

Miscellaneous.

OUR NEIGHBOR'S GOOD NAME.—Anybody can soil the reputation of any individual, however pure and chaste, by uttering a suspicion that his enemies will believe and his friends never will. A puff of the idle wind can take a million of the seeds of a thistle and do a work of mischief which the husbandman must labor long to undo, the floating particles being too fine to be seen and too light to be stopped, such are the seeds of slander, so easily sown, so difficult to be gathered up, and yet so pernicious in their fruits. The slanderer knows that many a wind will catch up the plague and become poisoned by his insinuations without ever seeking the antidote. No reputation can refute a slur, nor any human skill prevent mischief.

Dr. Hall flings down the glove to all the world's opinion and asserts that pious and pious are as plentiful as pumpkins, and that the best of the best, the claims that they contain nutriment in a more condensed form, and that the ill effect so often attending their consumption, solely arises from our habit of eating them over we have made a hearty and sufficient meal of other food. But facts are better than fancy and any one can test this notion for themselves. As for us give us bread and butter instead of pie crust.

During the "troubles" a young confederate miss was passing through one of the hospitals, when it was remarked that a prisoner, a lieutenant, had died that morning. "Oh, where is he?" Let me see him. The attendant led her into an adjoining ward, when, discovering Lieutenant—, of the Fifth Kansas, lying there fast asleep on his hospital couch, and thinking to have a little fun, he pointed him out to the girl. She sprang forward, and leaning over him said, "Oh, your dear lieutenant, let me kiss you for your mother." What was her surprise when the awakened "corpse" ardently clasped her in his arms, returned the salute, and then exclaimed: "Never mind the old lady, miss, go to it. I have a slight objection."
