AN OLD BUT GOOD POEM. Who shall judge a man from manners? Who shall know him by his dress? Paupers may be fit for princes, Princes fit for something less.

Crumpled shirt and dirty jacket May be lothe the golden ore Of the deepest thoughts and feelings-Satin vests could do no more. There are springs of crystal nectar Ever welling out of stone;

There are purple buds .nd g lden, Hidden crushed and overgrown; God, who counts by souls not dresses, Loves and prospers you and me, While he values thrones, the highest, But as pebbles in the sea.

Man upraised above his fellows,

Oft forgets his fellows then: Masters-rulers-lords-remember That your meanest hinds are men-Men by labor, men by feeling, Men by thought and men by frame, Claiming equal rights to sunshine In a man's ennobling name. There are foam-embroidered oceans, There are little weed-clad rills, There are feeble inch-high saplings, There are cedars on the hills; God, who counts by souls, not stations, Loves and prospers you and me; While he values thrones, the highest, But as pebbles in the sea.

THIE public do not require to be told that a mild, safe and reliable cathartic, in a liquid form, agreeable to the taste, and one which purges without violence, is a desideratum in medicine; this fact will be admitted by all. Such a discovery has been often attempted, but without success, until the introduction of the above-named remedy. No patent medicine ever met with such ready approval by physicians as this. Many regular practitioners are using it daily, all of whom have spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Persons, for the want of a better, have been obliged to resort to the use of those drastic, nauseous, and oftentimes injurious purgatives, such as castor oil, salts, senna, rhubarb, jallop, aloes, gamboge, &c., all of which cause more or less debility, and fail to accomplish the object for which they are taken; on the contrary, they often increase the difficulty, and render the patient less curable. None of these enter into the composition of this invaluable remedy. It is composed of barks, roots and seeds, the medical properties of which are exactly adapted to the cure of those complaints for which it is recommended. By a combination of those properties, the public were put in possession of the most valuable preparation ever produced. This medicine is not intended simply as a cathartic; its value as such is insignificant when compared with its power of purifying the blood from all humors, regulating the action of the bowels, curing Dyspepsia, restoring the appetite, producing a healthy action of the Liver, freeing the stomach from bile, and invigorating and strengthening the whole system. It is a certain cure for the Piles, and those suffering from that Pans, Butter Crocks, Preserve Jars, &c.; together with a AS just been opened by the subscriber in the complaint should give it a trial.
