The War and its Prospects.

affairs in the Old World:

bring us no news of fresh battles and victories, but they chronicle the results of the progress already made. The rapid expulsion of the invading army equally noted with the two former, are not wantfrom Piedmont, the victories at Palestro and Ma- ing. genta, the triumphant entry in to Milan, the subsequent victory at Melegnano, the withdrawal of the Austrians to their last line of defence, with the deposition of General Gyulai, may be said to form second opens, with its deadlier struggles, let us briefly summarise the past. The battle of Magenta has proved more decisive than the conquerors had ons, the allies allowed four days to elepse before they entered the capital of Lombardy. But it now appears that the Austrians were in no condition, against their opponents. They have abandoned not the capital alone, but the greater portion of the country to the invaders. One strong place after another has been given up, and the Austribattle of such importance measured by these re- and abundant harvest. sults is worthy of a fuller account than we were able to gather last week from the telegraphic dispatches, with their more than Spartan brevity to enable us to form some estimation of the nature of the operations, the numbers engaged, and the

"The downfall of the Derby Administration. thy with the cause of Italian independence is notorious throughout Europe-will inevitably exercise an influence on the progress of the war. If the the hope, which a few days ago seemed to be all but baseless, that the war may be confined to Italy and the present belligerents, and that peace may be words of Princes and Emperors, and if Austria be not utterly deaf to reason, and inmical to the good offices of Powers who wish her to retain her place expect that this will be the result of the new phase growth during the past few years.

" Foremost among the circumstances which the new Administration will turn to account in the to their last great system of fortresses. Worsted in every engagement, outmanceuvred and outgeneralled, with the passions of all Italy aroused against them, they retire sullenly to their all but impregnable line beyond the Mincio. They abandon position, and concentrate themselves in a corner where they may remain on the defensive till they try both the valor and the patience of their oppo nents to dislodge them, but without being able to prevent the liberation of any part of Italy, except that on which their soldiers are intrenched. Lombardy is virtually free: Tuscany is relieved of its Austrian Pro-Consul; Parma and Modena have weeks elapse it is probable that the Pope on the one hand, and the new King of Naples on the other, will be compelled to join in the new federto their subjects as prudence, if not justice, shall agriculture,

"The most grave impediments to peace are those which exist in the fears of Germany, and to some extent, in those of Great Britain. The Germans, more especially, dread that the Emperor of the French, having liberated Italy from one set of oppressors, will forthwith transfer it to another; and that he will, in fact, recommence that career of French domination which began with the early victories of the young General Bonaparte and ended with the defeat of Napoleon I. on the bloody field of Waterloo. The mobilisation of the Prussian army is the last as well as the most formidable expression which these fears have assumed. Napoleon III, seems to allow that such fears are an eloquent proclamation to the people of Lombardy he avows in the plainest terms that he has no such policy, that he repudiates it and never revivals of a dead and buried past. He pledges his word, his honor, and his faith, before Europe beyond the gratitude of the Italians, and the fame justly due to such great service and to such high the Italians but to the Germans. The pledge is so solemn that not even the victorious master of all the legions of Gaul dare be false to it, if he be his own master and not the slave of his army. John Russell will take the Emperor at his word ; that they will make his proclamation the basis of their intercourse with him, and of their good offices

TWELFTH OF JULY .- Tuesday next, being the anniversary of the battle of the Boyne, the Orangemen of this Town intend commemorating that event in the following manner: by a salute at sunrise; by assembling at their Lodge Room at 8 o'clock, A.M.; then proceeding to Richmond Corner, where Rev. Mr. Salmon is to preach a sermon; and after that by partaking of a dinner Mr. Robert M'Bride.

THE FOURTH OF JULY .- Our republican neighbors on the borders have been expending the usual quantity of noise in celebrating their glorious Independence Day. Members of our band, who went up to Presque Isle to blow Yankee Doodle, &c., for the good people there, seemed quite delighted with the treatment they received, and the appearance of things generally. We don't know but that some of their hearts have been so softened under the genial influences of the charms of the Presque Isle Lee, of this Town, upon a mail coach of Mr. H. of the most enlightened nation on airth. THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN .- The publishers of this widely circulated and popular illustrated weekly journal of mechanics and science, announce that it will be enlarged on the first of July, and otherwise greatly improved, containing sixteen pages instead of eight, the present size, which will make it the largest and cheapest scientific journal in the world; it is the only journal of its class that has ever succeeded in this country, and maintains a character for authority in all matters of mechanics. science and arts, which is not excelled by any other journal published in this country or in Eurupe. Although the publishers will incur an increased expence of $8,000 a year by this enlargement, they have determined not to raise the price of subscription, relying upon their friends to indemnify them in this increased expenditure, by a corresponding increase of subscribers. Terms, $2 a year, or 10 copies for $15. Specimen copies of the paper with a pamphlet of information to inventors furnished

Among the many restoratives which Nature has sapplied to clieve the afflictions of humanity, there is no more favorite one for certain class of diseases than the "medicinal gum" of the Wild Cherry Tree; but however valuable it is, its power to heal, to soothe, to relieve, and to cure, is enhanced ten fold by scienting and judicious combination with other ingredients, in themselves of equal worth. This happy mingling exists in that "Combination and a form indeed" of medicine known as
