LITTLE BLUNDERS.

I have a cheerful word to-day,
My modest friend for you,
About those awkward little things

We sometimes say and do; Ne'er let a harmless blunder tinge

Your manly cheek with shame, You're not alone in such mistakes,

For thousands do the same.

Now should you woo a lady fair,

The flame was all in you;

Have done the very same.

With sweet, poetic strains,

Get laughed at for your pains, Stand up before the witty world,

You've got your honest name, Dou't care a pin; a host of men Have done the very same.

Or if to some imagined friend

Your tale of woe you bring,

And 'stead of sympathy or aid, Receive the scorpion's sting,

Have done the very same.

Hide not an honest face;

While learning to be more discreet,

Mind not the grief and shame,

Good men have done the same."

But should you ever slight the source

Whence truth and justice spring, And from your manhood stoop to do

For nature's honest man, my friend,
