BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

Reduction in Price.

As money is scarce, and times very dull, the subscriber finds it necessary to sell Goods at the smallest profit that will pay expenses; and, as he has a very large stock of English and American

Goods to arrive this Fall, and a large stock on hand, he is obliged to sell very low to dispose of them, so as to meet his payments; consequently, from the present time, Goods may be purchased at his store for a trifle over the cost; and, as he always keeps a first-rate article on hand, purchasers can be sure to get the worth of their money, and PROBABLY A LITTLE MORE.

Always on Hand:

Note Paper, Letter Paper, Foolscap ruled & plain;

Envelopes, Wax, Ink, Pens, Pencils, Slates; Mem-

Books, Ledgers, Journals, Day Books, Sets do. for a small business, very low; Folios, School Paper,

Fancy Note and Letter Papers; Envelopes and Note

Paper, silver-bordered, for weddings, with silver water to match; Red Waters, Music Paper, Music in sheet, half price; Schools Books of all descriptions.

Novels, bound and unbound; large assortment of Children's Toy Books; small Gilt Books for children; Dictionaries, Histories, Biographies; a large and very cheap assortment of Religious Books and Tracts; Bibles, Prayer Books, Hymn Books, Albums,

Poetry.

THE BIRTH OF A POET.

On a blue summer night,

When the stars were asleep,

Like gems of the deep,

In their own drowsy light;

While the new-moon lay,

On the green earth lay,

And all that came near it went scented away;

From a lone, woody place

There looked out a face,

With large blue eyes,

Like the wet, warm skies,

Drifted of water and light;

A profusion of hair

Flashed out on the air,

And a forehead gleamingly bright;

Then the hand of a poet! He grew

As the sweet, strange flowers of the wilderness grow,

In the dripping of natural dew,

Unheeded—alone—

Till his heart had blown—

As the sweet, strange flowers of the wilderness blow;

Till every thought were a changeable strain,

Like flower-leaves wet with the sunset rain;

A proud and passionate way he, like

Every child of Poetry;

With a haughty look and a haughty tread,

And something awful about his head;

With wonderful eyes,

And of a sudden—

Like the eyes of those that can see the dead.

Looking about,

For a moment or two, he stood,

On the shore of the mighty wood,

Then ventured out,

With a bounding step and a joyful shout,

The brave sea-bending of him!

The broad sea all before him!

THE WORLD'S AGE.

BY CHARLES KINGSLEY.

Who will say the world is dying?

Who will say our prime is past?

Sparks from Heaven within us lying,

Flash, and will flash to the last.

Peels! who fancy Christ mistaken!

Man a tool to buy and sell;

Earth a failure, God a joke,

Anti-room of Hell.

Still the race of Hero spirits

Pass the lamp from hand to hand;

Age from age the Word inherits.

"Wife, and Child, and Fatherland!"

Still the youthful hunter gathers

Fiercy fire from wild and wood;

He will dare as dared his father,

Give him cause as good.

While a slave beavals his fetters;

While an orphan pleads in vain;

While an infant licks his letters,

Heir of all the ages' gain;

While a lip grows ripe for kissing;

While a man from man is wrong;

Know, by every want and blessing,

That the world is young.

Select Tale.

A DAY IN PETTICOATS.

BY A MODEST MAN.

"I couldn't think of such a thing."

"But you must. My happiness depends on it."

Here he put on the thing, and what's his name. And my friend Bob Styles held up before my hesitant gaze a suit of feminine apparel. His idea was to present a new and special truth—the truth—that she had just joined him in a runaway marriage party—until it should be too late for interference; that is, until the minister should have tied a knot between them, that nothing but a special grant of Legislature could undermine. This scheme was not actually so absurd as it appeared at first sight. Maggie Lee was a tall, queerly woman, with an almost masculine air, and at that time, I had a very slight form—almost efminate, so that, in fact, there was but little difference in that point. Then I had light hair, told in the middle, and put a bonnet on my head, and few persons would have suspected but I was really one of the other sex. These accessories also gave me quite a decided resemblance to Maggie Lee, especially when, as in this case, the disguise was her own.

Then the chosen day for the runaway match was an auspicious one. Maggie's father was to drive her to D—, a small village near where she lived, and there she was to join a sailing party down

D— River, to the grove three miles below, where

Four or five times I was on the point of swearing at his impudent effrontery, but bit my tongue just in time to prevent the exposure. But it was not with him that I found my role the hardest to play.

No; the young ladies were the difficult ones to deceive. For instance, there was one among them, a beautiful girl of seventeen, just returned from boarding-school, who had not seen Maggie Lee for
