THE SWAN SONG OF PARSON AVERY

BY J. G. WHITTIER. When the reaper's task was ended and the summer wearing late, Pa s n' Avery sailed from Newbury with his wife and children

Dropy sg down the river harbor in the shallop Watch and Wait. Pleasantly lay the clearings in the mellow summer morn, And the newly-planted orchards dropping their fruits first-born, And the homesteads like brown islands amidst a sea of corn. Broad meadows reaching seaward the tided creeks between, And hills roiled, wave like, inland, with oaks and wainuts green; A fairer home, a goodlier land, his eye had never seen.

Yet away sailed Parson Avery, away where duty led, And he voice of God seemed calling, to break the living bread, To the souls of fishers starving on the rocks of Marblehead. All day they sailed, at nightfall the pleasant land-breeze died, The blackening sky at miduight its starry lights denied.

And, far and low, the thunder of tempest prophesical. Blotted out was all the coast line, gone were rock and wood and Grimly anxious stood the helmsman with the tiller in his hand, And questioned of the darkness what was sea and what was land.

And the preacher heard his dear ones, nestled round him, weeping "Never heed, my little children! Christ is walking on before, To the pleasant land of Heaven, where the sea shall be no more!" All at once the great cloud parted, like a curtain drawn aside, To let down the torch o' lightning on the terror far and wide;

And the thunder and the whirlwind together smote the tide. There was wailing in the shallop, woman's wail and man's despair, established churches. It was a pity they had not A crash of breaking timbers on the rocks so sharp and bare, And through it all the murniur of Father Avery's prayer.

rom the struggle in the darkness with the wild waves and the On a rock, where every billow broke above him as it passed, lone of all his household the man of God was cast. There a comrade heard him praying in the pause and wave and

'All my own have gone before me and I linger just behind; Not for life I ask, but only for the rest thy ransomed find! In this night of death I challenge the promise of thy Word! Let me see the great salvation of which mine ears have heard! Let me pass from hence forgiven, through the grace of Christ, our

"In the baptism of these waters wash white my every sin, And let me follow up to Thee my household and my kin! Open the sea gate of thy Heaven and let me enter in !"

The ear of God was open to his servant's last request; As the strong wave swept him downward the sweet prayer upward And the soul of Father Avery went with it to its rest. There was wailing on the mainland from the rocks of Marblehead,

In the stricken church of Newbury the notes for prayer were read, to see in the Chaplain's office. He thought the And long by board and hearthstone, the living mourned the dead. And still the fishers outward bound or scudding from the squall, With grave and reverent faces the ancient tale recall,

Perhaps it would be said that the commissions to our agents on the interest to be paid on those Debentures in London, would wipe off that profit. This was not the case. After deducting those commissions there would be a net profit of £400 currency. Had the Government sold those Debentures at par in New Brunswick, they might have been charged with sacrificing the public interest to accommodate political friends, as the Governments of other
