HEALTH AND DISCIPLINE. Health and discipline are the most important elements in an army to insure success. Discipline without health, will prove as ineffectual as shot without powder. Health is the propelling force of the army, and is the symbol of

It is, therefore, of the greatest importance, that the sys tem of medication best adapted for the protection of soldiers against siekness, as well as that known to be thmost speedy and effectual in restoring the sick to health, without regard to professional prejudice, be adopted. Tais is no time for medical martinents to quibble about professional dignity. All the dignity the profession can bring to bear will neither prevent sickness among the troops, nor cure these afflicted. Our armies to be successful, must be kept in a healthy condition; and the most Having personally selected our Stock in Boston, Portsure means of scenring this desideratum is through the remedial powers of.
