PINE ISLAND .- By a letter from Mr. Harris, formerly of this place, we learn the particulars of a remarkable case of suffering at Vermillion. Two men, Norman and Peterson, were em-ployed by the Wabashaw Gold and Silver Mining Company to drive a drift on Pine Island, where this Company has a very rich vein. They worked on the Island alone, the principal opera-tions of miners being on the main land. One day they fired the fuse to a big blast, and, after waiting a long time, found that the lighted fuse had become extinguished, and at once set them-selves to work to drill out the blast, using water freely. Mr. Norman was an old and experienc-ed miner, fearing no mishaps, taking, as he thought, sufficient pains to prevent an explosion, but by some means, in some strange manner, the blast was ingited while they were at work .--Two fingers were torn from one of Norman's hands and the drill drove through the wrist of the other arm, and both men were blinded by
