THE SEA-SHELL.

BY H. CLAY PREUSS. yow is it with thee, O, lone sea shell! Why utter this ceaseless mean? Art yearning again

For thy home in the main, Where the sunlight hath never shone?

Like the muffled throb of a broken heart, Thy music is sounding to u e: Art mourning thy love In some far coral grove

Which blossoms down under the sea?

They say that the voice of thy native waves This melancholy dirge doth keep, Which, though far away, Doth ever betray

Thy birth in the wild ocean deep. And is it not thus with that mystical voice Which speaks to the children of earth,

And often unfolds To God-imaged souls Some trace of their heavenly birth! Ah! many a spirit like thee, lone shell,

Now mourns in its prison of clay; While it catches faint gleams, In soul-thrilling dreams, Of the ocean that's far away.

THE ILL-LOOKING HORSE. - A pun that was no Joke . -A Frenchman near the Canada line in Vermont, sold a horse to his Yankee neighbour, which he recommended as being a very sound serviceable animal in spite of his unprepossessing appearance. To a good assortment of Blue and White Cotton Warps. every inquiry of the buyer respecting the qualities of the horse, the Frenchman gave a favourable reply-but always commenced his commendation very good."

moderate sum asked for him, made the purchase and took him home. A few days after he returned been cheated in the qualities of the horse. " Vat is de mattaire?' said the Frenchman.

"Matter," said the Yankee, "matter enough -the horse can't see !-he's as blind as a bat !" "Ah!" said the Frenchman. "Vat I was tell you? I was tell you he was not look very goodbe gar, I don't know if he look at all !"

This puts me in mind of a jockey who sold an officer a horse, guaranteeing he wouldn't shy before the fire of an army.

The horse was trotted out on review day, and when he heard the first report, threw his rider. Full of rage, the officer sought the jockey and began to expand. "You confounded scoundrel-didn't you say that this horse wouldn't shy before the fire of an "No more he won't," was the reply :- "Tisn't till arter fire that he shies."

A RECIPE FOR HAPPINESS .- It is simply, when you rise in the morning to form a resolution to make the day a happy one to a fellow creature. It is -easily done-a left-off garment, to the man who needs it; a kind word to the sorrowful; an encouraging expression to the striving-trifles in themselves, light as air-will do it, at least for the twenty four hours; and if you are young, depend upon it, it will tell you when you are old; and if SPRING AND SUMMER GOODS, you are old, rest assured it will send you gently and happily down the stream of time to eternity. Mantles, Parasols, Ribbons, Sewed Muslins, Look at the result :- You send one person-only one, happily through the day; that is, three hund- of the very latest designs, all of which are now selling very red and sixty-five in the course of the year-and cheap. supposing you live forty years only, after you commence this course, you have made fourteen thouevents, for a time. He will find mentioned above, a little the nicest stock of CLOTHING no difficulty in cheating the devil.

TEARS AND BLUSHES .- The poet Goethe, being once in company of a mother who had occasion to reprove her young daughter just budding into womanhood, when he saw the young girl blush and burst into tears, said :

"How beautiful your reproof has made your daughter. The crimson hue and those silver tears become her better than any ornament of gold or pearls. These may be hung on the neck of a wanton, but those are never seen disconnected with moral purity. A full blown rose, besprinkled with the purest dew, is not so beautiful as this child blushing beneath her parent's displeasure, and shedding tears of sorrow for her fault. A blush is the sign which nature hangs out to show where chastity and honor dwells.'

As the snow and CALF SKINS. gathers together, so are our habits formed. No single flake that is added to the pile produces a sensible change; no single action creates, however it may exhibit, a man's character: but as the tempest hurls the avalanche down the mountain, and overwhelms the inhabitant and his habitation, so passion, acting upon the elements of mischief which pernicious habits have brought together by imperceptible accumulation, may overthrow the edifice of truth and virtue.—Jeremy Bentham.

AN INCONSISTENCY .- Every one likes modesty and hates brass, and yet everybody encourages the latter, and leaves the former to take care of itself .-Modest merit! what is worth? The more a man has of it, the poorer he is, in this age of rivalry and humbuggery. He would starve to death on such fodder as that capital will procure.

A countryman, wishing to sympathise with his neighbor for the loss of his wife, said, "I am sorry your poor woman has gone to heaven." "Thank you," replied the other, " may it be long before you go there." Muggins observed on the door of a house the name of a physician and surgeon, and remarked that it put him in mind of a double-barrelled gun, for if one missed the other was sure to kill.

If running after women be a sin, it is very easily checked. All that is necessary is for the women to stop running away from the men.

A wag says that everywhere the adage has been realised by the young ladies, and that a Miss is now-a-days, in circumference, "as good as a mile."

A horse-dealer, describing a used-up horse, said he looked "as if he had been editing a newspaper!"
