TO MRS. FISHER, On seeing her Drawing of the Child Jesus and His Virgin Mother, which she presented to the Catholic Pic Nis.

Your pencil has been here-Portrayed the Saviour dear, Whom all nations should revere And adore, and adore, Whom all nations should revere And adore.

And His Virgin Mother mild, Unspotted, undefiled, Meditating on her child, God and Man, God and Man, Meditating on her child, God and Man.

The God-Man, whom we adore, Who is blessed for evermore, Whom she in Bethlehem bore-See the child! see the child! Whom she in Bethlehem bore— See the child!

A Raphael might impart More glowing tints of art, Yet could not touch the heart More than you, more than you, Yet could not touch the heart More than you.

What's delineated here Must to Christian eyes appear, Though a mystery, yet clear And sublime, and sublime, Though a mystery, yet clear

Sceptics see it, and they wince; Reason fails them-can't convince: These inimitable tints Touch their hearts, touch their hearts, These inimitable tints Touch their hearts.

Thanks, lady, thanks to thee; You've a lesson given. We Must believe you charity Realize, realize, Must believe you charity

What we've here doth amply prove Emanations from above Illume your soul with love, Guide your hand, guide your hand, Illume your soul with love, Guide your pen.

Your pencil take again; Select some subject when This Man of grief, midst men Whom he'd save, whom he'd save, This Man of grief, midst men Whom he'd save,

Was lacerated, bound, With prickly thorns crowned,-As a felon, led around To their courts, to their courts, As a felon led around, To their courts.

Or portray the Lord, when He Was nailed to yonder tree, A world's Holocaust to be-Sin atone, sin atone, A world's Holocaust to be-Sin atone;

E'en the sun his light withdraws, Philosophers no cause Could assign, could assign, Philosophers no cause Could assign; Or depict Him, as He rose,

When reversed were Nature's laws,

When Satan and all those Who were the Saviour's foes, Did succumb, did succumb, Who were the Saviour's foes, Did succumb; Or give another view

Of His Virgin Mother, who Felt the sword of grief pierce through-Rend her heart, rend her heart, Felt the sword of grief pierce through-Rend her heart; Or describe Him when His friends

He has blessed, and then ascends, When jubilation rends Vaulted skies, vaulted skies, When jubilation rends Such subjects, and such views

Will whilst drawing them infuse, Thoughts of Him you'll ever choose To adore, to adore, Thoughts of Him you'll ever choose To adore.

When Faith and Hope you join-With Charity combine, Beatific bliss is thine Evermore, Evermore, Beatific bliss is thine

While these virtues you adorn, All worldly pomp you'll scorn, You'll Jesus feel new-born, In your soul, in your soul, You'll Jesus feel new-born. In your soul.
