

A correspondent signing himself a resident in Northampton, wishes to ask through the Sentinel, whether the public, and particularly the people of Northampton, are to be compelled to wade through mud up to their horses' bellies, during the coming summer, as it is alleged they were last summer, in the narrow lane, not wide enough for two teams to pass each other, between the School House near E. Campbell's and W. T. Baird's. The correspondent says, it is one of the great roads of the Province, and should be four rods wide. He then alleges that the proprietor of the land on one side has shut up the back road and put a post and board fence for a part of the distance through this lane, the excuse being, some arrangement with the proprietor on the other side of the lane was made, which has not been kept. We admit the grievance as represented is very great, but there are more effective ways of a community maintaining their rights in such a case, than in a personal communication through a newspaper. There are also proper ways of making officers do their duty. This notice may suffice, if it does not, and the writer of the correspondence still wishes to lay the case before the public, he may do so, in proper terms, through this paper over his own signature.

The following are the returns of receipts on the N. B. & C. Railway, for the months of January and February. They are indeed gratifying:—

SHOCKING INCIDENT.

Our thanks are due Mr. Mott for forwarding us the following particulars of this distressing tragedy:—

Mr. Editor.—Some of your readers, no doubt have already heard of a character named John Gove who has been committing depredations in different parts of the State of Maine, and who not long ago tried to shoot a man named Lester, for which he was sentenced to die, and has kept himself somewhere, since that time till the other day when he was seen in this village, and passing by a name other than his own said he was going in the woods hunting. The parties whose duty it was to look after and take him if possible, having heard that he had been seen in this vicinity, came sometime last week to see if they could get upon his track. After a few days they learned he was stopping in the woods about sixteen miles above here on the American side, and intending to be out to the settlement on Saturday night, whereupon Mr. Smith, Sheriff of Old Town, and Mr. Vandine of Bangor, in company with three or four other gentlemen, proceeded to the place on Saturday, and on enquiring were told that he had been there the day before, but had left again.

The party stayed all night and in the morning made a search in the barn, where they found the unhappy man concealed in a mow of grain, near the eaves of the roof, in a position not very easy to approach, and armed to the teeth with revolvers, capable of discharging sixteen shots; in one hand he held a pistol, in the other a huge bowie knife, evidently intent on death. It would be difficult to describe what followed immediately after, but may be imagined when some one of the party sprang upon him and wrestled the pistol from his hand, not however till he had discharged it but happily without effect, when said to relate, by one desperate effort, he succeeded in stabbing Mr. Smith in the leg and thigh, in three or four different places, and finally inflicted a wound upon his wrist which completely severed the main artery, causing his death in less than ten minutes. We saw the wound in the leg and wrist of deceased and do not at all wonder that he died in such a short time. The wretch was taken prisoner after a while, conveyed down the other side of the river, and lodged for the night opposite the village at Mr. Dugle's where he was called in the evening to see him, and in conversation with him respecting the deed he had done, he said he was sorry Mr. Smith was dead, but seemed very indifferent about it; said he was in the woods hunting and was obliged to sleep in the barn for want of a better place and that he had no business to disturb him. The dead body was conveyed to the Bath Hotel where after being properly arranged, numbers of every age and sex thronged the premises to see the lifeless form and hear the sad story.

I am yours, truly,
Jas. A. S. Morr.

FEARFUL DEATH.—Niel Roy, a young man employed in the brewery of Langelier & Co., at St. Hyacinthe, while walking through an upper flat, did not see—owing, probably, to the steam that filled the place—a trap-door left open. He fell through into an immense boiler, containing four bushels of beer, boiling at a temperature of 180° before he could be drawn out of the boiling liquid. He died in 12 hours at the Hotel Duval, suffering horrible agonies. The brewers publish a card to the effect that they have not bartered that unfortunate beer, but poured it out into the street as a heavy sacrifice.—Quebec Mercury.

LES OF THE ROYAL VICTORIA—Fearful sufferings and death of fourteen of the Crew—The iron ship Royal Victoria, Capt. Thomas Leslie, from Sunderland for Calcutta with a cargo of coals, was hoisted on her beam ends in the North Sea, on the 19th ult., and her cargo being thus thrown to leeward, she was abandoned, the crew taking to the boats. The captain and thirteen being in one, and the chief officer with sixteen men in the other. The course was given so to fetch, if possible, the Orkneys, which, however, was not reached. The mate and his crew landed in Shetland on the 23rd, after dreadful suffering from exposure and want of water and provisions, two having died, and three of the men being in a state of insanity. By the Shetland mail, which reached us upon Friday last, we received the sad intelligence of the arrival of the boat which was under the charge of the captain. It seems that on Monday week the boat had got into Queen's Bay, but, fearful to relate, only two of the unfortunate men survived—the one an Englishman, and the other a Frenchman—the captain and 11 of the boat's crew having died. Six of the bodies had been thrown overboard before reaching land, the remainder being still in the boat. The body of the captain was still warm when the boat landed, so recently had his life ebbed away. From what we can learn the Frenchman seems to have taken a great cheer, and been chiefly instrumental in getting on shore. What the sufferings of these poor men must have been is more than you can almost picture—they must have been of the most dreadful character. It is stated that one of the crew of the captain's boat, when almost near the shore, stood up exclaiming, "Boys, I can stand it no longer!" and fell down a lifeless corpse. The ill-starred ship was, he believed, on her first voyage, having been only a few weeks new, launched at Sunderland. Captain Leslie is a son of ex-Bailie Leslie of Arbroath.—Scotch paper.

JACKSONVILLE, Dec. 30th 1863.

I had, for five years, been afflicted with Chronic Diarrhea producing constant distress; more than two years ago I took a cold in my head which settled in my eyes, becoming afflicted with sore eyes that sometimes affected my sight, and for the greater part of the time I suffered with headache. These diseases were increasing in severity this fall, until I commenced the use of Graham's Pain Eradicator and his Elixir Balsam, which gave immediate relief, and in less than two weeks made a complete cure. I have found it to surpass anything I have ever known for curing burns.

HUNNEWELL'S GREAT REMEDIES.

HUNNEWELL'S UNIVERSAL COUGH REMEDY.

The basis of this truly wonderful preparation, now of such well-earned celebrity, is a freedom from every component calculated to debilitate, and by such to allow the greatest freedom of use, day or night, as the only true theory by which Throat and Lung Complaints can be effectually cured.

To prevent asking attention to long stories of great cures, when local causes make almost all such complaints different in effect, I would ask confidence, which will be secured, in Colds, Coughs, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, and Asthmatic Complaints, Whooping Cough, and to all Throat and Lung Complaints, which, when neglected, end in Consumption. Testimonials from Physicians of the highest respectability, and from invalids, can be seen at my office by all interested.

For Sale by all Wholesale and Retail Dealers.
