Poetry.

THE HOMES OF ENGLAND.

BY MRS. HEMANS. The stately Homes of England, How beautiful they stand Amidst their tall ancestral trees, O'er all the pleasant land! The deer across their greensward bound, Through shade and sunny gleam, And the swan glides past them with the sound Of some rejoicing stream.

The merry Homes of England! Around their hearths by night, What gladsome looks of household love Meet in the ruddy light! There woman's voice flows forth in song, Or childhood's tale is told, Or lips move tunefully along

Some glorious page of old. The blessed Homes of England! How softly on their bowers Is laid the holy quietness That breathes from sabbath-hours! Solemn, yet sweet, the church-bell's chime Floats through their woods at morn;

All other sounds, in that still time, Of breeze and leaf are borne. The cottage Homes of England ! By thousands, on her plains, They are smiling o'er the silvery brooks, And round the hamlet-fanes. Through glowing orchards forth they peep, Each from its nook of leaves, And fearless here they lowly sleep,

As the birds beneath the eaves. The free, fair Homes of England! Long, long, in hut and hall, May hearts of native proof be reared To guard each hallowed wall! And green forever be the groves, And bright the flowery sod, Where first the child's glad spirit loves Its country and its God!

THE PROVINCE OF WOMAN. As some fair violet, loveliest of the glade, Sheds its mild fragrance on the lonely shade, Withdraws its modest head from public sight, Nor courts the sun, nor seeks the glare of light, Should some rude hand profanely dare intrude, And bear its beauties from its native wood, Exposed abroad its languid colors fly, Its form decays, and all its odors die,-So woman, born to dignify retreat, Unknown to flourish, and unseen be great; To give domestic life its sweetest charm, With softness polish, and with virtue warm; Fearful of fame, unwilling to be known,
