Provincial Training School.

We had occasion, recently, to make a call at the " Training School," St. John, and confess to no desire to repeat the visit while it remains in reasons for forming a very high estimate; that the system pursued by him is an admirable one remain, Sir, we are assured, but it is, we conceive, an outrage upon that gentleman, as it is upon the Board of Education, the Teachers who are required to go there for training, and the public whose money goes to support it, to have the appointments of the institution as they are at present. We cannot describe it, but this we do say, that the rooms occupied by the male students would be a disgrace to any local school. Talk about training Teachers to teach in a place where whatever the eye rests upon is suggestive of anything but neatness, beauty or adaptability-it is absurd,-The female department is certainly immeasuably before the other in its appointments, but that is in another locality, and is out of the way.

It does seem resonable to us that our Provincial Training School chould comport somewhat with the liberal and advanced spirit evinced by the people with regard to educational expenditures. Surely a building commodious and comfortable, in a good situation, large enough under one roof to combine the male and female schools, Teachers might see how a school should be furnished, as well as learn how to impart mental culture to children, might and should be provi-
