Miscellaneous.

SORROW.—There is, perhaps, no passion of the human mind so deleterious to bodly health as that of grief; especially when it is deeply seated and long indulged. By enfeebling the whole nervous system, it depresses the motion of the heart, and retards the circulation of the blood, with that of all the other fluids It commonly debilitates those organs which are necessary for digestion, producing dyspepsia, obstinate wakefulness, and disposing to every disease that may arise from extreme relaxation. It preys upon the mind, as well as the body, and it is nourished by indulgence to the utmost degree of excess

HOW MUCH SALT IS ENOUGH —In England it is ascertained by experience that sheep require half a pound per week, which is 28 pounds, or half a custom-house bushel per annum; cows require a bushel and a half per annum; young cattle a bushel; colts and young cattle, from three pecks to a bushel per annum. It is also customary in curing a ton of hay, to use 10 or 15 pounds of salt. Whether it would be best to use a like amount in our hay mows, and what is the best method of salting cattle, are, I think practical subjects of inquiry.
