DOWNWARD.

O stream descending to the sea, Thy mossy banks between, The flowerets blow, the grasses grow,

The leafy trees are green. In garden plots the children play, The fields the laborers till, And houses stand on either hand, And thou descendest still.

O life descending into death, Our walking eyes behold; Parent and friend thy lapse attend, Companions young and old.

Strong purposes our minds possess, Our heart's affections fill; We toil and earn, we seek and learn, And thou descendest still. O end to which our currents tend,

To which we flow, what do we know, What shall we guess, of thee?

Inevitable sea;

A war we hear upon thy shore, As we our course fulfil; Scarce we divine a sun will shine And be above us still. Arthur Hugh Clough.

NOVA SCOTIA ANSWERED .- The Canada Gazette contains the following despatch from the Colonial Secretary to the Governor General, in answer to the address of Nova Scotia respecting the independence of the Dominion or of any one of the cenfederated Provinces:—

DOWNING STREET, Oct. 8, 1870.

General Aelvs.

SIR,—I have received and laid before the Queen your despatch 201 of the 7th of September, in which you enclose an address to Her Majesty from the House of Assembly of Nova Scotia. I observe that this address was agreed to by the Assembly on the 16th of April. It only reached this country on the 22nd of September. If this delay rest with the Provincial Government, I can scarcely be wrong in interring that the father of the girl gave his consent that their betrothal should take place, and a day was appointed, to which, it may be imagined, the lover looked forward with no ordinary feeling of delight.

The great fair at Leipsic took place a short time before the day on which the happy pair were to be betrothed, and to this place Ernest hastened to purchase a bridal dress for his mistened to purchase a bridal dress which on its face it would appear to deserve. I lose, however, no time in acknow-ledging it. The House of Assembly request to be informed first, whether, should the Dominion to be informed first, MARKAGE MAXIMS.—A good wife is the rether exhibited. He selected one of rich and appropriate pattern, being of white satin, exquisitely brocaded, with tinted flowers of the most brilliant colors. It is useless to say that his present was received with unbounded approbation, and the following day the bride looked gloriously lovely in her becoming attice. In her lover's eyes she was the very, glass of flashion, and the mould of form. The betrothal vows were pronounced, the contract signed, and the nuptials fixed for the coming week.

After the wedding ceremony, in the midst of a sumptuous banquet, the fair lady became so suddenly indisposed that she was perforce obliged to seek her chamber. She threw herself upon her bed, and, alas for the insecurity of human bliss, she never left it more. A virule five the had attacked her delicate frame, and carried her, ruthlessly and unresistingly, to her tomb.
