SHOCKING SIGHTS ON THE ROAD TO LUCKNOW. March 3 .- The moon lighted up our early march this morning along a road which bore frequent traces of rough usage and of the enormous traffic which follows in wake of an Indian army. Mile after mile we passed tho slow trains of the bullock carts of the Commissiarat, which extended in one uninterrupted line from the late camping-ground to the rear guard of the troops. When morning broke we were in the rear of the Alumbagh, which was about a mile and a half in front of us and we could just catch the report of the guns, engaged in their usual encounter with the enemy, and the white tops of some buildings inside the position .-Thence the march deflected to the right towards the and thick mud walls and bastions baked as hard as brick by the sun, but seamed, nevertheless, by the violent rains which have traced their course down its sides. It was difficult to get on through the dense multitude af men and animals, sailors, Highlanders, Sikhs, Pathans, Punjabees, bhesties, dooly-bearers, camp servants, bullocks, camels, horses, elephants, goats, cows, sheep, guns and carriages, which filled the plain for miles in front of us, but at length we managed to emerge from the dust and to healthy action, renovating the fountains of life and heat, and to come up with the advanced guard of vigor, purifying the blood, cleansing it from all humors, the 7th Hussars, near whom were riding most of and causing it to course anew through every part of the the head-quarter staff and heads of departments, who had been in the saddle from the previous mid- dice in its worst forms, all Billious Diseases and Foul night. A diversion was effected on the roof of the Dilkoosha in the advent of Pulwan Sing, Brigadier of the Goorkhas of Franke's division-a very gallant been relieved, as well as the thousands who have the most gentleman indeed, in white kid gloves, a bright unbounded confidence in Perry Davis' Vegetable Pala skull cap, with a gold lace rim, in front of which urge every family to possess themselves of it. - Buffelo -mines of Golconda! -there glittered, broad and arge as one's hand, an aigrette of real diamonds; into which was fixed jauntily a light graceful plume of bird of paradise feathers, the ends of which were curved in a gentle waving bend by the weight of pearls and emeralds attached to them-a thartie in the highest terms of praise. All who have tried scimeter with jewelled hilt and sheath, and jewelled it say that no family should be without it .- Lewell Adv. pistols by his side-what a contrast did our friend present to plain Sir Colin in his pith belmet, a plain blue frock coat with buttons, and corderoy trousers, whose only mark of command was his air and his trusty old sabre tucked under his arm.

IMPORTANT FROM UTAH. -The peace news from Utah is confirmed by despatches, by telegraph, this morning. The " Mormon War" may now be regarded as at an end. We notice that Colonel Kane has arrived in the Mormon country and has had several conferences with the Mormon leaders. If the Mormons ever contemplated war with the United States, we have no doubt that they have been dissuaded from it by the advice of Col. Kane. This gentleman is a brother of the late lamented discoverer of the open polar sea. He recently took a deep interest in the welfare of the Mormons. When they were driven from Illinois, and Missouri, they spent a winter in Western Iowa, Col. Kane came Boston Atlas, calling the attention of the citizens to the deplorable condition of this unfortunate peo- ard, and known as the Blanchard House, has been fitted ple. He received several thousand dollars in this up and furnished for the subscriber, and is under his manand other Atlantic cities, with which he purchased flour and clothing, superintended the passage of it and thus saved the Mormons from starvation.
