Desultory.

THE LONDON PRESS ON THE SICKLES VERDICT .-Bad taste in the reporters of American newspapers is perhaps to be expected and forgiven; but the counsel, who are apparently eminent in their profession, might be expected to know better. They appear, however, to have behaved infinitely worse. The opening speech of Mr. Ould, the District Attorney, is as disgraceful a composition as we ever had the misfortune to read. It is everything which an opening statement in a capital case ought not to be. * * If Mr. Ould's speech was disgraceful, that of Mr. Brady, the counsel for the prisoner, can only be described as disgusting. The member of Marylebone himself, when he defended

Any information given at the office of logic and common-sense, as the collective power of the whole Old Bailey bar-which is not without performers of a similar character-would not produce in seven years. After a rigmarole preface, he laid down "three propositions: First, human laws the inhabitants, and every person owning property in next to W. T. BAIRD, Esq., where he is prepared to do not shield us from the enjoyment of human such Parish, to give in to us, or any of us, a statement of repair rights. Secondly, love by Divine law is perfect, their property and income, in the manner prescribed by though not regulated by human law. Third, the Act relating to the Government of Counties, Towns and Divine law attaches responsibilities, to execute Parishes, duly attested before a Justice of the Peace. which does not constitute crime;" and he actually had the unscrupalous and unblushing impudence to stand up in a Court of Justice and maintainwithout interruption or rebuke from the judge (who holds his office at the will of a mob whose daily bread is bunkum) -that every man has a natural right to kill any one who commits adultery with his wife, and that human laws cannot take away

The stupidity of the defence is exactly on a par with its want of taste and law. Nothing but that unless the claims against them extracts can give a notion of its vulgarity. After a vast quantity of illogical rubbish about they will be placed in the hands of an attorney for malice (in which it was maintained, first, that malice was not to be presumed without proof, and, secondly, that Sickles shot Key because he was angry with him for seducing his wife, which is the strongest kind of malice,) Mr. Brady proceeded to show that adultery was very wicked, and that adulterers might lawfully be killed. In support of St. John and St. Andrews. this thesis, he read every passage from the Bible in which adultery is referred to. * * Mr. Brady takes so much pleasure in quoting passages about adultery, and showing its turpitude in emphatic and almost descriptive language, that we can only acquit his performance of gross prurience by ascribing to him a degree of obtuseness of feeling Railroad Wharf, St. Andrews, every MONDAY and which is in this country happily uncommon. EXTRAORDINARY CIRCUMSTANCE. - A Man Dying Twice .- A man died in the Seventeenth Ward a St. Andrews, N. B., Nov. 25, 1858. 6m day or two ago, who might be said to have died once before, and been recalled to life by a singular New Brunswick and Canada Railcircumstance. He had suffered for a long time from consumption, and grown weaker and weaker, and more and more attenuated, until he could not stand or speak. He felt that he had but a few days to live, and made every preparation for approaching dissolution. His wife watched beside him, and one morning he beckoned to her to put her head to his lips, when he whispered, "I am going, Jane," and took her hand.

grow stronger, and in a month was enabled to leave his bed and work at his trade. He lived for nearly two years after that strange event, but finally was attacked with a return of his old complaint, and died after an illness of three months.

This is a very singular instance, but entirely true, and would seem to show that the soul of the dying man was brought back by the voice of a living heart, and lingered for a while longer, ere it -Cincinnati Enquirer.

A good story is told of a chap in North Carolina, who went the entire figure in the way of courting everything that heart could wish, consisting of:— 75 bbls. Extra No. 1 Labrador HERRINGS; all the girls who would have him, without asking for any of them to die off, as the law directs. After having married his thirteenth, some of his first loves come down upon him, and had him lodged in jail. But a person so fond of liberty, and who could get into Hymen's noose with such ease, found little difficulty in getting out of "the jug;" and the next news of him, he was running at large with a heavy reward for his apprehension. He was shortly recognised by a gentleman, who, anxious to get the reward, invited him to his house, desired him to sit down-called his wife to chat with him, as an inducement to detain him there-while he made some excuse for leaving him for a moment, and started for a constable to arrest the runaway. What was the poor man's astonishment, on returning with the constable, to find the gay Lothariotaking the advantage of his short absence-had absconded with his wife. This made the fellow's stock of wives on hand fourteen.

poverty? Have you suffered wrong? Do circumstances oppose you? Are you beset by enemies? Now is your time! Never lie there, depressed and melancholy! Spend no more days in idle whining! Up, like a lion! Make no complaint, but if dithculties beset you, roar your defiance. You know not what is in you. You are at school-this is your necessary discipline, poverty and pain are your masters. But use the powers God has given you, and you shall be master at last. Fear of failure is the most fruitful cause of failure. Stand firm upon the rock not fail. What seems failure at first, is only discipline. Accept the lesson trust the grand result. Up and up again! Strike and strike again! and you shall always gain, whatever the fortune of to-day or to-morrow's battle.'

Courtesy in our Home Intercourse. - If the courteous attentions, the well-bred gentleness and Gloves, Linen and Cotton Thread, Carpets, Bugs, Drug things, which most persons try to exibit in general | Covers, Napkins, Towels, &c. &c. society, were practised at all times in the family circle, we should see very different home scenes from many which are daily passing around us. Cord, Broadcloth, Cassimeres, Doeskins and Satinetts. Nor is this by any means difficult; custom would soon make it both easy and pleasant; for harmony is not less to be prized in our home life than in this department, as the WINTER CLOTHING is all new, and made with the greatest care, under the superintendmusic, whilst discord is infinitely more to be depreeated in the former than in the latter. This deference to one another engenders proper self-respect, bacco, Saleratus and Tea. and a consequent improvement in manner and general conduct. Where it happily exists, the younger members of the family would be ashamed to indulge in rude and unbecoming deportment, and the kindly feelings of the whole household towards each other are preserved in their perfect freshness.

Bookseller, and by all the Agents From long practical observation of the treatment purtry, in which the lamentable neglect of those diseases by medical men generally, and their futile attempts to cure by mercury, copaiba, sarsaparilla, &c, have produced most distressing results. Lasting benefit in such cases can only be reasonably expected at the hands of the legal-ly-qualified medical man who devotes his chief attention to their removal; and to him only who can show his possession of the necessary qualifications, can confidence be safely extended. Dr. De R. refers with pride to the numbers he has been instrumental in restoring to health and happiness; and to those who may be in need of such aid; he offers every assurance of speedy restoration.
