His reception among the troops, as he passed to their head, was one of the grandest ever witnessed in the country. The largest body of men ever put in motion at oace since the battle of Solferino, moved from the banks of the Potomac on that day. For many miles, on divers roads, the embattled ranks pressed forward, and the cheer that hailed the General at one point of the lines was taken up by regiment after regiment, and division after division, until the whole yast army rent the heavens with shouts of welcome. Gen. McClellan rode through the ranks in motion, his cap in his hand, returning the salutes of the enthusiastic soldiers. Something New in the House of Commons .- In the House of Commons, on the 24th ult., a singular episode took place. Lord Palmerston stated that during the debate on the 21st ultimo., the Secretary for Ireland, Sir Robert Peel had used expressions which The O'Donoghue had considered personally offensive and insulting to himself. The O'Donoghue took no notice of the expressions at the time, but he (Palmerston) was given to understand that results out of the House might ensue. As this would involve a breach of privilege, he wrote a letter to Sir Robert Peel, warning him of the impending trouble, and cautioning him against making himself a party to the breach of privilege. In the course of Saturday, the 22nd, communications took by Mr. Thos. Hay.
