General News.

THE VALUE OF PARIS.—The Economist reckons upon the value of property which was destroyed by the Prussian attack. "The metropolis, with a population of 3,400,000, having a valuation of about £27,000,000, which, capitalized at four per cent, would purchase a sum of £675,000,000, or, in other words, a sum of £27,000,000, we may reckon that Paris, with a population of 1,800,000, contains private property worth about £17,150,000. Deducting 10 per cent, as the value of the ground rent and unoccupied area, which may be treated as indestructible, though ground rent would fall, Paris was half destroyed, we have a net sum of £15,425,000, representing the value of Parisian buildings which a complete bombardment and street defence would annihilate. On this basis we may calculate that an amount equal to one-half of the value of the buildings will be invested in furniture or other contents of the dwellings. In this way, we get an estimate of £7,712,500 as the value of furniture and other contents of Parisian houses. The value of the stock in trade in Parisian shops and warehouses will probably be at least one-third of the aggregate of the above amounts—another sum of £7,712,500. These three figures sum up a total of £30,850,000, which represents the minimum value of private property in Paris destructible in a siege. When the danger to such property alone is considered, it may well make the defenders of a great city pause, apart altogether from the losses already sustained in the environs; the probable destruction of roads, bridges, and other works not insurable and not reckoned; the danger of monuments, libraries, museums, and the art treasures which cannot be reckoned in money; and the tremendous sacrifice of life which such a destruction of property would imply. In mere money, the loss of Paris would be a France quite as much as years of ordinary war."

Items Foreign & Local.

An American griffin, seven feet high, has been caught in the wilds of Winnipeg. It is of a dark brown or mouse color, large projecting ears, with slight indications of horns growing from the top of the head.

The first order from abroad for needles was lately sent to a fish hook and needle company at New Haven, Conn. It was for 50,000 needles, and came from one of the largest needle and fish-hook manufacturers of Birmingham, England.

At Henley-on-Thames, they attempt simultaneously to encourage sailing with the rifle and a broadsword where, and it now and then happens that a youth appears, leading a horse, a false plaits, a set of artificial teeth and half a century of bones to the altar. The disparity is not so great as you might imagine. There may be a heart still beating beneath all these adjustments, while the bridegroom, for all his good looks, has not got a single drop of warm blood in his body. So laid, good and indifferent, they pass their way. Sometimes it is Peace and Goodwill that go hand in hand. What does it matter if Goodwill's beard is grizzled, and Peace has a few freckles round about her loving eyes? Sometimes it is Pride and Vainglory that go somepating past the long church porch into the churchyard beyond. They are a fine looking couple as the sail along, and they look to see their reflection in the eyes of the bystanders. Sometimes—and this is not a very strange phenomenon—it is only the part of one of the contracting parties that is united to the present of the other. They find it out too late.

SUNNY ROOMS.—Every woman who is wise enough to secure for her house plants every bit of available sunshine during cold winter months. Great care is taken to get a southern exposure for them. Indeed, if one can secure no other than a north window for her plants, she has too much love for these unceremonious, inanimate things to keep them at all. She would rather leave them out in the cold to die out-right, than linger out a martyr's existence in the shade.

FOLKS need sunshine quite as much as plants do. Men and women who have a fair degree of strength and the use of their legs, can get out into the world and get a glimpse of the sunshine now and then, and if they choose to do so, let them live in rooms with a northern exposure; but if impossible, let us secure rooms into which every possible ray of sunshine that falls in winter may enter, for the little babies who are shut up in the house, invalids who cannot leave their rooms and aged people who are too infirm to get out doors. Let us reflect for a moment that these classes of persons, if kept in rooms with only north windows, will suffer just as much from the absence of sunshine as the green growing plants would do in the rooms, and their suffering is of account in proportion as a human being is better than a geranium or a fuchsia. Everybody knows how a bright sunny day in winter gladdens every one who is situated so as to enjoy it. Let us make some sacrifices, if need be, in order to give the feeble ones their measures of sunshine.—Lives of Life.

