There are other matters beside the Bridge which at the present may very probably call out an expression of opinion at a public meeting The rumor that has prevailed during the week to the effect that the Grand Trunk Company of Canada have concluded a bargain of somesort with the St. Andrews and Quebec Company, although we fear the rumor is premature, may stir up an interest more intense than has the more uncertain prospect of the progress of a railroad through this section of the province, which has hitherto in the past few months prevailed. At all events, an expression of opinion by a people so closely interested in the matter would not be out of place.

THE SLAVE EXCITEMENT.

The provincial papers are very generally copying, 1858. do Jacob Jewet, we perceive, a report of a meeting held in the Town Hall here some short time since, published in the Journal, called for the purpose, it was alleged, of giving Geo. L. Raymond, Esq., an opportunity of making some explanations with reference to a negro boy who went to the States at the same time with him (Mr. Raymond,) in December last. We are sorry the report is being so widely circulated, although it is substantially a correct report of the doings at the meeting, because it is calculated to damage the reputation of a gentleman, who, we believe, is really innocent of the charge of having 17 1, which has been paid with the exception of but only a few seriously. LORD MACAULY .- Last week our telegraph news contained the announcement of the death of this distinguished noblemen. He was but about 60 years of age, and the extent and nature of his literary labors afford most convincing proof of the industry of his life. In the scope and abundance of his learning, which seemed to grasp every field thought, every range of literature, he has left none from Abraham Cose : It appears correct. who probably can be compared to him; and he has been truly styled the greatest living master of the English language. His loss is one to be seriously felt, and it seems particularly to be deplored that he was not spared to finish those works which he had in hand, works for which he was so peculiarly adapted, and to finish which the question way well be asked: Who is worthy?

As men of vast practical experience, they know exactly what those interest are, and, bemoved far above the influence of any class concerned in the administration of bankruptey, they will deal with those interests dispassionately and justly. Sir Richard Bethell has invited all parties concerned to lavor him with their views in writing; and he has engaged to give to their suggestions his deliberate attention. This hint might be acted upon here, by the Commission preparing a law for the Province. In fact, if the matter was altogether postponed with us, until the labors of the Lord Chancallor and Sir Richard were perfected and became the law of Great Britain, it might result in great benefit to our commercial standing; and save a vast amount of thought and discussion by enabling us to modify the provisions of the Imperial bill, to suit our own institutions, and judiciary. The hint is worthy of consideration .- Courier.
