A COMMON SENSE VIEW
OF THE
MODE IN WHICH
HOSTETTER'S
STOMACH BITTERS

HUMAN SYSTEM.
THIS is an age of enquiry. People want to know why and wherefore of all statements submitted to them as facts, and as far as this Great Protective and Invigorant is concerned, it is proposed to gratify them.

All the physicians admit that the greatest difficulty they encounter in their practice is in conveying to the seat of a disease the medicine which will counteract and neutralize it. Electro-city has been tried for this purpose, but it is now generally admitted that the electric fluid is too subtle an agent to be made the vehicle of medication. It shocks the nerves, but cannot distribute through the system anything except disturbance. But a liquid stimulant, as everybody knows, can be charged with the essential properties of any and every substance in the Materia Medica, and there is no herbal extract which will not be in solution with all its preserved and curative virtues unimpaired.
Now the pure liquid stimulant of which

Hostetter's Bitters.
Good Monongahela spirit is doubtless the middle and most innocuous of all the varieties of liquor, but it only becomes a healthful medicine when impregnated with the vegetable elements employed in the preparation of the Bitters.

To Dyspeptic Sufferers.
Under the general head of Dyspepsia may be classed all the varieties of indigestion. Its symptoms are so various, and differ so much in different individuals, that it is almost impossible to classify them. In fact, some are entirely indigestible. It is only by the aid of a powerful remedy, that half of the diseases of mankind spring from a disordered state of the stomach; and that the other half, whatever their origin, rest upon that sensitive and important organ. Among the most common indications of dyspepsia are flatu-lence, bloated and full feeling about the stomach and abdomen immediately after eating a growing sensation, or a sense of hollowness at the pit of the stomach between meals, a heavy dull feeling in the head, (scarcely or unequally appetite, occasional nausea, flatulence during the night, and a weary, unrefreshed feeling on rising in the morning, palpitation of the heart, depression of mind, sometimes amounting to morbidness, loss of memory, excitement of thought, sour stomach, with rising of food, and a choking sensation in the throat, dimness of the eyes, pain in the diaphragm, feeling and disinclination for exertion, and sometimes emaciation and a corpse-like pallor. These are a few of the direct signs of dyspepsia, but it is generally complicated with specific affections of the bowels, the liver, and the nerves. Its victims have many additional symptoms which are technically attributed to other causes.
The best advice that can be given to any one who has the slightest predisposition to dyspepsia, is to fortify his or her digestive organs by the daily use of

Hostetter's Bitters.
The disease proceeds from a lack of vigor in the stomach, and this vitalizing preparation will tone and renovate that organ. If the gastric ferment is in good working order, and can perfectly dissolve and thoroughly assimilate the food admitted to its operation, there will be no dyspepsia. If it cannot do this, it requires reinforcement, and the best of all reinforcing agents should be forthwith resorted to. The stomach is the centurion of the system. It supplies the elements of life to the whole body. In it is prepared the material of blood, muscle, bone and fibre, and if it fails to perform this duty, belonging to it, it is easier to prevent disease than to cure it. It is not too late to cure. It is believed that there is no case of chronic indigestion that can withstand the remedial operation of

This belief is grounded on twelve years' experience of the efficacy of the preparation. The first instance of its failure to give relief is yet unknown. It is not too late to cure. It is believed that
stand the remedial operation of
