

Desultory.

HAPPINESS.—"A happy childhood," says Isaac Taylor, in his "World of Mind," "is a precious inheritance, with which, as a fund, to begin trading in practical wisdom and active usefulness. It is a great thing only to have known by experience that tranquil and temperate happiness is actually attainable on earth; and we should think so, if we knew how many have pursued a needless course because, or chiefly because, they only learned to think of happiness as a chimera, and believed momentary gratifications to be the only substitute placed within the reach of man. Practical happiness is much of a thing thrown away that is not as it is; but it is the most likely to be secured, and overtaken, and enjoyed by those who already, and during a considerable period of their lives, have been happy. To have known nothing but misery is the most portentous condition under which human nature can start on its course."

Devotional feelings should be impressed as early as possible on the infant mind; and it is well observed that a child, to feel the full force of the idea of God, ought never to remember the time when he had no such idea. We should endeavor to impress his mind by connecting religion with a variety of sensible objects, with all the hours, and all that affects his young mind with wonder or delight; thus, by deep, strong, and permanent associations, we lay the best foundation for practical devotion in future life. He who has early been accustomed to see the Creator in the visible appearance around him, to feel His constant presence, and to lean upon His daily protection, though his religious ideas may be filled up with many errors, which his reason will ultimately refine away, have made large advances toward that habitual piety, without which religion can rarely regulate the conduct, and will never warm the heart."

LIFE OBJECTS.—An objectless life! What is it but a life of misery? No being can be happy while leading it. He who leads it involuntarily is to be commiserated. He who does it of choice is worthy to be despised. It is better far to wear out than to rust out. No amount of wealth can excuse a state of inertia, in a healthy human being, in a world of activities like this. Every one should do something. He should do it for the benefit of others, if not for himself.

But fortunate it is that idleness vindicates Nature's prescription of activity by the punishment it sure to bring upon the idler, such as a dyspeptic stomach, and all the other consequences of blood that is stagnant for lack of exercise, when it should be stimulating every organ, in its proper turn, to its legitimate functions in that system which has been truly pronounced fearfully and wonderfully made.

Let each one, then, have a life object! Without it and the activities it calls forth, he cannot expect to be either healthful or happy.

Certainly the hands and hair we ever saw of silvery whiteness, and the sweetest face had been sixty years in the family. And as for voices, of course we love the bird-like tones of the young; but then how do we compare with the utterance of age, tremulous and low, like the murmur of a half-forgotten tune?

A BUNDLE OF DEFINITIONS.—Cecily: A row by which the priesthood in some countries are wont to content themselves with the wives of other people.

Challenge: Calling upon a man who has hurt your feelings to give you satisfaction by shooting you through the body.

Ceremony: All that is considered necessary by many people in religion and friendship.

Charity: The only thing we can give away without losing it.

Blushing: A suffusion least seen in those who have most occasion for it.

Autobiography: Drawing a portrait of yourself with pen and ink, insuring an accurate likeness by carefully omitting all the bad features you have, and putting in all the good ones that you have not.

A species of moral and intellectual suicide, to which the act against so needlessly taking life should be rigorously applied.

TO CLEAN BLACK SILK.—Take an old kid glove, boil it in a pint of water for an hour. Then let it cool, and when cold, add a little more water, and sponge the silk with the liquid.

GRUBS IN THE BACKS OF CATTLE.—Put a red hot needle into the swelling far enough to kill the grub, but not to burn the flesh beyond; or press the grubs out with the hand, and crush them; or else they will grow into a fly, and sting the cattle again in the summer.

The English Admiral has discovered that Canton is situated on an island; one of the gun-boats has just made a passage around it. It is somewhat singular that this fact was never known before, and only goes to show how jealous these people are in giving any information of the internal affairs or of the formation of the country.

DR. MACKEY ON CANADA.—At a supper given to Dr. Mackay, in London, C. W., he thus expressed his opinion of Canada:

"If I were to express all I feel about Canada, it would indeed take a very long time. After a sojourn of nearly six months in the United States, it is delightful to find myself once more among my countrymen. I feel my share in the little I have hitherto known about Canada, an ignorance, long shared by thousands of my countrymen. To the British Government I do not wish to be disrespectful in anything I may say; but it is a thick-headed thing that does not deserve so magnificent a colony as it has. I hope that the Liberal Government, which is now in power, will open its eyes, and see what a splendid country you have on this side of the Atlantic. I hope the day is not far distant when Canada may send its own representatives to the House of Peers and Commons. I consider that you have more liberty here than on the other side; your government cannot go on ruling the country against the wishes of the mass of the people, as the United States can."

A NEW PROCESS OF EXTRACTING TEETH.—We yesterday witnessed the trial of a new process of extracting teeth, by which it was stated the operation would cause no pain. The trial was made before our college of Dental Surgery, and the operators were Drs. Harris and Arthur. It was certainly the most satisfactory trial of the kind we have ever witnessed. A number of teeth were extracted and the patients declared they received no pain, but experienced a numbing sensation, and the teeth were extracted with the greatest ease. This soothing is produced by passing a current of electricity through the tooth at the time of extracting. The patient grasps firmly in his hand one pole from an electro-magnetic machine, the other pole from the machine is attached to the tooth, and by this means a current of electricity is passed through the tooth and produces a local anæsthesia, and so avoids the use of chloroform or ether. The amount of current is adjusted to suit each patient so as not to produce an unpleasant sensation.—Baltimore Patriot.

COLONIAL VS. AMERICAN SPIRITS.—Mr. Langens drew attention, in the Assembly on Monday, to an example of the system of protection from which the Americans are profiting to our disadvantage. States built bottoms obtain British registers when becoming the property of British subjects. In colonial built vessels cannot obtain American registers when Americans buy them. The consequence is, that the American market is closed to Colonial ships, while the British market is open to Americans.—Canadian paper.

HONOURABLE.—The Journal contains the particulars of the late unfortunate of which male and female, by the name of Roderic, Honduras. All means to save the unfortunate prisoners having failed, at midnight on the 31st the whole Indian force was called out to assault their cradle—the cross—when it was determined that $4000 must be paid down for the female prisoners, and $15000 more for the males, or they must be led forth to execution. Thirty women, who had been violated by almost all the soldiers, and eleven men were then led forth, and their screams ringing in the ears of the English, who wished it possible to save them, were inhumanly killed off by a volley of musket balls. A portion of the Scotch and Irish Regiment has been sent to the scene of the action to punish the perpetrators.
