New Albion House,
MCGILL STREET,
Montreal, Canada.
THE "NEW ALBION HOTEL," the largest Hotel in Montreal, has just been opened under the most favorable auspices.
Whist the "Old Albion" has been noted for its staid and conservative character, the "New Albion," takes its position as a first class Hotel, and is really, first class in every respect. The charges, which better suit the ideas and requirements of the majority of travellers, than many of the so-called, "first class Hotels," which deserve the title more through the amount of their charges than through the quality of their service.
Already the crowded state of the "New Albion" promises well for its future career; everything associated with its construction has been carried out with the latest and systematic correctness.
The large Hall, commodious Dining, Coffee, and Reception Rooms, the elegant and systematic furnished and thoroughly ventilated Ladies' Parlors, on the second floor, will form no small part of the hotel's success. The new building, which is an exception to the general rule in Hotels, the Bedrooms are all well ventilated and lighted, there is not being a dark room in the House.

Poetry.
[For the CARLETON SENTINEL.]
The Hidden Chamber.
There is a chamber within my breast,
A chamber as dark as the grave;
And there is hid the dearest and best
Of all that I have.
The chamber is there; but who can tell
Or guess in what corner it lies?
Darkness and mystery hide it well
From prying eyes.
Yet there are those who find the way
To its door, and with magic key,
Open it quietly, and through it they
Glide stealthily.
But every one that enters there
In that chamber must remain;
Of all that are in, not one shall e'er
Come out again.

Select Tale.
The Oak Closet.
Margaret Grey was in some sort an upstart in the household of Judge Wallace. The judge lived in a handsome house in the suburbs of the little country village of Thorndale.
Margaret was left an orphan at an early age, and the judge and his wife had taken her into their house and brought her up from the orphanage.
They had two children of their own—twins—Alice and Algernon—and Margaret had enjoyed every advantage of education in common with the brother and sister.
As she grew older, and began to realize how much she owed the judge and his wife, she felt a desire to be able in some way to make them recompense for their kindness, and as she was a strong, active girl she soon became very useful about the house. Her domestic duties were light, for Mrs. Wallace was a feeble woman, and very willingly resigned some of the care and burden to Margaret, and in due course of time the young girl came to be trusted and depended on, until, by the time she was two-and-tw