ALWAYS BUSY.—The more a man accomplishes the more he may. An active tool never grows rusty. You always find those men the most forward to do good or to improve the times and manners, always busy. Who start our railroads, our steamships, our machine shops, and our manufacturing? Men of industry and enterprise. As long as they keep at it, doing something to benefit themselves and others. It is just so with a man who is benevolent; the more he gives the more he feels like giving. We go for activity in body, in mind, everything. Let the gold grow not dim, nor the thoughts become stale. Keep all things in motion, and you will find that death should find us scaling a mountain, then sinking in a mire—breasting a whirlwind then smacking from a cloud.

A SLIGHT MISTAKE.—The following anecdote has been associated with the name of a well-known clergyman's helpmate in the North. The minister had been entertaining at dinner a clerical friend from some distance. The evening was unpropitious and the weather was bad by the minister to remain during the night and he accepted the invitation. They walked together for some time in the manse garden. At dusk the minister asked his visitor to step into the manse while he gave directions to his man servant to get his conveyance ready in the morning. As the stranger entered the manse the minister's helpmate was sitting at her husband's table; she raised the pulpit Bible which chance had put on the lobby table and bringing the full weight of it across the stranger's shoulders exclaimed emphatically, "Take that for asking that ugly wretch to stay all night!"

In Indiana a husband, after a spree, was led home by one of his friends, and after poisoning him safely on the door steps, rang the bell, and treated somewhat drowsily to the other side of the street, to see if it would be answered. Promptly the "port" was "overruled," and the fond spouse, who had waited up for her errand husband, beheld him in all his tottleness. "Why, Walter, is this you?" "Yes, my dear."

"Been out on a little turn with 'er boys, my d-d-aring." "Why, Walter, you're intoxicated!" "Yes, dear, I estimate that's so." "And what on earth made you get so drunk?" "Why—oh, you come to me in this dreadful state!" "Because, my darling, all the other places 'shut up'!"

In a time of much religious excitement and consequent discussions an honest Dutch farmer on the Mohawk was asked his opinion as to which denomination of Christians were on the right way to heaven. "Vell, den," said he, "ven we ride our wheat to Albany some say dish road is the best and some dat; but it don't make much difference which road we take, for when we get dere dey never rich ray we come—and its none of dere piensness—if our wheat is good!"

One sin prepares the way for another. Sin, as you makes its demands for another. Sin is antecedent, and consequently every sinful indulgence yields decreased gratification and cries more! more!

Several months since the Sheffield (Eng.) Telegraph, published a telegraphic rumor to the effect that the "Prince of Wales" would shortly appear in the divorce courts again in a case in which a countess would be respondent. "For this paragraph the suit was one of the Earl of Shelton against the countess. For this paragraph a libel suit was instituted by the Earl of Shelton, and the case has just been finished in the Court of Queen's Bench, the editor getting off with a fine of £500. It was clearly proved that the managing editor was absconding from his post at the time the paragraph appeared, and although he published an apology, that did not suffice, and the case was accordingly settled in the law courts."

A young man named Lindsay met with a severe accident last week that may occasion the loss of his life. Ten years ago it was unknown in the Sandwich Islands; but now over eight hundred natives are afflicted with it, and many foreigners have also caught the old-time curse. A correspondent of the New York Herald gives a faithful account of the sufferings of the victims of their utter inability to check its ravages, and of the unspeakable misery of those who labor under it. Lindsay resided in Pictou on the evening in question he had been visiting a neighbor's house, and at about 8 o'clock he, with a friend, started to go home. On the way they passed a house, where a young couple had been the night before, and a crowd was gathered about the door. Lindsay, who was a young man, was taken home, where the surgeon found it necessary to amputate the limb, and serious fears are entertained that the injury will eventuate in his death.—Acadian Recorder.
