To the Editor of the Carleton Sentinel. Sir: I see Mr. Kilburn has made quite an elaborate reply to my communication in the Sentinel

The leopard cannot change its spots, neither can an ungenerous mind easily hide that imperfection. praise; but actions are preferable to words, and under the said Act. have a great deal more weight.

He says he detests me and my whole tribe. am at a loss to know who he means by my tribe, and I think I would require some of his superior knowledge to find it out-I might guess, perhaps, a dozen times, and still be astray; but, if he means the Councillors who so generally differ from him, he is in that case as he frequently is in the Council, -viz., far from being right: for I never had the honor of belonging to that respectable body, and I think it's quite likely I never shall. But I suppose forenoon, as the time and place for a meeting of the he detests me because I happened to tell the truth. creditors of the said Maurice Day, for the purpose of bers were, according to his statement, quite friendly | ing the terms of a compromise to be offered by him and good-natured; and equally so are his remarks under the said Act. in the Sentinel respecting the stand these gentlemen took last winter in the House of Assembly, relative to the Railway Company. "They misrepresented the case," says Mr. Kilburn, -or, in plain In the matter of WILLIAM GRANT, an Insolvent Carpenter's, Teming's, Dilworth's, and Murray's Spelling words, they made false statements. There is nothing in all he said about them indicative of malice! O, no! But I wish all the Members in the House would take a similar stand next winter, and cause the Company to perform their part of the contract, as the Government has done; for, had they taken such a stand last winter in the House, there would not have been so much shuffling with the railroad

Mr. Kilburn acknowledges the bridge "would under the said Act. enhance the value of property on the eastern side of the river, and in the town of Woodstock espeeially." And for that reason, along with some others, he would oppose the grants. Rather than In the matter of GEORGE H.
