Poetry. The Footsteps of Decay. From the Lament of Tom Jorge de Manrique.

And the stern footsteps of decay

How pleasure, like the passing wind,

Blows by, and leaves nought behind

How still our present happiness Seems, to the wayward fancy, less

Let us the present hour employ,

And deem each future dream a joy

Let no vain hope deceive the mind,

To-morrow than to-day;

Our birth is but the starting place, Life is the running of the race, And death the goal;

That path, alone of all unsought,

Is found of all.

That into one engulfing sea
Are doomed to fall—

Alike the river's lordly tide,

Within the grave.

Hath passed away!

And where are they?

Alike the streamlet's gentle glide To that sad wave!

Death levels poverty and pride— The rich and poor sleep side by side

Long ere the damps of death can blight, The cheek's pure glow of red and white

Youth smiled and all was heavenly fair;

Where is the strength that mocked decay,

Age came and laid his fingers there,

The step that rose so light and gav.

And joy grows weariness and woe,

Say, then, how poor and little worth Are all the glittering toys of earth That lure us here!

Dreams of a sleep that death must brea

Select Tale.

Ye disappear!
—Translated by Longfellow.

When age comes on!

Alas! before it bids us awake,

The strength is gone; the step is slow

The heart's blithe tone?

There all our steps at last are brought-

Our lives like hasting streams must be,

The sea of death! whose waves roll on

No happier let us hope to find

And while we view the rolling tide, Down which our flowing minutes glide

Comes stealing on!

But grief at last!

Than what is past!

Away so fast,

Already passed.

Beginning and End.

In 1848 a young man stood on the piazza of his father's almost princely mansion near Natchez, in earnest conversation with his father the richest planter in the country. The young man was in shape and feature very handsome, but when excited, his dark eyes and frowning brow spoke out plainly that he had a nature which would brook no control.

"Tom." said the planter in the country. The young man was in shape will life, he entered a mining camp near yuba, known then as Natchez. He was as usual, morose and sullen, ready to quarrel with any or every one, and fixing his eyes on a young man named Jack Moore, he used a grossly insulting epithed.

"Tom." said the planter in the country that a woman cannot be a justice of the Peace in Massachusetts.

DEATH OF THE DOUBLEHRADED CR.LD.

—We mentioned in our columns yesterday
the presence in Boston of a most remarkable child, the offspring of Joseph and Ann B.
Finley. It presented the remarkable as well as unprecedented phenomenon of two heads, four arms, and two legs, and all upon a single body. The girl—for such was its sex—died last evening at No. 6, Bowdoin street. The first half or head breathed its last at 5 and the second shortly after 8 o'clock. The many thousands in the Western and Middle States who have seen this marvellous eccentricity of nature will learn its early death with regret. The child—or children as it would almost seem proper to allude to the phenomenon-had enjoyed excellent health from her birth, nine months ago, until within two weeks, at which time one exhibited signs of illness. This, however, was but temporary. It recovered and was bright and playful. Since reaching Boston, a few days since, the other—or the other half—was taken sick and died yesterday afternoon, as already stated. The two portions of the body were so intim-away. I want to see Tom, and see him alone."

"You shall not, Mary! That is as good as sworn to."

"O Jesse, you loved your poor sister once."

And Mary's hot tears fell fast.

He made no reply, sternly watched Thomas Williams, as the young man hurried forward to meet her who was all in all to him.

The male forward to meet her who was all in all to him.

Iling fellow, we asked in some surprise how he obtained some surprise, how he obtained money enough. "He stole it," was the quiet, self-satisfied reply. It is unneccessary to state that after that we took special care that our own purse was safe from the touch of light fingers.

And Mary's hot tears fell fast.

As cigar and cigarette makers, the Chinese provisions were largely to the success of that branch all to him.

As usual, a quantity of Chinese provisions were now commenced to descend at a rapid and store in the contingent that the end of all things had arrived, A grand Chinese funeral was given in San Franciso lately to a murdered celestial, whose body was elaborately laid out, with a dirk kinife and other weapons in the hands, with the extremities, to guard against contingent that the end of all things had arrived, that, arrayed in white garments sewed up at the extremities, to guard against contingent that the end of all things had arrived, and the extremities to a murdered celestial, whose bedy was elaborately laid out, with a dirk kinife and other weapons in the hands, with the extremities to guard against contingent that the end of all things had arrived, and the extremities to a murdered celestia vinced that the end of all things had arriv cott when Williams was within ten or twelve paces. "I told you if you came here you would find some one in your way."

And he drew a Deringer pistol, cocked and raised it.

"There is but one will on earth for me to obey," said Williams, as he still moved forward.

"Then I'll be the will to stop you," said young Prescott, his eye sighting the barrele which now laid level with the heart of Williams.

"Brother! brother!" screamed Mary Prescott, as she sprang directly in front of him.

A report—a low scream—a gasping maan—and poor Mary Prescott's love and proper to the cost of man and man and poor Mary Prescott's love and proper to the cost of same wine—rice spirit—was also left at the grave.
