We have never seen or heard but one direct insimuation to the contrary. Mr. Geo. W. Seavy, well known in this Town, of Maine, who has for some time resided in London, has in a letter of correspondence to the Portland ren, is exercised, and in times when the faults of those filling high places are not apt to be screened man who spoke to me. long from public gaze, and it struck us as singular that the first intimation which should reach us of led and swern; his testimony went to corroborate Woodstock to the lines, and the comparative ease Confederated victory near Apalachicola. so grave and important a matter, should be through Phelps'. the columns of an American newspaper from an American correspondent. The Prince in his extended tour through the Provinces and the United States pleased everybody and nobody saw aught in His conduct or physiognomy indicating a character soldiers to desert. Upon enquiry found that Phelps or disposition likely to be misled or to become controlled by passion. The character given by the English papers of the Prince is very favorable. The judicious and high toned teaching by which his illustrious parents have ever sought to regulate and give bent to his mind have, those papers declare, had their proper effect, and his learning, his experience by travel of the world, his amiable disposition and his good habits are all mentioned as eminently ged I was told that the man had been arrested. We fitting him for the responsibilities which the late dispensation has suddenly called him to assume So we must, with what evidence we have before us, eet down the statements of Mr. Seavy as being purely imaginative. In this connection the following is in point.

The New House.

Before our next issue, the House of Assembly these will be more numerous and important than usual, the principal being the election of a Speaker. We hear a good deal of talk about it but as to who to likely to be the first Commoner it is impossible eren to conjecture. The session promises to be an interesting one, and we think a short one. It will be interesting, if for nothing else, to watch the movements of the new members; hear their enunelations of opinion on the politics and political coonomy of the Prevince, and to study the amount of talent and intelligence the country has sent to represent it. There are questions of paramount importance which, we may reasonably expect, will come before the House; among these will be the Intercolonial railroad and its prospects. A general Bankrupt bill. Finance ministers at home have not unnaturally hesitated to surport, by an imperial guarantee, a work as to the execution of which Colonial opinion was divided. It has been hinted from time to time that a Federal Union of the North American Provinces might facilitate the accomplishment of these internal communications; but the rivalries which impeded the selection of a Canadian capital were not very encouraging to any grand projects of Colonial amalgamation. One-tenth of the public money which (as Lord Grey informed the committee of last session) has been "absolutely wasted" on Colonial fortifications, with which "the wisest thing we could do now would be to blow them up again," would have sufficed to complete, for all imperial ourposes, those internal communications of our North American Colonies on which engineers have reported, statesmen corresponded and Colonists nemorialized, without the slightest result, for the last thirty years. And so it comes to pass that the facilities for the defence of a Colony which we won by great efforts a century ago, and have since held at vast sacrifice of blood and treasure, largely depend upon the mere chance whether a quarrel between England and her only possible enemy in that uarter of the world may arise in January or July. It has been said, and, perhaps, truly, that there are but two alternative principles of relationship between Colonies and parent States-that of subserviency and dependence, or that of community and partnership. To elevate the former, wherever it exists, to the rank of the latter, is the obvious function of all imperial Government. Our early North American Colonies, before the Declaration of Indepence, paid the whole cost of their military defence out of their own taxes, and yet provided in addition and fed 25,000 men at the cost of several millions sterling; and history records more than one occasconflicts. They were, in fact, partners both in the burdens and the privileges of British citizenship. If the same relation does not subsist between England and her five North American Provinces at the present day, it is not Colonial loyalty but British policy which has been at fault. The chivalrous sympathy which our late war with Russia called forth in all those Provinces, and their vigorous preparations for selfdefence at a time when imperial interests demanded the temporary withdrawal of a large portion of our troops, were only a fair sample which, though now, perhaps, fitful and evanescent, might undoubtedly, under happier auspices, become be qualified for that self-defence which has been held onies for eventual independence, that we may hope gradually to relieve the imperial Treasury of the
