pompey," said a good-natured gentleman to his colored man, "I did not know till to-day that you had been whipped last week."

"Didn't you, massa?" replied Pompey, "why I knew it in the time of it."

"Would you like me to give you a sovereign?" asked a little boy of a gentleman he met in the street.

"To be sure I would," was the reply.

"Very well, then," said the boy, "do unto others as you would others should do unto you."

A Quaker, it is said, took a remarkably fine-looking horse to market for sale, and asked a high price for it. The animal attracted much notice, a bargain was soon struck, the money paid, and a receipt given. The buyer was examining his purchase with scrutinizing admiration, when the Quaker said,

"Well, friend, dost thou see any fault in him?"

"None whatever."

"Neither will he ever see any in thee," said the Quaker.

The man who was "torn by conflicting emotions" is now sewed up.

A good old Quaker lady, after listening to the extravagant yarns of a storekeeper as long as her patience would allow, said to him, "Friend, what a pity it is a sin to lie, when it seems so necessary in thy business."

Fanny Fern objects to men shedding tears; she says it is an infringement on woman's most valuable "water privileges."

VISITOR (to convict). "Well, my friend, what are you in for?"

PRISONER. "Me? why, I'm in for getting out if I can."

"My lad," said a lady to a boy carrying newspapers, "are you the mail boy?" "You doesn't think I'ze a female boy, duz ye?"

Sheridan being asked what wine he liked best, replied, "The wine of other people."

READ THE CERTIFICATE OF A REGULAR PRACTITIONER.—This may certify that I have used Perry Davis' Vegetable Pain Killer in numerous cases, and believe it to be a very valuable medicine. I have prescribed it extensively in bowel complaint, particularly for children, and it is in my opinion superior to any preparation I have ever used for the relief of those diseases. When given to children, I have always combined it with the syrup of gum arabic, say ten drops to a teaspoonful of the syrup, well mixed. Others have mixed it with milk and molasses, equal parts. A. HUNTING, M.D.

PERRY DAVIS' PAIN KILLER, as an internal remedy, has no equal. In cases of cholera, summer complaint, dyspepsia, dysentery, and asthma, it will cure in one night, by taking it internally, and bathing with it freely. It is the best Liniment in America. Its action is like magic, when externally applied to bad sores, burns, scalds and sprains. For the sick headache and toothache, don't fail to try it. In short, it is a Pain Killer.

OXYGENATED BITTERS, a sure cure for Dyspepsia.—The history of this remarkable medicine, and its astonishing success in obstinate cases of DYSPEPSIA, ASTHMA, and GENERAL DEBILITY OF THE SYSTEM, places it among the most wonderful discoveries of modern science, and has given it a reputation far beyond any remedy known for these complaints, in all their various forms.

The Oxygenated Bitters contain nothing which can intoxicate; and the medicine has no similarity whatever to the various alcoholic mixtures disguised as "Bitters," being purely a medicinal compound, in which are combined the most valuable remedial agents, and a peculiar oxygenated property, hitherto unknown, but highly efficacious in all complaints arising from weakness and derangement, or prostration of the stomach and system generally. It is a mild and agreeable tonic, removing all disagreeable symptoms, and assisting nature in her efforts to restore the impaired powers of the system.

Extract of a Letter from PROF. HAYES, ENCLOSING A CERTIFICATE.

Messrs. FELLOWS & Co., Gents.: I made the examination of the Worm Lozenges, as you desired, and found only the product mentioned in your note, which was of course expected, but which was not the less interesting to me. You have made an excellent choice of ingredients, and the preparation is a tempting one, and must meet with a large sale from its merits. I enclose a document which you may publish. Truly yours, A. A. HAYES.

Certificate.—I have analyzed the Worm Lozenges prepared by Messrs. FELLOWS & Co., and find that they are free from Mercury, and other metallic or mineral matter. These Lozenges are skillfully compounded, pleasant to the taste, safe, yet sure and effective in their action.

Respectfully, A. A. HAYES, M.D., Assayer to State of Mass.

Fellows' Worm Lozenges are sold by all Apothecaries.

LIFE PILLS AND PHOENIX BITTERS.

Sedentary habits, begetting morbid fancies in the brain, are the seeds of diseases in the chest, the heart, the liver and the kidneys. Here the germination of ills deemed incurable by the faculty commences. The sufferer is bled, and drastic medicines resorted to, which invariably make the patient worse. A resort to a few doses of the Moffat Pills, aided by the Phoenix Bitters, enable the patient to resume his usual business without confinement; and in a few days he will find his mind restored to its natural spring, whilst the lines of health will mantle his cheek.—Sold by W. B. MOFFAT, M.D., 335 Broadway, New York. W. T. BAIRD, Agent for the County of Carleton. A. P. RAYWOOD, Agent for Beulaton.

A GOOD COMPARISON.—The Rev. William Roulett, a well-known Methodist clergyman, residing at Naples, draws the following amusing but apt comparison between Dr. McLane's celebrated Vermifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., and a ferret:—"A ferret, when placed at the entrance of a rat-hole, enters the aperture, travels along the passage, seizes the rat, exterminates his existence, and draws the animal's defunct carcass to the light. And in like manner have I found Dr. McLane's American Vermifuge to operate upon worms, those deadly and dangerous tormentors of children. This remedy, like the ferret, enters the aperture of the mouth, travels down the gullet, hunts round the stomach, lays hold of the worms, shakes the life out of the reptiles, sweeps clean their den, and carries their carcasses clear out of the system. This, at least, has been the effect of the Vermifuge upon my children."

A neighbor of Mr. Roulett, Mr. John Briggs, adopts the simile of the revered certifier, thus both giving their most unequivocal approval of this great specific, after having witnessed its operation upon their own children. Let others try it, and be satisfied.

Purchasers will be careful to ask for Dr. McLane's Celebrated Vermifuge, manufactured by FLEMING BROS., of Pittsburgh, Pa. All other Vermifuges, in comparison, are worthless. Dr. McLane's genuine Vermifuge, is his Celebrated Liver Pills, can now be had at all respectable Drug stores. None genuine without the signature of FLEMING Bros.

IT IS SELDOM THAT WE FEEL CALLED upon to recommend any one of the numerous patent medicines which are advertised as infallible remedies for all diseases known to man, and we believe that but very few of them have any claims upon our attention. We have, however, heard so much in regard to the value of G. W. Stone's Vegetable Liquid Cathartic as a family medicine, that we deem it just to advise the afflicted to test its virtues.—Boston Journal.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS, IN SPITE OF the prejudices of medical martinetts, have found their way into the leading hospitals and dispensaries of Europe, and are now the established family medicine of all classes in the United States. Upon the stomach and liver, which propare and temper the blood, upon the organs which vitalize it in the process of respiration, and upon the excretory vessels, which discharge from the system the residuum not required for the purposes of nutrition, these pills operate in an almost miraculous manner, regulating, invigorating, cleansing, and fortifying the whole physique. In bilious disorders, dyspepsia, asthma, diarrhoea, dysentery, sick headache, constipation, general debility, and complaints peculiar to females, their effect is astonishing.
