or sheep for marketting in the spring, he should commence feeding a small quantity of grain per head as soon as grass begins to fail, for in passing from grass to hay, they should not be allowed to lose any of the flesh or fat that has accumulated during the grazing seasons. If by irregularity of feeding, or by exposure to storms, or by short allowances of feed, an animal is required to use up a pound of fat to maintain the heat and to supply the natural wastes of the body, it will take several days to replace the small amount that has been lost by this bad management. Every animal should be fed enough to keep it improving a little every day. Some bullocks require more meal than others, and the 1865. same is true of sheep. A dry cow, or a bullock three or four years old, designed for beef next May or June, should receive not less than two quarts of Indian corn meal, or its equivalent in some other grain during the months of December and January. After this, the quantity may be increased at pleasure, and should always be increased from month to month, according to the feeding capacity of the animal, the calculation being to finish off the fattening with ten to twenty days grazing, without reducing the quantity of grain. In addition to this amount of meal, they should have a foddering of hay, once daily in a yard with access to good straw. If a farmer has a power catter, it is far more economical to chaff the hay, straw and cornstalks, wet it and mingle the meal with it. Feed prepared in this manner, is better for sheep as well as neat cattle and horses. The use of oil-meal for beef animals must be regulated on the same principles, as a substitute for part of the meal. Wether and dry ewes should receive nearly or quite one pound of Indian corn or corn meal per head daily, or what is better, half a pound of oil-meal and half a pound of corn or of barley meal mixed. It is folly to attempt to make meat in cold weather, without complete protection from cold and wet .- American Agricultu-

They are so much the best physic we have that I recommend no other to my patients."

CONSTIPATION - COSTIVENESS. From Dr. J. P. Vaughn, Montreal, Canada. "Too much cannot be said of your PILLS for the cure of costiveness. If others of our fraternity have found them as efficacious as I have, they should join me in proclaiming it for the benefit of the multitudes who suffer from that complaint, which, although bad enough in itself, is the progenitor of others that are worse. Has long been manufactured by a practical chemist, and every ounce of it under his own eye, with invariable accuracy and care. It is sealed and protected by law from counterfeits, and consequently can be relied on as genuine, without adulteration. It supplies the surest remedy the world has ever known for the cure of all pulmonary complaints; for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Incipient CONSUMPTION, and for the relief of consumptive patients in advanced stages of the disease. As time makes these facts wider and better known, this medicine has gradually become the best reliance of the afflicted, from the log cabin of the American peasant to the palaces of European kings. Throughout this entire country, in every state and city, and indeed almost every hamlet it contains, CHERRY PECTORAL is known as the best of all remedies for diseases of the throat and lungs. In many foreign countries it is extensively used by their most intelligent physicians. If there is any dependence on what men of every station certify it has done for them; if we can trust our own senses when we see the dangerous affections of the lungs yield to it; if we can depend on the assurance of intelligent physicians, whose business is to know; in short, if there is any reliance upon any thing, then is it irrefutably proven that this medicine does cure the class of diseases it is designed for, beyond any and all other remedies known to mankind. its intrinsic virtues, and the unmistakable benefit conferred on thousands of sufferers, could originate and maintain the reputation it enjoys. While many inferior remedies have been thrust upon the community, have failed, and been discarded, this has gained friends by every trial, conferred benefits on the afflicted they can never forget, and produced cures too numerous and remarkable to be forgotten.
