DEAR SENTINEL, -- In my last I mentioned to you what a quantity of snow we were having here; last Monday everybody went a sleighing; now everybody can go sailing. I have been in this city some years, but as Sunday, three real Down East snow storms. But the one of that day stood at the head of the list. Almost every city railroad was blocked; but they got out their snow plows and their revolving steel brooms; and if it was bad before, it was much worse after, for they "piled it up" before everybody's house in all streets through which they pass; you could not get out to the street without going to the corner, and there getting over to the opposite side; and if you wanted to get in to your house or place of business it was the same. In the narrow streets they put an end to all business; no wagons or carts could get in; it was keep straight ahead till you come to a corner, But the Old Gent.—the "Clerk of the Weather"—took a hand in, by hauling the wind round to the South, and introducing a rain storm on Friday night and Saturday, and now in the low, narrow streets you can sail in slush --It would have been an easy matter for any one, that was used to handling a canoe, to have paddled it for miles along either Greenwich, Washington or West streets; indeed fun, unadulterated, for me to have propelled one from Canal street down West, round into South street, from that to East street Resolved, That no part of the $50,000 up to Grand.
