But what d'ye think she thunk?
What dowry might with her be got!
And a knowing wink he wunk. He gazed with passion on her face?
Yea many a gaze he goze;
He took her hand with dainty grace,
And several kisses koze.

With anger fixed, she dealt a blow,
Which slightly blew his nose;
And crying "Wherefore use me so?
A painful sneeze he snooze.

"Go, go, bold man," the maiden cried So, Slinking out, he slunk, Bewailing he had lost a bride, Whose chink he ne'er could chunk The next six months he lived on gin, And not a bite he bote;

And always tight he tumbled in, So very tight he toet. Then as a soldier he essayed
To go and find his gaol,
Where hailing bullets terror made,
But not a hail they hole.

When thus he failed to end his grief,
Though stout and brave he brove,

In France a woman has no remedy when a man promises to marry her and doesn't. At first sight this may seem a little cruel; but practically it has the effect of doing away with what are called engagements, and there being no engagement, there is no breach. A man and woman meaning to be married, marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to diplomately marry at once, and there's an end to

A SAILOR DRIVEN TO SUICIDE BY Mosquitoes.—The mosquitoes of Burmah (says the Madras Mail) have a terrible reputation, but we never imagined that they were such formidable wretches that they could compel even a sailor to commit suicide. Yet that is the character a local paper gives them.—It would appear that some years ago a sailor walking as sentry on the gangway of Her Majesty's frigate "Fox," when that vessel was lying at anchor on the Irrawady, was dreadfully teased and excited by the swarms Majesty's frigate "Fox," when that vessel was lying at anchor on the Irrawdy, was most of mosquitoes which kept worrying him.—
