BOOKS AND STATIONERY.

Reduction in Price.

A money is scarce, and times very dull, the subscriber finds it necessary to sell goods at the very smallest profit that will pay expenses; and, as he has a very large stock of English and American Goods to arrive this Fall, and a large stock on hand, he is obliged to sell very low to dispose of them, so as to meet his payments; consequently, from the present time, Goods may be purchased at his store for a trifle over the cost; and, as he always keeps a first-rate article on hand, purchasers can be sure to get the worth of their money, and PROBABLY A LITTLE MORE.

Always on Hand:

Note Paper, Letter Paper, Foolscap ruled & plain;

Envelopes, Wax, Ink, Pencils, Slates; Members, Ledgers, Journals, Day Books, sets of do. for a small business, very low; Polio's, Scotch Paper,

Fancy Note and Letter Papers; Envelopes and Note

Paper, silver-bordered, for weddings, with silver waters to match; Red Waters, Music Paper, Music in sheet, half price; Schools Books of all kinds; Novels, bound and unbound; large assortment of Children's Toy Books; small Gift Books for children; Dictionaries, Histories, Biographies; a large and very cheap assortment of Religious Books and Tracts; Bibles, Prayer Books, Hymn Books, Albums

Books for Christmas and New Year Presents, Poems,

Song Books, Riddle Books and Story Books; with a large assortment of Fancy Goods, gold and silver

Pens and Pencils, Rubber do., Knives, Inkstands,

Paper Cutters, Fancy Pen Wipers, and a thousand other things too numerous to advertise.

500 reams WRAPPING PAPER;

500 Copy Books, assorted.

Poetry.

Bloomfield, Feb. 9, 1858.

Mr. Editor: Below is a piece of very excellent poetry, which I came across in an old paper (Buckingham Olive Branch), and you will confer a favor by giving it a place in your paper. CARLOS.

OLD BACHELORS.

They are wanderers and rambles—never at home,

Making use of a welcome wherever they roam,

And every one knows that the Bachelor's den

Is a room set apart for these singular men.

A nook in the clouds, of some five feet by four,

Though sometimes by chance it may be rather more;

With skylight, or no light, ghosts, goblins and gloom,

And everywhere termed the "Old Bachelors' Room."

These creatures they say are not valued at all Except when the herd gives a bachelor's ball.

Then dress in their best,

In their gold-brocade vest,

To be met, And they shy

That they act with much tact,

And they lip "how'd'ye do,"

And they coo, and they woo,

And they smile for a while,

Their fair guests to beguile,

Condescending and bending

For fear of offending.

Though inert, And they shy

They exert With their eye,

To be pert, And they sigh

And to flirt, As they fly,

And they wish, and they whiz,

And are brisk when they quiz.

For they meet, And dancing

To be met, And dancing

And are met, And dancing

On their feet, And dancing

Sliding and gliding with minute pace,

Putting and sitting with infinite grace,

And jumping, And racing,

And bumping, And chasing,

And stumping, And pacing,

And thumping, And lacing;

They are glittering and glittering, gallant and gay,

Fawning all morning, and lounging all day,

But when he grows old,

And his sunshine is past,

Three years being told,

Brings reputation at last;

He then becomes an old man,

His warm friend the warning pan;

His fidelity, fretful and wary; in fine,

Loves nothing but self, and his dinner and wine.

He rates and he prates,

And reads the debates,

Despised by the men, and the women he hates.

Then prosing, And poring

And dozing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And boring

And nosing, And roaring,

Whenever he falls in with a rabble,

His delight is to vapor and gabble,

He's gruffy, And crusty,

And gruffy, And crusty,

He sits in his slippers, with back to the door,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

And sneezing, And snoring,

Herbert against me. They told him continually that I should do him no good, and might harm him in many ways. But he was faithful, and suffered no one to come between us. I had never been angry with Herbert. A word, or look, joining on the minor of the moment, would rouse me into a perfect flood against any one else; but Herbert's voice and manner soothed me under every kind of excitement. In any paroxysm of rage—the very worst—I was gentle to him; and I had never known yet the fit of fury which had not yielded to his remonstrance. I had grown almost to look on him as my good angel against that devil whom the re-could not scourge out of me.

I was walking on the cliffs one day, Herbert and I, for we lived by the sea-side. And indeed I think that wild sea made me fiercer than else
