Emigration. A friend has furnished us with an extract from a letter written by a gentleman in Scotland, which we publish below. The writer, although not connected directly or indirectly with any public or private Emigration scheme, is nevertheless so circumstanced, that he is in a good position to know the feelings of people in Scotland, and the hindrance8 which operate to prevent Emigration to this country; and we may add that he is at the same time warmly interested in the present and future welfare of New Branswick. The subject of Imigration, of which much has been said and much written, but toward the promotion of which, practically, but little has been done, is of such importance as to demand respectful consideration for every hint thrown out, and every suggestion made. While writing the above, the mail brought us a Communication from a Glasgow Correspondent, one who is preparing to Emigrate, which contains some of the very same items of intelligence given below, and is, withal, a most instructing and welcome letter, (we give it place in another column.) The extract alluded to is as follows :- "The work of procuring Emigrants to go to New Brunswick is one of great labor, and causes much anxiety on the part of those think of Emigrating, seem to think that these are
