The Kitchen Maid: or "Bread and Butter."

The girl engaged in moulding bread Shall make some sweetheart flutter;

With hope to get that dairy maid To make his bread and butter.

She may not play the game croquet, Or French or German stutter,

In meal or cream she's elbow deep.

She'll make his bread and butter.

And cannot stop to putter, But says if he will sow and reap,

The dairy maid, the farmer's wife, Shall be the toast we utter;

Alone, man leads a crusty life, Without good bread and butter.

Deputies elected by the people of Crete have presented themselves for admission to the Greek Chamber. They have been requested to leave, but have declined, and two of them have been sent away, in compliment, we suppose, to the Turkish Ambassador, who declared that if the deputies were received he must demand his passports. We do not believe that the Cretans would have been ordered away had it not been for the exercise of some occult influence, which is always at the command of
