A PRAYER.

BY HENRY AMES BLOOD.

For the dead and for the dying; For the dead that once were living, And the living that are dying, Pray I to the All-forgiving.

For the dead who yester journeyed; For the living who, to-morrow, Through the Valley of the Shadow, Must all bear the world's great sorrow.

For the immortal, who, in silence, Have already crossed the portal; For the mortal, who, in sadness, Soon shall tollow the immortal.

Keep thine arms round all, O Father!-Round lamenting and lamented; Round the living and repenting, Round the dead who have repented.

Keep thine arms round all, O Father! That are left or that are taken; For they all are needy, whether The forsaking or forsaken.

Dorothy heardly breathed. Next she heard a key turning, then the hasty closing of the lid of the great chest, and then a fast step this time near the door, as if to listen-so near, that her heart seemed to give a sudden leap, and a cold she was aware of it, the loud report, the smoke and blaze in the doorway, told her the gun had gone

A deep hollow groan mingled in her ears with the frightened screams of her child; and then deadly faintness crept over her, and she felt as if it would be a blessed relief to give way to it, and lose all serse of her horrible position. But somehow, those agonized groans drew her irresistibly towards the landing; till at last, scarcely conscious how she came there she was supporting herself by the banister, looking round with a lighted candle in her hand.

Hannah, as she opened her eyes, saw her shading the candle with her hand, and so throwing a strong light upon her face. Good God! she thought, was it only the light or did she really see a horrible ghastly smile upon her mistress's face? In an in stant shriek after shriek rent through the silence of the deserted rooms-and there succeeded a dead heavy stillness. Hannah dragged herself to the

THE WOOD TRADE .- There is no improvement in the Wood Trade in the Liverpool market, and prices are, on the whole, about the same as they were at last advices. We note from Messrs, Gibbs, Bright & Co.'s circular of August 23, the sale of the R. B. Sumper's cargo, at auction, at an average of £8 1. The cargo of the "Royal Family," to arrive, has been disposed of at private sale at £8. The following eargoes have also been sold at private sale :-" Mersey," from Miramichi, "Houghton," Shediac ; "Glendower," Richibucto ; "Libore," Miramichi, at £7 17s. 6d. A cargo of black Birch from Quebec 164 inch average sold at auction for 26d per foot. Messrs. Farnworth, Jardine & Co., in their Timber Circular of the 221, say :--

"The arrivals from British North America during the past fortnight have been 12 vessels, 8,408 tons, Our market remains quiet, and though the import has considerably fallen off during the last few weeks, it has produced no favorable effect upon prices. Of Spruce Deals several auction sales have taken place, which were but moderately well attended, and prices barely sustained, the high freights now ruling may probably curtail the fall import, which will be fortunate, as the demand is likely to be moderate. Of St. John Pine there have been no arri-PINE TIMBER. Of Quebec a parcel of 574 logs ex
